SCHEDULE (see infra).

Minutes.

As to minutes approved by the Court, see supra, pp. 1285, 1286

Save as below mentioned, it has for upwards of a quarter of a century been the practice in cases where a reduction has involved the payment off of paid-up capital to ignore the amount to be paid off in stating in the minute the amount "which is to be deemed to have been paid up on each share" (sect. 4, Act of 1877). Thus, where 5*l.* per share was to be paid off on 10*l.* fully paid shares and the shares to be reduced to 5*l.* shares, the minute in accordance with the practice stated the capital as altered, and that upon each share 5*l.* was to be deemed to have been paid up, and it ignored the 5*l.* per share paid off. It being assumed that the amount would be paid off in due course after the registration of the minute. And it is submitted that this practice is correct and for these reasons:—Sect. 9 of the Act of 1867 (sect. 51 (2) of the Companies Act, 1908) provided that no resolution for reduction should "come into operation until an order of the Court confirming the reduction is registered by the registrar as hereinafter provided," and sect. 15 of 1867 (sect. 51 (1) of the Act of 1908), as modified by sect. 4 of 1877 (sect. 48 of the Act of 1908) (see App., infra), provided for the registration of the order and of a minute (approved by the Court) showing with respect to the capital of the company as altered by the order the amount of such capital, the number of shares, the amount of each share, and the amount proposed to be deemed to have been paid up on each share. And sect. 15 (sect. 51 (2) of the Act of 1908) also provided that on the registration (that is, of the order and minute) "the special resolution confirmed by the order so registered shall take effect." And the minute had to be framed on the footing of sect. 16 of 1867 (sect. 52 of the Act of 1908), see App., for when registered it was to be "deemed to be substituted for the corresponding part of the memorandum of association of the company, and shall be of the same validity . . . as if it had been originally contained in the memorandum of association."

Clearly, then, the Act contemplated that no payment off of capital under the resolution would or could be made until after the registration of the minute, for until then the resolution for payment off is ineffective. Moreover, the Act contemplated that the minute would show the capital "as altered," and accordingly the minute could not treat the amount paid off as capital "proposed to be deemed to have been paid up on the shares."

However, in Calgary and Edmonton Land Co., Limited, 19th Dec., 1905 (reported in (1906) 1 Ch.), Buckley, J., being under the impression (contrary to the fact) that the practice had been in such cases, first, to obtain on the hearing of the petition an order confirming the reduction and approving of the minute, then to pay off the capital and prove such payment off to the Court or to the registrar, and then to take the order post-dated so as to bring the minute into accord with the facts, directed that course to be adopted in the case before him, and without much discussion counsel for the company assented. The objection to adopting the course thus approved is that it departs from the long-settled practice of the Court, and that it compels the company to act on the resolution by paying off capital before, by registration of the order and minute, the resolution has become effective and before it is known whether there will or will not be an appeal from the order. The reason suggested for departing from the settled practice is that unless the capital is actually paid off before the minute is registered, that minute, in ignoring the capital to be paid off, will not truly state the facts; but the reason does not seem to be sound, for the minute is to deal with the capital "as altered" (sect. 15 of 1867 (sect. 31 of the Act of 1906), infra, App.); it is to deal not with the capital which has been paid up but with the capital which is "proposed to be deemed to have been paid up." Then it is said that the sum to be paid off must be capital, for the resolution is for payment off of capital, and therefore that the minute cannot ignore the amount, but the answer is that the sum is capital which is to be paid off and not capital which is proposed to be deemed to have been paid off within sect. 4 of 1877, and this reasoning seems to apply equally under the new Act.

Amongst the numberless cases in which the settled practice has been followed in past years are the following, elsewhere referred to in this work:

In the result Calgary and Edmonton Land Co., (1906) 1 Ch. 141, cannot be considered good law. The following are a few examples of minutes where capital has been paid off:

[British and American, &c. Co., 1894, supra, pp. 1119, 1259.] The capital of [the company] is 1,691,737*l.* divided into 160,767 ordinary shares of 10*l.* each and 81,067 general founders' shares of 1*l.* each instead of the 2,000,000*l.* divided into 178,600 ordinary shares of 10*l.* each and 114,000 general founders' shares of 1*l.* each, and at the time of registration of this minute 35,276 of the said ordinary shares are issued, and on each of them the sum of 2*l.* has been and is deemed to be paid up, and 42,365 of the said general founders' shares are issued and have been and are to be deemed fully paid up. The residue of the said ordinary shares, namely, 125,491, and the residue of the said general founders' shares, namely, 41,702, are unissued and nothing is to be deemed to be paid up thereon.

[Kodak, Limited, 1904.] The capital of [the company] henceforth is 250,000*l.* divided into 250,000 shares of 1*l.* each, reduced from 1,600,000*l.* divided into 600,000 preference shares of 1*l.* each and 1,000,000 ordinary shares of 1*l.* each, by reducing and extinguishing the said preference shares and 750,000 of the said ordinary shares. The 250,000 ordinary shares, part of the 1,000,000 ordinary shares, are numbered, &c. At the time of the registration of this minute the full sum of 1*l.* per share has been and is to be deemed paid up on the said 250,000 ordinary shares.

[Robert Campbell & Sons, Limited, 1890.] The capital of [the company] is 620,000*l.* divided into 60,000 shares of 10*l.* each, on each of which the full amount per share is to be deemed to be paid up, instead of the original capital of 600,000*l.* divided into 60,000 shares of 10*l.* each on which 7*l.* per share has been paid up thereon.

"The capital of the Fore Street Warehouse Company, Limited, is 480,000*l.*, divided into 30,000 shares of 16*l.* each. At the time of the registration of this minute the whole of the said 30,000 shares have been issued and allotted, upon each of which the sum of 14*l.* has been and is to be deemed to be paid up. Minute where capital liable to be recalled.

Kay, J., 23rd June, 1888, 59 L. T. 214. And see Craven Line Co., Limited, where a similar minute was approved by North, J., 21st April, 1898. And Farwell, J., approved of a similar minute in Junction Spinning Co., Limited and Reduced, 16 Ap. 1901.

"The capital of the Express Assurance Corporation, Limited, henceforth is, &c., and on each of the said 71,768 shares the sum of 10s. has been and is to be deemed paid up, except that upon the undermentioned shares there are the following arrears of calls:—

Sect. 51 of the Companies Act, 1908 (sect. 15 of the Act of 1867), provides for the registration of the order and minute with the Registrar of Companies, and requires notice of such registration to be published in such manner as the Court may direct. The Court cannot dispense with the publication, so held by Chitty, J., in London Steamboat Co., 31 W. R. 781; W. N. (1883) 135, for Parliament has enacted that there shall be such publication.

The terms of sect. 52 of the Act (as to embodying a copy of the minute in the company's memorandum) (representing sect. 18 of the Companies Act, 1867), should be borne in mind.

In some cases a copy of the order has been advertised instead of a notice as above, but that is not what the section requires.

The like order was made by Malins, V.-C., on the application of the author, in Fion Co., 25 May, 1880, B. 1653.

Where it is found that a proposed reduction cannot be carried into effect because too many creditors declare that they will oppose, or because the company finds that it will be unable to adduce the requisite evidence, e.g., of loss or depreciation, application can be made for leave to withdraw the petition and to drop the words "and reduced." The following is a specimen of an order made in such a case:—

ALTERATION AND EXTENSION OF A COMPANY'S OBJECTS.

The unalterability of a company's memorandum of association, while based on a sound principle of public policy, was attended with many inconveniences. It operated often as an unreasonable obstacle in the way of a company enlarging or consolidating its business or adapting it to changed conditions. In the Companies (Memorandum of Association) Act, 1890 (the provisions of which are now embodied in sects. 9 and 264 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908), the Legislature recognized the necessity for a change in the law, and, without abandoning the principle of unalterability, relaxed it—subject to proper safeguards—in certain classes of cases.

The sections above referred to run as follows:

9.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section a company may, by special resolution, alter the provisions of its memorandum with respect to the objects of the company, so far as may be required to enable it—

Alteration of objects of company.

- (a) to carry on its business more economically or more efficiently; or
- (b) to attain its main purpose by new or improved means; or
- (c) to enlarge or change the local area of its operations;
- (d) to carry on some business which under existing circumstances may conveniently or advantageously be combined with the business of the company; or
- (e) to restrict or abandon any of the objects specified in the memorandum

(2) The alteration shall not take effect until and except in so far as it is confirmed on petition by the Court.

(3) Before confirming the alteration the Court must be satisfied

- (a) that sufficient notice has been given to every holder of debentures of the company, and to any persons or class of persons whose interests will, in the opinion of the Court, be affected by the alteration; and
- (b) that, with respect to every creditor who in the opinion of the Court is entitled to object, and who signifies his objection in manner directed by the Court, either his consent to the alteration has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined, or has been secured to the satisfaction of the Court;

Provided that the Court may, in the case of any person or class, for special reasons, dispense with the notice required by this section.

(4) The Court may make an order confirming the alteration either wholly or in part, and on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit, and may make such order as to costs as it thinks proper.

(5) The Court shall, in exercising its discretion under this section, have regard to the rights and interests of the members of the company or of any class of them, as well as to the rights and interests of the creditors, and may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the proceedings in order that an arrangement may be made to the satisfaction of the Court for the purchase of the interests of dissentient members; and may give such directions and make such orders as it may think expedient for facilitating or carrying into effect any such arrangement: Provided that no part of the capital of the company may be expended in any such purchase.

(6) An office copy of the order confirming the alteration, together with a printed copy of the memorandum as altered, shall, within fifteen days from the date of the order, be delivered by the company to the registrar of companies, and he shall register the same, and shall certify the registration under his hand, and the certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act with respect to the alteration and the confirmation thereof have been complied with, and thenceforth the memorandum so altered shall be the memorandum of the company.

The Court may by order at any time extend the time for the delivery of documents to the registrar under this section for such period as the Court may think proper.

(7) If a company makes default in delivering to the registrar of companies any document required by this section to be delivered to him, the company shall be liable to a fine not exceeding 10*l.* for every day during which it is in default.

Sect. 264 of
of 1908.

Power to substitute
memorandum and articles for deed of settlement.

264.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, a company registered in pursuance of this Part [VII.] of this Act may by special resolution alter the form of its constitution by substituting a memorandum and articles for a deed of settlement.

(2) The provisions of this Act with respect to confirmation by the Court and registration of an alteration of the objects of a company shall so far as applicable apply to an alteration under this section with the following modifications:—

(a) There shall be substituted for the printed copy of the altered memorandum required to be delivered to the registrar of companies a printed copy of the substituted memorandum and articles; and

(b) On the registration of the alteration being certified by the registrar the substituted memorandum and articles shall apply to the company in the same manner as if it were a company registered under this Act with that memorandum and those articles, and the company's deed of settlement shall cease to apply to the company.

(3) An alteration under this section may be made either with or without any alteration of the objects of the company under this Act.

(4) In this section the expression "deed of settlement" includes any contract of copartnership or other instrument constituting or regulating the company, not being an Act of Parliament, a royal charter, or letters patent.

In the above sections "a company" means any company formed and registered under this Act (sect. 285 of the Act of 1908) or an existing company (i.e., a company formed and registered under the Joint Stock Companies Acts or under the Companies Act, 1862).

Sect. 285 is silent as to companies registered but not formed under the Joint Stock Companies Act, 1856, the Joint Stock Companies Acts, 1856 and 1857, or the Act to enable joint stock companies to be formed on the principle of limited liability, or under Part VII. of the Companies Act, 1862. But sects 246 and 263 make the Act applicable to such companies. See Nitro Phosphate Co., W. N. (1893) 141; General Credit Co., W. N. (1891) 153; Hong Kong and China Gas Co., W. N. (1898) 158; Copiapó Mining Co., W. N. (1899) 25; Euphrates and Tigris Steam Navigation Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 360; Scottish Australian Investment Co., Warrington, J., 20th January, 1912. In that case the company was registered but not formed under the Joint Stock Companies Act, 1856, with a deed of copartnery. It subsequently adopted a memorandum and articles (with largely extended objects), and the Court confirmed the substitution under sect. 264.

The Court has a discretion under sect. 9 of the Act, and the order may be made on such terms and conditions as to the Court seem fit. Accordingly, the Court under the repealed Act sometimes required an advertisement of the order, and occasionally required an alteration of the name where the extension of objects rendered the name inappropriate or misleading. Foreign and Col. &c. Co., (1891) 2 Ch. 395; Indian Mechanical Gold Extracting Co., W. N. (1891) 153; Oriental Telephone Co., ibid.; Alliance Insurance, (1892) 1 Ch. 300. And see Copper Mines Tinplate Co., W. N. (1897) 20, infra; but, as a general rule, this was not required. Lancaster Banking Co., W. N. (1897) 3.

There is no doubt jurisdiction in the High Court to sanction an alteration of the objects of an unlimited company with no shares or capital, but which is a company under the Act of 1908. North of England Iron Steamship Insurance Assoc., (1900) 1 Ch. 481.

In National Boiler Insurance Co. (1882), 1 Ch. 311, Kekewich, J., being prepared to confirm the resolutions with modifications, required a further special resolution approving of the modifications; but the learned judge, in several subsequent cases, held that he had jurisdiction to sanction the modified resolutions without further special resolution; Law Union, &c. Co., 16th January, 1892, where the proposed extension was cut down to some extent; Law Union and Crown, in which the same judge confirmed a resolution adopting a memorandum and articles in which he required certain modifications. And the Courts have on many occasions added words so as to limit the extent of the alterations. Spiers and Poul, W. N. (1895) 135; Fleetwood Estates Co., W. N. (1897) 20; Consett Iron Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 236. The Court has put a liberal construction on the provisions of the Companies (Memorandum of Association) Act, 1890, and of sect. 9 of the Act of 1908, as to alteration of objects, and has rarely refused to confirm an alteration adopted by special resolution and coming within the words of the section. As Lord Loreburn, L. C., said in Pooler v. National Bank of China, (1907) A. C. 296, "It is no part of the business of a Court of justice to determine the wisdom of a course adopted by a company in the management of its own affairs."

The Court found no difficulty in confirming an alteration in wide terms and does not require evidence that the company immediately require to act on the extended objects.

The following instances will afford some indication of the extent to which the enactments have been utilised:—

A telephone company was empowered to manufacture electrical apparatus. Oriental Telephone Co., W. N. (1891) 153.

Several insurance companies have been allowed to extend their objects so as to include cognate businesses, e.g., Employers' Liability Co., Chitty, J., 29th June, 1891; marine insurance extension, Alliance Marine, (1892) 1 Ch. 300; boiler insurance extension, National Boiler, (1892) 1 Ch. 306; guarantee company extension to indemnity, burglary and other special kinds of insurance, Law Guarantee, May, 1895; British Empire, &c. Co., 1897; Equity and Law

Several companies have taken power to transact trustee and executorship business. Union of London and Smiths Bank, London and South Western Bank, Lloyds Bank, Baring Bros. & Co., June, 1910.

Trust investment companies have been allowed to extend their objects. Foreign and Colonial Trust Co., (1891) 2 Ch. 395; Government Stock, &c. Co., (1892) 1 Ch. 597; Trust and Agency Co. of Australasia, 25 T. L. R. 61.

Several banks have largely extended or defined their objects. London and Midland Banking Co., 1891; Manchester and Liverpool District Banking Co., 1895; York City and County Banking Co., 1896; London and Westminster Bank, 1897, North, J.; Lincoln and Lindsey Banking Co., Swinfen Eady, J., 28th Oct. 1902; National Provincial Bank of England, Limited, North, J., 1895; Birmingham District and Counties Banking Co., Limited, Parker, J., May, 1907; Union of London and Smiths Bank, Limited; London and South Western Bank, Limited (the like); Sheffield and Hallamshire Bank, Limited, By: J., J., 4 Dec. 1899; London Joint Stock Bank, Limited, Chitty, J., Nov. 1892.

A considerable number of companies have been empowered to raise money by debentures and perpetual debenture stock. Reversionary Interest Society, (1892) 1 Ch. 615; Law Reversionary Interest Society, May, 1893, North, J.; P. Phipps' Northampton and Worcester Breweries, 1897; Empire Trust. Restriction on borrowing removed. Midland Educational Co., Stirling, J., 30th April, 1892. Borrowing powers extended. The like in Union Rolling Stock Co., Kekewich, J., Jan. 1894.

The area of the company's operations has been enlarged in several cases. Indian Mechanical, &c. Co., (1891) 3 Ch. 538; London Joint Stock Bank, Chitty, J., Nov. 1892; R. Bell & Co., matchmakers, were given power to carry on business abroad. See also Crompton and Sons, Vaughan Williams, J. (cotton spinning); London General Omnibus Co., Neville, J., Feb. 1912.

In several cases objects have been extended so as to enable a company to acquire other business concerns of a like nature. London Joint Stock Bank, Chitty, J., Nov. 1892; Norwich Union, Kekewich, J., 1893; York City and County Banking Co., North, J., Nov. 1894; Leicestershire Banking Co., North, J., June, 1895; New Westminster Brewery Co., 56 Sol. J. 141; or enter into arrangements for partnership or joint working; Aux Classes Labourennes, Limited, Neville, J., Feb. 1912; and many others, including Anglo-American Telegraph Co., 56 Sol. J. 141. In some cases objects have been extended so as to allow the promotion of and holding shares in foreign companies. Ocean Accident, &c. Co., Chitty, J., July, 1893; Crompton & Sons, Vaughan Williams, J.

In Re Jewish Colonisation Trust, (1908) 2 Ch. 287, the Court refused to sanction an alteration involving an abandonment of objects of a fundamental character, and restrict the promotion of the Zionist movement to a limited local area; and in Re Cyclists Touring Club, (1907) 1 Ch. 260, the Court refused to allow a cyclists' touring club to extend its objects by including among them the promotion of the interests of motorists, being of opinion that such an alteration was not within either clause (a) or (d) of sect. 1 (5).

In Consett Iron Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 236, Cozens-Hardy, J., expressed doubts whether the Court had jurisdiction under the Act to sanction an alteration amounting to a re-writing of the objects in modern form; and, accordingly, in that case the old objects were left, whilst five times as much matter in the shape of new objects (in modern form) was added. Apparently, therefore, the doubt is confined to the question whether the Court has jurisdiction to sanction an alteration which introduces a series of new objects in modern form instead of the old objects. This question has been answered again and again in the affirmative by the High Court. Thus, Henn Collins, J., in 1891, in the Birmingham and Midland Bank, Limited; Kekewich, J., in 1893, in the Law Union and Crown Insurance Co., Limited; North, J., in 1894, in the York City and County Bank, Limited; North, J., in 1895, in the Leicestershire Banking Co., Limited; Chitty, J., in 1896, in the Equity and Law Life Assurance Society; Vaughan Williams, J., in 1896, in the Union Steamship Co., Limited; North, J., in 1897, in the London and Westminster Bank, Limited; Stirling, J., in 1897, in the British Plate Glass Co., Limited; Byrne, J., in 1899, in the Halifax Joint Stock Bank, Limited; Kekewich, J., in July, 1901, in the Carlisle and Cumberland Banking Co., Limited; Byrne, J., 10th Aug. 1901, in the London Joint Stock Bank, Limited; and shortly afterwards in the Midland Wagon Co.; and Swinfen Eady, J., in the Lincoln and Lindsey Banking Co., 28th Oct. 1902; Euphrates Co.; Swinfen Eady, J., W. N. (1901) 23; Buenos Ayres Great Southern, Joyce, J. June, 1910; Reliance Marine, April, 1911; Standard Bank of South Africa, Limited, Eve, J., Feb. 1911, sanctioned alterations which substituted a complete new set of objects in modern form for the old concise and imperfectly expressed objects.

In some of these cases the Court was sanctioning the alteration of the objects in a memorandum of association, and in others the adoption of a memorandum and articles of association, in substitution for a deed of settlement. See now sect. 264 and London and Edinburgh Shipping Co. (1909), S. C. 1 Ct. of Sess. But it is apprehended that, as regards the jurisdiction to sanction an alteration of objects, there is no distinction in principle. There is nothing to indicate that in the one case the objects can only be supplemented, but that in the other case they may be re-written with alterations; and accordingly the Court has, in the cases above referred to and many others, exercised its jurisdiction on broad principles.

In relation to this, it is to be noted that sect. 9 of the Act of 1908 (like the repealed Act) empowers the company by special resolution to "alter" its objects, and not merely to "extend" or "add" to them.

Kekewich, J., in Carlisle and Cumberland Banking Co. (July 16th, 1901) said he was sorry Consell Iron Co., supra, had been reported, as he did not understand Cozens-Hardy, J., to have done more than express his first impression.

In several cases companies constituted by deed of settlement have, under the repealed Act, adopted a memorandum and articles of association in lieu of the deed of settlement, including the several banks and insurance companies and wagon company above mentioned. This useful power is now contained in a late section of the Act of 1908, s. 264.

When a company formed not for the purposes of gain and without the word "Limited" as part of its name, desires to alter its objects, it must first submit the proposed alterations to the Board of Trade. St. Hilda's Incorporated College, Cheltenham, (1901) 1 Ch. 556.

Confirmation by the Court. "The alteration shall not take effect until and except in so far as it is confirmed on petition by the Court which has jurisdiction to make an order for winding up the company." Sect. 9 (2).

What companies. As to the companies which may take advantage of the Act, and its scope as defined by the Courts, see supra, pp. 1310, 1311.

The Court. As to the Courts and judges which had jurisdiction under the repealed Act, see Mining Shares Investment Co., (1893) 2 Ch. 660, and supra, p. 1265.

The Court, in sects. 9 and 264 of the Act, means the Court having jurisdiction to wind up the company (sect. 285), and as to this, see sects. 131 and 133. The jurisdiction is exercisable by the judges of the Chancery Division, including the winding-up judges, and the latter have not exclusive jurisdiction. Islington and General Electric Supply, W. N. (1892) 81; Essex and Suffolk Equitable Insur. Soc., Ltd., W. N. (1909) 102. The Court has jurisdiction even where the company has no capital or shares. Re North of England Iron Steamship Assoc., (1900) 1 Ch. 481.

Transfer to County Court. Where the paid-up capital of the company did not exceed 10,000*l.*, and the petition was presented in the High Court instead of the County Court, Wright, J., confirmed the alteration, but ordered the proceedings to be transferred to the County Court. Rugley Gas Co., W. N. (1899) 127; Southsea Garage, 27 T. L. R. 295.

Where the company is registered under sect. 10 of the Act of 1908 (replacing sect. 23 of the Companies Act, 1867) by licence of the Board of Trade without the addition to its name of the word "limited," the proper course is to apply in the first instance to the Board of Trade, and submit to it the memorandum showing all the proposed alterations; and if the Board approve them as being consistent with the continuation of the licence, the Court will then entertain the company's application for the sanction of the Court. St. Hilda's Incorporated College, Cheltenham, (1901) 1 Ch. 556.

Thus, where the original principal object of an association registered under sect. 23 was to encourage sheep-breeding, but was confined to the United Kingdom, and the object-clause proposed to be inserted was as follows:—

"(a) To encourage and improve the breeding of sheep and to promote the general interests of sheep-breeders in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, the British Colonies, and any foreign country, and, with a view thereto, to admit to membership of the association [representatives of], and to affiliate or federate any association or society of sheep-breeders, whether incorporated or not, and whether at present existing or to be hereafter found in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland or elsewhere."

the Board of Trade required the insertion of the words in square brackets and the following addition:—

"(b) None of the funds of the association shall be paid to any affiliated or federated association or society which does not prohibit payment of dividend or profit to its members."

And the alterations were sanctioned subject to the above amendments. National Sheep-Breeders' Association, Buckley, J., August 8th, 1902.

Petition. Sub-sect. 2 shows that the application for confirmation must be by petition. For examples of petitions, see Forms 651—653, infra.

Summons and evidence. As to the summons with reference to creditors and fixing date of hearing of petitions, and as to the evidence, see Form 654, infra, and notes.

The order made in chambers, or, in the alternative, the certificate as to creditors, will follow Form 655 or Form 656, infra.

Debenture holders and creditors. The Court must, before confirming any alteration, be satisfied as to notices to debenture holders, &c.

Sub-sect. 3 contemplates notices being given by advertisement before the petition is heard. Directions as to this advertisement are given in the above-mentioned summons. For examples of advertisements, see infra, Forms 658, 659.

The Court may add words to the resolution so as to limit the extended objects. Spurs & Pond, W. N. (1895) 135; Fleetwood Estate Co., W. N. (1897) 20, and see infra, Form 660.

For examples of orders on petitions, see Forms 660-663a, infra.

When the order is not passed and entered within the fifteen days limited by sub sect. 6 (Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 9 (6)) for filing the order, i.e., the Court will extend the time for registration. Reversionary Interest Society, W. N. (1892) 60; Brin's Oxygen Co., W. N. (1899) 41.

A supplemental order extending the time was made by Swinfen Eady, J., in Lincoln and Lindsey Bank, November 12th, 1902.

Advertisement of the order is sometimes required as a condition. See p. 1311, pra, and Form 663b. There is jurisdiction to require it, but, as a general rule, it will not be required, per Stirling, J., Leicester Banking Co., W. N. (1897) 3. In one case Kekewich, J., directed the order to be advertised in the same way as the petition was advertised. Copper Mines Tinplate Co., W. N. (1897) 20.

Form 651.

Petition to confirm extension of objects

In the matter of The — Coy, Limtd.
and

In the matter of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

To His Majesty's High Court of Justice:

The humble petition of The — Coy, Limtd.

SHOWETH as follows:—

1. Your petr, the above-named coy (herein called "the coy"), was incorporated in the year 1888, under the Cos Acts, 1862 to 1886, as a coy limtd by shares.

2. The registered office of the coy is situate at, &c.

3. The capital of the coy is 1,000,000*l.*, divided into 100,000 shares of 10*l.* each, in respect whereof the sum of 5*l.* per share constitutes a reserved liability, and is not capable of being called up except in the event of and for the purpose of the coy being wound up. All the said shares have been issued and are paid up to the extent of 1*l.* per share.

4. The objects for which the coy was established are set forth in clause 3 of its memorandum of association as follows:—[Here set out the objects.]

5. Shortly after its incorporation the coy commenced, and has continued ever since, to carry on business, and has carried on the same with considerable success.

6. By special resolution of the coy duly passed and confirmed in accordance with sect. 69 of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, at

Form 651 extraordinary general meetings of the coy, held resply on. &c., it was resolved as follows, that is to say:—

"That the provisions of the memdum of assen of the coy with respect to the coy's objects be altered [by adding to paragraph 6 of clause 3 of such memdum of assen the words following, that is to say," &c., &c.].

7. The proposed extension of the objects of the coy is required to enable the coy to carry on its business more efficiently, and also to carry on certain businesses and classes of business which, under existing circumstances, may conveniently and advantageously be combined with the business of the coy.

8. In the course of such business the coy has accumulated a reserve fund of upwards of 44,000*l.* besides its original capital of 100,000*l.* which includes 76,209*l.* 14*s.* 0*d.* vested in trustees. It has now a large and continually extending connection, and it has extensive opportunities of doing business of the character authorized by the proposed extension of objects, and experience has shown that its objects as they stand are inconveniently restricted, and that its existing business is detrimentally affected by the absence of the powers which would be conferred by the objects set forth in the resolution. Those additional objects are required in order to enable the coy to meet the wants of its customers, and to take full advantage of the opportunities which it has for doing business.

9. It is apprehended that on the true construction of the coy's memdum of assen the existing objects of the coy comprise some of the objects set forth in the sd special resolution, and in particular indemnity business would appear to fall within the existing objects of the coy, and some of the other objects set forth in the resolution would seem to fall within the words of paragraph 12 of clause 3 of the sd memdum of assen, which empower the coy "to carry on any other business which may seem to the coy capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with the above," but in order to facilitate the business of the coy it is desirable to preclude any question or doubt in the matter.

10. The coy has no debenture debt whatever, but is usually indebted to general creditors for wages and salaries and otherwise to the extent of about 300*l.* a week, and this indebtedness varies from week to week as the accounts come in and are pd off.

11. The coy has issued in the course of its business a large number of policies of guarantee and other obligations which are now current.

12. The coy has ample working capital, and its assets are far more than sufficient to pay all its debts and to make good the whole of its pd-up capital, and, moreover, has plenty of capital to work its business and the proposed additional business.

13. No one will be prejudiced by the proposed extension of the coy's objects, and it is just and equitable that the sd special resolution for the proposed extension of such objects should be confirmed.

Your petir therefore humbly prays as follows:-

Form 651.

- (1) That the alteration of the coy's objects proposed to be effected by the sd special resolution set forth in paragraph 6 of this peton may be confirmed by the Court pursuant to sect. 9 of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908.
- (2) Or that such other order may be made in the premises as to this Honourable Court may seem meet.

And your petitioner will ever pray, &c.

NOTE.- It is not intended to serve this petition on any person.

8. By special resolution of the coy duly passed and confirmed at general meetings of the coy, held resply on, &c., it was resolved as follows, that is to say:-

Form 652.

Another.
[Power to acquire other business.]

"That Article 9 of the deed of settlement of the coy, dated, &c., be altered by inserting therein, immediately before the words 'but of no other adventure,' the words 'including the acquisition and taking over of the goodwill of any other banking business, and the whole or any part of the assets and liabilities of the proprietors thof in connection therewith.'"

9. The proposed extension of the objects of the coy as afsd is required to enable the coy to carry on its business more economically and more efficiently than heretofore, and to attain its main purpose by new or improved means, and also to enlarge the local area of its operations, and, further, to enable it to carry on some business or businesses which under existing circumstances may conveniently or advantageously be combined with the business of the coy.

10. In particular, if the sd extension of objects is sanctioned, the coy will be in a position to adopt and carry out the provisional arrangements which have already been made for the acquisition by the coy on favourable terms of another important and profitable banking business, and the acquisition of that business would enable the coy to carry on its business more economically and more profitably, for it would extend the bulk of the coy's business and profits without involving a proportionate increase in management expenses. Unless the coy's objects are extended as afsd, it cannot acquire this business.

11. There is now great competition in banking business, and that kind of business is not so profitable as it was. The larger a banking business is the more economically and profitably it can be carried on, and the best and cheapest way of adding to the extent of the bank's business is to acquire and absorb other businesses of a sound and profitable character, but by reason of the limtd scope of its objects this course is not at present open to the coy.

12. The financial business of the coy is good. At the date of the Form 652. last balance-sheet issued by the directors, that is to say, that of the 31st day of December, 1910, the financial position was shown to be and was as follows:—

Assets other than uncalled capital	£
Debts and liabilities	£
 Surplus	 £

To which must be added:—

1. Capital uncalled, but capable of being called up on the present issued 40,000 shares at 5l. per share	£
2. Reserve capital only capable of being called up in the event of winding-up on the present issued 40,000 shares, that is to say, at 10l. per share	£
 Total assets over liabilities	 £

The coy has moreover, unissued 1,000 shares of 25l. each, or 100,000l. of capital. The position of the coy since the date of the sd balance-sheet has not materially altered.

13. The profits of the coy for the year ending the 31st day of December, 1910, were upwards of £—

14. The market value of the coy's shares with 10l. per share pd up is 24l. per share or thbts.

15. No one, &c.

Petition for obtaining memorandum and articles under the Act of 1908, s. 264.

1. Your petr, the above-named coy (hnfr called "the coy"), was established by a deed of settlement, dated the 31st day of March, 1854, and was completely registered under the Act of the 7th & 8th Vict. c. 110, under the name of "The L. Fire and Life Insurance Coy." and was registered in the year 1862 under the Cos Act, 1862, as an unlimited coy, under the same name. The sd deed of settlement has from time to time been altered by resolution of the members of the coy, passed and confirmed in conformity with the sd Acts resply

2. In the year ——— the business of the C. Life Assurance Coy was, with the sanction of the Chancery Division of Her Majesty's High Ct of Justice, amalgamated with that of the coy, and the name of the coy was then altered to its present name, that is to say, the L. and C. Fire and Life Insurance Coy.

Form 653

3. The registered office of the coy is situate at

4. The capital of the coy is 2,000,000*l.*, divided into 200,000 shares of 10*l.* each, 143,120 of which have been issued, and are pd up to the extent of 12*s.* per share, and no more.

5. The main objects of the coy were originally set forth in clause 1 of the sd deed of settlement, but in the month of Dec., 1891, that clause was modified by special resolution, so as to extend the coy's objects, and such special resolution was, in the month of January 1892, sanctioned by this Honourable Ct under the Cos (Memdum of Asson) Act, 1890. The sd clause, as thus modified, states, in effect, that the shareholders are associated as a coy "for effecting insurances," &c., &c.

6. Shortly after its incorporation the coy commenced business, and has ever since continued to carry on the same with considerable success.

7. The form of the coy's constitution having been found inconvenient, and the deed of settlement afd having been found cumbersome, it became desirable to alter the form of the coy's constitution and accordingly a memdum and arts of asson were prepared, under the supervision of the directors of the coy, and were recommended by them for adoption, and with reference thereto the special resolution hntfr mentd was passed

8. By special resolution, &c. (as in clause 6 of Form 519), it was resolved as follows, that is to say:-

9. The following is a copy of the sd proposed memdum of asson that is to say, &c.

10. Clause 3 of the sd memdum of asson, in accordance with the modern practice, specifies the objects of the coy in considerable detail, but not so as to alter or extend the leading and principal objects of the coy. The adoption, however, of this clause involves a limited extension of objects, in order to invest the coy with ancillary powers which it desires to possess, and which are conveniently vested in other like cos. The proposed arts of asson contain a code of regulations suitable for the purposes of the coy.

11. The alteration in the form of the coy's constitution by substituting a memdum and arts of asson as afd for a deed of settlement, is expedient, for the following among other reasons, that is to say:

(1.) Because, having regard to the terms of sect. 263 of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, which is applicable to the coy, doubts may be raised as to which clauses of the deed of settlement of the coy must be regarded as conditions, and which must be reg:l'd as regulations of the coy within the meaning of that section, and accordingly it is practically impossible without thus altering the form of the constitution to simplify the provisions of the deed of settlement as desired.

- (2.) Because it is desirable, in accordance with modern practice, to express the objects of the coy in greater detail so as to avoid and preclude, so far as may be, all doubts as to the coy's powers within the ordinary scope of its business.
- (3.) Because a constitution by memorandum and articles of association is now so well understood both at home and abroad that the possession of such a constitution facilitates business, and precludes questions as to how far a coy constituted by deed of settlement, though registered, stands in a like position.
- (4.) Because in order to meet the existing demands and prospective development of business and the growing competition, it is necessary to secure some extension of the objects of the coy.

12. All the objects of the coy set forth in clause 3 of the proposed memorandum of association are necessary for the due working and development of the coy's business, in accordance with the practice of assurance coys of the kind as now prevailing in England, and so far as the adoption of such objects involves an extension of the present objects, such extension is required to enable the coy to carry on its business more economically and more efficiently than heretofore, and to attain its main purpose by new or improved means, and also to enlarge the local area of its operations, and further enable it to carry on some business or businesses which under existing circumstances may conveniently or advantageously be combined with the business of the coy.

13. With the exception of the obligations of the coy in respect of policies and annuities, and of the current expenses for the management and conduct of its affairs, and of the sum of £ — and current interest owing in respect of debenture stock of that amount, issued as hereinafter mentioned, the coy is not indebted to any persons or companies whatsoever.

14. The said sum of £ — debenture stock was issued by the coy in the year 1909, as authorized by clause 7 of the said deed of settlement, as amended by special resolution in the year 1871. Such clause as amended provides, amongst other things, that in the event of the business of the C. Life Assurance Coy being taken over as aforesaid, the directors of your petitioner might constitute a debenture stock not exceeding £ —, to be called 4 p.c. L. & C. Debenture Stock, the principal of such debenture stock to be made payable on the 31st day of December, 1942, and that such debenture stock should carry interest at the rate of 4 p.c.p.a., and that such interest should be secured as a first charge on the annual profits of the coy applicable to the payment of dividends, and in priority to all such dividends, and that the deed constituting such stock should be in the terms of the draft therein mentioned, and that the said directors might issue such stock in accordance with the agreement for the acquisition of the

15. The sd debenture stock was, in pursuance of such agreemt. issued to the shareholders of the sd C. Life Assurance Coy, or their nominees, as fully pd up, and as pt of the consen for the sd amalgamation, or otherwise dealt with as provided for by such agreemt.

16. The financial position of the coy is extremely good. At the date of the last balance sheet (31st December, 1901), the position was as follows:—

Assets other than uncalled capital	£
Debts and liabilities (here give particulars)	£

---------------	---

To which must be added capital uncalled, but capable of being called up	£
---	---

Total surplus of assets over liabilities	£

The position of the coy since the date of the sd balance sheet has been strengthened financially and otherwise.

17. The profits for the thirteen months ending 31st December, in respect of the coy were upwards of £

18. No one will be prejudiced by the proposed alteration in the form of the constitution of the coy, or by any extension of the coy's objects involved therein; and it is just and equitable that the sd special resolution for substituting the sd memorandum and arts of assen for the sd deed of settlement should be confirmed.

Your petitioner therefore humbly prays as follows:

(1) That the alteration in the form of the coy's constitution proposed, &c.

Let, &c., on the hearing of an applicon on the pt of the Limitd, that it may be declared that the extension of objects proposed by the petition presented herein on the — day of —, will not affect the creditors of the coy. Summons for declaration as to creditors being unaffected by extension, and for fixing date of hearing petition.

Immediately after the presentation of a petition under sect. 9 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, replacing the Companies (Memorandum of Form 654. Association) Act, 1890, a summons should be taken out. The summons may be in the above terms, or it may be an ordinary summons to proceed. It should be supported by affidavit evidence verifying the petition, and stating in what newspapers the advertisements should be inserted in order to bring the matter to the notice of creditors. A copy of the memorandum and articles of association and the original minute book of the proceedings of general meetings should be made exhibits, and there should be strict evidence of the meetings having been duly convened. Omnium Investment Co., (1895) 2 Ch. 127. In due course, the Master, or, if the case is to be heard by the winding-up judge, the Registrar, will give the requisite directions, and either sign a certificate within the fold of the petition as in Form 657, or make an order as in Form 655. Sometimes the summons asks for a declaration that the creditors are not entitled to object. See proviso to sub-sect. 3 of the section.

Form 655. It appearing that there are no debenture holders or creditors who are entitl to object, or persons whose interests are affected by the proposed alteration and extension of objects, the judge directs that this petition is to be placed in the paper for hearing before his Lordship on — day, the — day of —, and that the sd petition and the sd day appointed for the hearing thof, be advertised once each in the London Gazette, the Times, the Standard, the Daily Telegraph, the Daily News, and the Morning Post newspapers. The insertion of the last of such advertisements to be at least ten days before the sd — day of —.

Order in chambers for petition to be heard, and advertisement.

Chief Clerk.

Form 656. Upon the applicon by summons, dated the 16th December, 1897, of the above-named coy, the petitioners named in the petition preferred unto this Ct on the 14th December, 1897, and upon hearing solors for the applicants, and upon reading the sd petition and an afft of E., filed. &c., and the exhibits therein referred to, and it appearing that there are no debenture holders of the above-named coy, and the Ct being of opinion that the advertisements huftr directed will be sufficient notice to all persons whose interests will be affected by the proposed alteration and extension of objects of the above-named coy, it is ordered that the sd peton be placed in the paper for hearing before his Lordship, Mr. Justice Wright, on Wednesday, the 12th day of January, 1898, and that the presentation of the sd peton and the sd day appointed for the hearing thof be advertised on or before the 31st December, 1897, once each in the London Gazette and in the Times newspaper.

It will be noted that the above order confirms the alteration to be effected by the resolutions. This is, no doubt, the correct form: it is what the Act authorizes. But in some cases the order, by an oversight, has been to confirm the resolutions, just as in reduction cases it used to be the practice to confirm the resolutions instead of the reduction.

LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANIES.

Amalgamation and Transfer.

See the provisions of sects. 13 and 14 of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909 (which came into operation 1st July, 1910).

Sect. 13 provides that—

"No assurance company shall amalgamate with another, or transfer its business to another, unless the amalgamation or transfer is sanctioned by the Court in accordance with this section."

These sections—sects. 13, 14—take the place of sect. 14 of the Life Assurance Companies Act, 1870, and on that section it was held by Mr. Justice Chitty, in Royal Farmers', &c. Insurance Co., 25 Feb. 1888, that the section did not confer on a life assurance company power to transfer its business; it merely restricted the company's power, where it had power, and that the Court had no jurisdiction to confirm the transfer, unless it appeared that, apart from the Act, the transaction was within the powers of the company. See also his Lordship's decision to the same effect in Sovereign Life Assurance Co., 42 C. D. 540. When the constitution of the company does not confer the requisite power it can pass a resolution to wind up voluntarily, authorizing a transfer under sect. 192 of the Companies Act, 1908 (sect. 161 of the Companies Act, 1862), and ask the Court to sanction the transfer. Southall v. British Mutual, 6 Ch. 614. This course has been adopted in several cases.

And a company, though not under the Act of 1862 or 1908, may, in exercise of a power to alter the regulations, take power to transfer. Argus Life Assurance Co., 39 C. D. 571.

In a compulsory winding-up the liquidator can, with the sanction of the Court, sell the undertaking under sect. 151 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (corresponding to sect. 95 of the Act of 1862).

There is nothing in this section to bind a policy-holder to accept a policy of the company to which the transfer is made in lieu of his old policy, or to novate, or to release the old company. But there may, of course, be provisions in the constitution of the company sufficient to bind the policy-holders and relieve the transferring company. See Hort's case, 1 C. Div. 307; Dowse's case, 3 C. Div. 384; Cocker's case, ibid. 1; Baily v. British Equitable Assurance Co., (1906) A. C. 35.

It is to be observed that policy-holders will include annuitants. See Sovereign Life (ubi supra).

In the absence of such provisions, the only way to bind the dissentients to novation or release is by proceeding under sect. 120 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908. A policy-holder who is not by the last-mentioned Act, or otherwise, bound to go over to the purchasing company may say, "I look to the old company and to the assets obtained by that company as the consideration for the transfer," and if the old company is in liquidation he can go in and prove, and the shareholders can get nothing till he is paid.

In one case where a life assurance company was being wound up voluntarily under supervision, a scheme of arrangement between the company and its current policy-holders was sanctioned, under which the proportion of the assets of such policy-holders was made over to another company in consideration of new policies of that company being given to such policy-holders. Imperial Life Assurance Society, Bacon, V.-C., March, 1886.

In that case the scheme was not put forward under sect. 14 of the Life Assurance Act, 1870, but under the Joint Stock Companies Arrangement Act, 1870 (Companies Act, 1908, s. 120). Afterwards, one of the policy-holders belonging to the class intended to be bound by the scheme sought to prove in the winding-up of the transferring company; but it was held by Kay, J., that he was bound by the scheme, and the Court of Appeal affirmed that decision.

As to notice to policy-holders, under the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, sect. 13 refers to sect. 136 of the Companies Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, which is as follows:

"Notices requiring to be served by the company upon the shareholders may, unless expressly required to be served personally, be served by the same being transmitted through the post, directed according to the registered address or other known address of the shareholder, within such period as to admit of its being delivered in the due course of delivery within the period (if any) prescribed for the giving of such notice; and in proving such service it shall be sufficient to prove that such notice was properly directed, and that it was so put into the post-office."

And the Act also provides in sect. 27 that "Any notice which is by this Act required to be sent to any policy-holder may be addressed and sent to the person to whom notices respecting such policy are usually sent, and any notice so addressed and sent shall be deemed and taken to be notice to the holder of such policy."

It is unnecessary to send notice to the holders of policies taken out between the presentation and the hearing of the petition. Universal Life Assurance Society, 18 T. L. R. 198.

As to notice to policy-holders abroad, see Briton, &c. Co., 35 W. R. 803.

There have been very few proceedings for amalgamation or transfer since the Act of 1870. The following are some of the principal instances:—Citizen Assurance to Provident, 1871; London and Southwick to London and Lancashire, 1880 (see 28 W. R. 565; 42 L. T. 247); Colonial Assurance to London, Edinburgh, and Glasgow, 1891; Great Britain Mutual to National, 1882; Royal Farmers to Alliance, 1888; Argus Life to Imperial, 1888; Provincial to Alliance, 1890; Briton Medical to Sun, 1892; Crown to Law Union, Jan. 1892; Reliance to Norwich Union, 1893; Positive to British Empire (Jan. 1896); Imperial to Alliance, 1902; London, Edinburgh, and Glasgow to Pearl Life, 1910.

Winding-up of Subsidiary Companies.

Sect. 16 of the Act (Assurance Companies Act, 1909) provides for the winding-up of subsidiary companies, that is, of companies which have transferred their business whenever the principal or transferee company is being wound-up; so that the Court can adjust all the equities; but to constitute a "subsidiary company" within the meaning of the section there must be a transfer of the business of the company, or some part thereof, to the "principal company." A treaty of re-insurance is not such a transfer. A guarantee of all the policies is not such a transfer. Nor is a transfer of the majority of the shares of a company a "transfer" of the business. It merely makes the transferee company the principal shareholder in the business. Leicestershire Plate Glass, Fire and Rural Life Insurance Co., 105 L. T. 570.

Deposit.

As to dealing with the 20,000*l.* statutory deposit in the liquidation of a life assurance company which transfers its business to another company, see In re Life and Health Assurance Association, Limited, (1910) W. N. 45. In that case there was a petition by the company and its liquidators, and the purchaser company prayed that out of the deposit fund 5,500*l.* might be paid to the purchaser company as representing the interests of the transferred policy-holders therein, and the balance paid to the liquidators; and it was held that the association could not by transferring the life assurance contracts relieve itself of liability thereunder in the absence of a release or novation by the assured; but on general principles the judge would be prepared to hold that no part of the deposit could be paid to the association until the Court was satisfied that all the assured had released, and thereby abandoned their contractual rights to have the deposit returned to answer their claims. Sect. 7 of the (repealed) Life Assurance Companies Act, 1872, as to there being no abandonment of claim by a policy-holder unless by some writing signed by him, and the cases of Ex parte Scottish Economic Life Assurance Society (1890), 15 C. D. 220, and In re Popular Life Assurance Co., Limited, (1909) 1 Ch. 80, were referred to by the judge.

Sometimes an amalgamation or transfer is carried out by special Act of Parliament.

Reduction of Contracts

The Assurance Companies Act, 1909, s. 19, empowers the Court, in the case of an insolvent company, to reduce the amount of its contracts in lieu of making a winding-up order. This power has only been exercised in one case Great Britain Mutual Society. There a winding-up order was made by Hall, V.-C.; but the Court of Appeal (November, 1880) discharged it, and directed a meeting of policy-holders to be held for the purpose of ascertaining whether they desired the contracts to be reduced: 16 C. D. 246. Hall, V.-C., then referred it to an eminent accountant "to inquire and report upon what terms, and subject to what conditions, the contracts of the society should be reduced in place of making a winding-up order, and to settle a scheme for reducing such contracts for the approval of the Court." Questions of importance having arisen, the referee stated a special case, and the opinion of the Court was taken thereon. Great Britain Mutual, 19 C. D. 39; 20 C. D. 351.

The Court held, (1) that the date of the presentation of the petition was the one at which the calculation should be made for settling the scheme; (2) that the claims of policy-holders and annuitants which had matured before the date of the presentation of the petition must be paid in full; (3) that annuities payable after that date must be reduced; (4) that participating and non-participating policy-holders current must be reduced pari passu; (5) that all payments in arrear of premiums, including half-premiums left as a charge on the policies, must be paid in full.

The scheme was then settled, and in due course it was confirmed by the Court, 6th May, 1882. Shortly afterwards an agreement was made with another company, under which that company undertook to receive the premiums, and, in consideration of a commission, apply them in paying the claims as they matured, and this agreement was sanctioned by the Court.

In referring it to Chambers to consider the scheme for reduction, the Court directed separate meetings of the shareholders and policy-holders to be held for that purpose. British Medical General Life Assurance, 54 L. T. 14.

The above case shows that the power to reduce contracts, conferred by the Act of 1870, is defective, inasmuch as it leaves untouched claims which happen to have matured before the presentation of the petition. Where such claims amount to a considerable sum, it would seem better to take a winding-up order, and then adopt a scheme under sect. 120 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, either by sale to a new company or by a subsequent stay of proceedings. This can either provide for a reconstruction by transfer to a new company, in consideration of policies of reduced amounts, or it may provide for a reduction of policies, and then a stay of all further proceedings in the winding-up. The difficulty which arose in regard to a scheme in Albert Life Assurance Company, 6 Ch. 381, would seem no longer to exist, since the mode of valuing policies and annuities has been settled by the Life Assurance Act, 1872. Upon such a scheme the matured claims would not be entitled to preferential payment.

A scheme proceeding on a principle of inequality of reduction is not within the section. Per Buckley, J., Nelson & Co., (1905) 1 Ch. 551.

The humble petition of, &c., the directors of the above-named company sheweth as follows:

1. The object of this petition is to obtain the sanction of the Court, as required by sect. 13 of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, to the transfer of the business of the above-named company (hereinafter called "the B. Company") to the A. Company (hereinafter called "the A. Company").

2. The B. Company is a company which was originally constituted by deed of settlement, dated the — day of —, and has been registered under the Companies Act, 1862. The said deed of settlement provided, amongst other things, that the style or firm of that company should be the B. Company. And that the objects and business thereof should, amongst others, be to grant or effect insurances on a life or lives, and survivorships on the joint continuance of two or more lives, or for any term or terms of years to be absolutely or contingently determinable on a life or lives; and also to grant and to purchase and sell endowments, annuities, life, reversionary, and other estates and interests personal, and to advance money by way of loan on personal security; and also to grant assurances against fire upon dwelling-houses, warehouses, houses of business, farm buildings, farming stock and crops, and all other property whatsoever, the risk of which was ascertainable by way of average; and also the goods and general outfit of passengers, in steam or sailing vessels, against fire or loss at sea.

3. Clause 131 of the deed of settlement is as follows:—

"That an extraordinary board of directors specially called for that purpose may come to a resolution either to sell or transfer the business of the company to any other society or company of a similar nature, or to purchase or accept a transfer from such other society or company as last aforesaid of their businesses, and upon such terms and conditions and stipulations and agreements as the said board shall think fit, and if such resolution shall be adopted and confirmed by a majority of at least three-fourths of the proprietors present, either personally or by proxy, to be given in such manner as is hereinbefore in that behalf mentioned at an extraordinary general meeting specially called for that purpose, but not otherwise, then such sale or transfer or acceptance of purchase or transfer, as the case may be, shall be effected or take place."

4. The original capital of the B. Company was 100,000*l.*, divided into 10,000 shares of 10*l.* each, which in September, 1853, was duly increased to 200,000*l.*, divided into 20,000 shares of 10*l.* each, all of which shares have been issued, and the sum of 1*l.* 5*s.* per share paid up thereon.

5. The B. Company commenced business as a fire insurance office only in the year 1852, shortly after its formation, and in September, 1853, took up the business of life assurance also, and made fair progress in both departments down to the year 1864, in which year and several succeeding years considerable losses occurred in its fire department, and owing to these circumstances the B. Company accepted an offer from the A. Company to purchase all the business of the said fire department, and such purchase was duly carried into effect in the year .

6. Since the sale of the business of the said fire department, the B. Company has continued to carry on the business of a life assurance office and other businesses authorized by the said deed of settlement, except those of a fire insurance office, and has met with considerable success and profit thereby.

7. In the month of December, 1909, the A. Company proposed to the B. Company to take a transfer of the business of the latter company on the terms and conditions contained in the conditional agreement next hereinafter stated, and accordingly that agreement was entered into.

8. The said conditional agreement is in the terms following: [set out].

9. The said agreement was executed by your petitioner R. V. K., the first named party thereto under the authority conferred by the resolution of the board of directors next hereinafter stated.

10. At an extraordinary board of directors of the B. Company, specially called for the purpose, and held on the — day of —, before the execution of the said conditional agreement, a resolution was passed unanimously to the effect that the chairman of the board (being your said petitioner R. V. K.) should be, and he was thereby authorized and requested to sign the said agreement on behalf of the B. Company, and at the same meeting it was further resolved unanimously as follows:

"That the business and undertaking of this company be sold and transferred to the A. Company on the terms and conditions set out in the conditional agreement dated the — day of —, —, and made between R. V. K. of —, chairman of this company, for and on behalf of this company, of the one part, and the A. Company, by their chairman, —, of the other part."

11. At an extraordinary general meeting of the proprietors of the B. Company, specially called for the purpose, and held on the 27th day of February, 1908, the following resolution was passed unanimously, that is to say:

"That the following resolution passed by an extraordinary board of directors, held on the 12th day of February instant, be adopted and confirmed: — That the business and undertaking of this company be sold and transferred to the A. Company on the terms and conditions set out in the conditional agreement dated the — day of —, —, and made between R. V. K. of —, in the county of —, chairman of this company, for and on behalf of this company, of the one part, and the A. Company, by their chairman, —, of the other part."

12. On the — day of —, —, the B. Company forwarded to each policyholder, by the same being transmitted in manner provided by sect. 136 of the Form 664. Companies Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, for the transmission to shareholder of notices not required to be served personally, a statement of the nature of the said proposed transfer, together with an abstract containing the material facts embodied in the said conditional agreement, and also copies of the actuarial reports upon which such agreement was founded.

13. The said conditional agreement will, on the day of , have remained open for the inspection of the policy-holders and shareholders of the B. Company at the office of that company for a period of fifteen days from the issue of the before-mentioned abstract.

14. The A. Company is a company constituted by the A. Company Act, 1886 and was originally formed in the year 1821 by deed of settlement dated the 4th day of August in that year, with a capital of 5,000,000*l.* divided into 250,000 shares of 20*l.* each, all of which have been issued, and the sum of 2*l.* 4*s.* per share has been paid up thereon.

15. The A. Company carries on a large and successful business, and the present market value of its shares is from 10*l.* to 11*l.* per share, and its present invested funds amount to very nearly 3,000,000*l.*, and its premium and other income amounts to upwards of 625,000*l.* per annum, and it is one of the most important of the principal life assurance companies in the United Kingdom.

16. By the regulations of the A. Company it is, among other things, provided and declared as follows:

"The company may from time to time and at any time, with the sanction of an extraordinary general Court, acquire, sell, or transfer, on such terms and conditions as may be arranged, the whole or any part of the business, assets, undertaking and liabilities of any other company carrying on any assurance business which this company is authorized to carry on, and the terms and conditions aforesaid may include provision for payment by the company of the expenses of and incident to the winding-up and dissolution of the selling company, and provision for satisfaction of any part of the price or consideration by the issue of shares in the company credited as partly paid up, and may provide for the concession to the policy-holders, annuitants, creditors, directors, employés, and members of the selling company, of any special rights, privileges, and advantages, and may include any other provisions which the directors may think expedient: and the agreement containing such terms and conditions shall, when sanctioned by an extraordinary general Court and confirmed by the High Court of Justice (when requisite), be effective, notwithstanding any inconsistency between the provisions thereof and the provisions of the company's laws and regulations."

17. The conditional agreement aforesaid was submitted to an extraordinary general court of the A. Company, duly convened and held on the day of , , and at that meeting the resolution following was unanimously passed:

"That it is expedient to acquire and take over the business, assets, and undertaking of the B. Company, and that with a view thereto the conditional agreement in that behalf submitted to this Court, dated the day of , , be, and the same is hereby, sanctioned and approved, and that the directors be and they are hereby authorized to apply to the High Court of Justice to confirm such agreement, and when confirmed to carry the same into effect."

18. The arrangement intended to be effected by the said conditional agreement is an equitable arrangement, and it is expedient, and it will be for the mutual benefit of the proprietors and policy-holders of the B. Company and the A. Company that the said agreement should be confirmed and carried into effect.

Your petitioners therefore humbly pray

1. That the said conditional agreement dated the day of , , and the transfer intended to be effected thereby, may be sanctioned Petition for restoration to register of company's name.

To His Majesty's High Court of Justice.

The humble petition of — and —, contributories of the above-named company, sheweth as follows:

1. The above-named company (hereinafter called the company) was incorporated in the month of May, 1875, as a company limited by shares, for the objects specified in its memorandum of association, which objects included, amongst others—(1) The purchasing, leasing, or otherwise acquiring in fee simple, or for any estate, term, or interest whatsoever, of any freehold, copyhold, leasehold, or other real or personal property whatsoever, or any undivided share or interest therein, or any easements, rights, liberties, or privileges in, on, over, or through any lands or hereditaments; and (2) the maintaining, cultivating, repairing, altering, demolishing, rebuilding, improving, developing, building upon, or otherwise improving and realising, all or any part or parts of the freehold, copyhold, leasehold, and real estate of the company, and the managing, working, letting, leasing (either with or without a premium, and for any term), exchanging, partitioning, selling (in consideration of gross sums only, or wholly or partially of rents), mortgaging or otherwise dealing with and disposing of all or any part or parts thereof respectively, and the acquiring, granting, releasing, or extinguishing of any rents, rights, easements, or privileges for or in respect of the same or any part or parts thereof, or in any wise belonging or appertaining thereto respectively, in such manner and on such terms and for such purposes as the company think proper.

2. By the memorandum of association of the company it was declared that the registered office of the company would be situated in England, and that the capital of the company was 20,000*l.*, divided into 4,000 shares of 5*l.* each.

3. Shortly after its incorporation the company commenced business, and in the month of December, 1875, it acquired, on lease for 995 years from the 1st day of November, 1875, a plot of land at Coalshaw Green, in the township of Chadderton, in the county of Lancaster, at a rent of 120*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* per annum. Subsequently the company sublet part of this land by deed dated the 4th August, 1884, for a term of 985 years, at a rent of 85*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* per annum, and on part of the remainder the company erected a number of cottages and the residue was retained by the company for building purposes, and is still occupied.

4. The company's building operations did not prove remunerative, and considerable difficulty was experienced in letting the cottages so erected, and in disposing of any further land, and in consequence the company, since the year 1880 (pending the advent of better times), abstained from erecting any further buildings, and confined its operations to receiving the rents arising from its property and applying the same in payment of the rates, taxes, and outgoings, and the administration expenses of the company.

5. Prior to the month of June, 1885, 1,850 5l. shares in the capital of the company had been issued, and the sum of 5,690*l.* had been paid up thereon: 70 of the said shares have been fully paid up, and 3*l.* per share on each of the others. Your petitioner, W. H. K., holds 100 of the said shares, upon which the sum of 3*l.* per share has been paid up, and your petitioner, T. P., holds 25 of the said shares, upon which 3*l.* per share has been paid up. Your said petitioners have respectively held their said shares for several years.

6. On or about the — day of — the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies in England, pursuant to sect. 7 of the Companies Act, 1880, struck the name of the company off the register of companies kept by him in accordance with the Companies Act, 1862, and notice thereof was published by him in the London Gazette on the 17th July, 1885. It is alleged by the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, and your petitioners have no reason to doubt, that, before striking off the company's name as aforesaid, the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies duly sent the notices, and otherwise complied with the provisions contained in paragraphs 1, 2, and 3 of clause 7 of the said Act: but, through the negligence of the company's secretary, the several notices sent to the company, in accordance with those provisions, were not communicated to the directors or members of the company, nor did the notice (published in the London Gazette pursuant to paragraph (3) of such section) come to the knowledge of the company's directors until after the company had been struck off the register.

7. W. H. K. and T. P., your petitioners, were not at any time aware that proceedings were being taken with a view to striking the company's name off the register. Nor was the company at any time aware thereof, save as aforesaid.

8. On the 17th July, 1885, the company was carrying on business and was in operation, that is to say, it was in possession of the property aforesaid and of divers other assets, and was receiving the income arising from such property, and paying the outgoings in connection therewith, and was negotiating for the sale or leasing of further parts of such property. The property of the company, exclusive of unpaid or uncalled capital, is of the value of 2,500*l.*, and the debts of the company do not exceed 200*l.*

9. Your petitioners feel aggrieved by the name of the company having been struck off the register, and it is just and equitable it should be restored to the register.

Your petitioners therefore humbly pray as follows:

1. That the name of the company may be restored to the register of companies in England, and that the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies may be directed to advertise in his official name in the London Gazette the order of the Court to be made on this petition:
2. Or that such further or other relief may be given as to this Honourable Court may seem meet.

And your petitioners will ever pray, &c.

NOTE. —It is intended to serve this petition on the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies.

Upon the petition of the Hollinwood Estate Company, Limited:

And the above-named company by their counsel undertaking to send in to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies (now the Registrar of Companies) their returns now in arrear:

This Court doth order that the name of the above-named Hollinwood Estate Company, Limited, be restored to the register of joint stock companies. And, pursuant to the Companies Act, 1880 (now sect. 242 (6) of the Consolidation Act, 1908), the said Hollinwood Estate Company, Limited, is to be deemed to have continued in existence as if the name had never been struck off.

And it is ordered that the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies do advertise this order in his official name in the London Gazette. And it is ordered that the petitioners do pay to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies his costs of and occasioned by the said petition, such costs to be taxed by the taxing master. Hollinwood Estate Co., Limited (Chitty, J., 15th December, 1886. A. 203). W. N. (1887) 17.

The present jurisdiction to make the order for restoration is given by sect. 242 (6) of the Companies Act, 1908 (sect. 7 of the Companies Act, 1880, amended by sect. 26 of the Companies Act, 1900).

Sect. 7 of the Act of 1880 was a singular specimen of drafting. By paragraph (4) the company was to be dissolved, yet by paragraph (5) it was still to be regarded as in existence, for it might feel aggrieved and apply to be restored to the register; further, by paragraph (4), it was "provided that the liability of every director, managing officer, and member of the company should continue and might be enforced as if the company had not been dissolved"; and finally, notwithstanding the dissolution, the company might be wound up by the Court. Anglo-American, &c. Co., (1898) 1 Ch. 100.

There have been many cases of restorations under the Act of 1880, and considering the many hundreds of companies which have been struck off the register, it is surprising that more cases for restoration have not occurred. A company which is being wound up is still in operation within the section. Financial Corporation, 27 S. J. 199; Estates Investment Co., Ibid. 585.

Orders for restoration have usually been made by the winding-up judge, and by judges exercising his jurisdiction, e.g., Form 695 in Part II., 10th ed.; but North, J., held that he also had jurisdiction (City Lands Investment Corporation, W. N. (1897) 162); and although Buckley, J., appears to have entertained some doubt whether the application ought not to be made to the winding-up judge, Kekewich, J., made an order in Chaco (Paraguay) Land Co., W. N. (1901) 124. See also Part II. p. 727.

Before the Act of 1900 was passed it was held that a creditor was not a person "aggrieved" within the meaning of sub-sect. 5 of sect. 7 of the Act of 1880 (Anglo-American, &c. Co., (1898) 1 Ch. 100); but this was altered by the Act of 1900 (see now the Act of 1908, s. 242 (6)). As a result, neither the company, nor a member, nor a creditor, can now obtain a winding-up order without first restoring the company's name.

The petition should be intitled "In the matter of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and of the Company." Johannesburg Mining and General Syndicate, W. N. (1901) 46. The same case shows that the liquidator of a company in course of winding-up cannot petition in his own name alone, but must add the company as a petitioner.

For further orders, see Part II. pp. 728, 729. When a company is in winding-up it is not the practice for the order to require the returns, which ought to have been sent in previously to the winding-up, to be made to the Registrar. Johannesburg Mining and General Syndicate, W. N. (1901) 46.

In a case of Brown-Bayley's Steel Works, 21 T. L. R. 375, Buckley, J., dealing with this point, referred to the returns, &c., which had to be made under sects. 26 and 45 of the Act of 1862, and sect. 19 of the Act of 1900 (see now Companies Act, 1908, s. 26), and complained of the frequency with which the duties as to making returns were neglected, and while pointing out that he had no power to impose a penalty (on ordering restoration of a company's name) he simply made an order that the name of the company should be restored on the terms of its making the proper returns and paying the costs of the Board of Trade, and omitted the usual direction that the company should "be deemed to have continued in existence as if its name had never been struck off," thus, it was suggested, leaving officers and members of the company under possible liabilities. It would, however, seem that the omission did not, in fact, have this effect.

The Court must be satisfied before restoring the company's name that some object is to be gained by the restoration, e.g., that some debts or calls are unpaid, North, J. Carpenter v. Patent Boat Co., 1 Meg. C. R. 26.

Thus, in British Incandescent Heating Syndicate, 9 Feb., 1904, Byrne, J., dismissed the application to restore with costs when the only apparent objects of the restoration were to save the stamp duty payable on a reconstruction, and to obtain payment of certain costs.

As to a vesting order after dissolution, see Taylor's Agreement Trusts, (1904) 2 Ch. 737; Re Higginson, (1899) 1 Q. B. 385; Bonave Road (No. 9), (1906) 1 Ch. 359.

In the case of a company in liquidation the plaintiffs' address should run:

"—, plaintiffs, who are a company in liquidation. The liquidator is [name of liquidator], of [address of liquidator]." See Ann. Pr. 1912, App. A. p. 2.

In the case of a foreign corporation registered in England (see Ann. Pr. 1912, Ord. IX. r. 8 (nn), p. 60, "Foreign Corporation—Service in England." &c.) the plaintiffs' address should run thus:—"—, plaintiffs, who are a foreign corporation registered in England under sect. 274 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908. The registered name and address of the person to be served are [here add registered name and address]." See Ann. Pr. Vol. II. p. 2; and as to affidavit of service, see App. B. Pt. I. No. 4A.

As to the title and assignment of action in the case of debenture actions, see Part III. 10th ed. p. 475.

See R. S. C. 1883, Appendix A. for other forms of writ.

Ord. XX. r. 1 provides that:

"Whenever a statement of claim is delivered, the plaintiff may therein alter, modify, or extend his claim without any amendment of the indorsement of the writ."

But this does not apply where the claim is filed. Kingdon v. Kirk, 37 C. D. 141.

As to service, by sect. 116 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, a document—which includes summons, notice, order and other legal process and registers—may be served on a company by leaving it at or sending it by post to the registered office of the company.

Sect. 116 must be read in conjunction with sect. 26 of the Interpretation Act, 1889, which runs thus: "Where an Act passed after the commencement of this Act authorizes or requires any document to be served by post, whether the expression 'serve' or the expression 'give' or 'send' or any other expression is used, then, unless the contrary intention appears, the service shall be deemed to be effected by properly addressing, prepaying and posting a letter containing the document, and, unless the contrary is proved, to be effected at the time at which the letter would be delivered in the ordinary course of post."

Ord. IX. r. 8, of R. S. C., provides that in the absence of any statutory provision regulating the service of any process, every writ of summons issued against a corporation aggregate may be served on the mayor or other head officer, or on the town clerk, clerk, treasurer, or secretary of such corporation. . . . And where by any statute provision is made for service of any writ of summons, bill, petition, summons, or other process upon any corporation, or upon any society or fellowship, or any body or number of persons whether corporate or incorporate, every writ of summons may be served in the manner so provided. The words in the above rule referring to statutory provision include sect. 116 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, so far as regards companies subject to that Act, and accordingly, if a company registered in Scotland or Ireland is to be served with a writ issued in England, service must be in accordance with sect. 116 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and not at a branch office in England (Wood v. Anderston Foundry Co., 36 W. R. 918; Watkin v. Scottish Imperial Insurance Co., 23 Q. B. D. 285), and liberty to so serve out of the jurisdiction must be obtained. See the above cases, and Watkins v. Caledonian Railway Co., (1892) 1 Q. B. 823; Ann. Pr. notes to Ord. IX. r. 8; see also Logan v. Bank of Scotland, (1904) 2 K. B. 495, which shows that a Scottish corporation is for some purposes a foreign corporation.

In a recent case (Rylands' Glass Engraving Co. v. Phemie Co., (1911) 2 Ir. R. 532), the plaintiff, as a further security, registered the letter, enclosing the writ, and bona fide believing that the writ would be delivered in ordinary course of post, signed judgment on non-appearance immediately after expiration of the period allowed for appearance. In fact, owing to the registration, the letter was delayed a day: Held that the judgment must be set aside as prematurely signed. Form 667.

If a foreign corporation carries on its business in this country in such a way that it may be said to be resident here, English process may be served upon it in the manner provided by Ord. IX. r. 8. Newby v. Van Oppen, L. R. 7 Q. B. 793; Haggis v. Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris, 23 Q. B. D. 519; La Bourgogne, (1899) 1 P. 1, 12, affirmed by the House of Lords, (1899) A. C. 431; Compagnie Générale Transatlantique, (1899) A. C. 431; Dunlop Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Letten Gesellschaft für Motor, &c., (1902) 1 K. B. 342, 349; De Beers, Ltd. v. Howe, (1906) A. C. 455; supra, p. 95.

To make a foreign company liable to be sued as carrying on business in England, the business carried on must be the business of the company, not work merely ancillary thereto. Allison v. Independent Press Cable Assoc., 28 T. L. R. 128 (C. A.). The foreign company's agent renting an office with the name of the company painted up and selling the company's goods is enough (Saccharin Corp. v. chemische Fabrik, (1911) 2 K. B. 516), or having an office in England with a board of directors, though only financial business is transacted there. Actieselskabet Dansk Hercules v. Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, 28 T. L. R. 28 (C. A.).

It does not follow that because the company is registered in England, and the action relates to its shares, the Court will allow the writ to be served in a foreign country on a necessary party residing there. Lopes v. Charavri, W. N. (1901) 115.

Foreign companies carrying on business in the United Kingdom must now file with the registrar the name and address of some person authorized to accept service of process and notices. Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908. s. 274 (1) (c).

As to proving service, see sect. 116 of the Act.

As to treating service as valid notwithstanding irregularity, see Ord. LXX. r. 1. Dickson v. Law, (1895) 2 Ch. 62.

Substituted service may be ordered of a writ for service within the jurisdiction when defendant, knowing of the issue of the writ, has gone out of the jurisdiction to avoid service of it. Jay v. Budd, (1898) 1 Q. B. 12.

As to the costs of substituted service, see Flatau v. Cullen, 81 L. T. 402; W. N. (1899) 206.

As to re-service of amended writ, see Jamaica Railway Co. v. Colonial Bank, (1905) 1 Ch. 677.

As to service out of the jurisdiction, see Ord. XI. Ann. Pr. 1912, p. 75.

Calls are commonly sued for on a writ specially indorsed in accordance with Ord. III. r. 6, of the Rules of the Supreme Court. And then application is made under Ord. XIV. for an order to enter judgment forthwith. See further Annual Practice, notes to Ord. XIV., and Faire Electric Co. v. Phillipart, 38 L. T. 525. "The delivery of statements of claim shall be regulated as follows:— (a) Where the writ is specially indorsed under Ord. III. r. 6, no further statement of claim shall be delivered, but the indorsement on the writ shall be deemed to be the statement of claim. (b) Subject to the provisions of Ord. XIII. r. 12, as to filing a statement of claim where there is no appearance, no statement of claim shall be delivered unless the same be ordered under Ord. XXX. or Ord. XVIII. r. 3. (c) Where delivery of a statement of claim is ordered the same shall be delivered within the time specified in the order, or, if no time be so specified, within twenty-one days from the date of the order, unless in either case the time be extended by the Court or a judge." Ord. XX. r. 1.

An indorsement of claim for interest on a writ of summons, in order to be a good special indorsement within the meaning of Ord. III. r. 6, and Ord. XIV. r. 1, must show either that the interest claimed is payable under an agreement, or that it is fixed by statute. Gold Ores Reduc. Co. v. Pave, (1892) 2 Q. B. 14. And, as appears from this case, the defect was, upon an application for summary judgment under Ord. XIV., fatal, and could not be made good by affidavit evidence; nor could the defect be cured by amendment without rendering a fresh application under Ord. XIV. necessary. Parson v. Baird, (1893) 1 Q. B. 139. But now paragraph (b) of Rule 1 of Ord. XIV. allows some scope for amendment; and where unconditional leave to defend has been given on account of a technical defect in the writ, the plaintiff may, after the defect has been cured, apply again for final judgment. Dunlop & Son v. Playfair Bros., (1897) 1 Q. B. 368; and see Annual Practice, notes to Ord. XIV. r. 1 (b).

As to restraining calls and enforcement it was held by Hamilton, J., in Tatham v. Palmer Restaurants, 53 Sol. J. 743, on an application for an injunction, that the Court will not restrain a call or the enforcement thereof even where the shareholder has commenced an action to try the question as to his liability—for in the action he can by resisting payment get the question settled without an injunction.

The plt coy's claim is for moneys due from the dft as a member of the plt coy. in respect of 2,250 shares of 1*l.* each held by him in the capital of the plt coy. with interest thereon at the rate of 10 p.c.p.a. under the terms of clause 18 of the plt coy's arts of asson.

Plt, A.; dft, The — Coy. Limtd.]

The plt claims:

1. A declaration that he was induced to take 100 shares in the dft coy by misrepresentation and non-disclosure of material facts.
2. Rescission of the contract to take such shares and rectification of the register of members of the dft coy by the removal of his name.
3. Repayment of the amounts pd by him on the sd shares with interest.
4. An injunction to restrain the dft coy from making or attempting to enforce by action or otherwise any call in respect of the sd shares.

Form 674

Rescission of contract to take shares.

Form 674.

The above form can be used where there is no case of fraudulent misrepresentation, and the plaintiff claims relief merely on the ground of non-disclosure or innocent misrepresentation. See supra, pp. 186, 204.

Sometimes in such circumstances there may be a case against the directors under sect. 84 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, replacing the Directors' Liability Act, 1890 (see supra, p. 208 et seq.); and if so, the directors can be made defendants along with the company. Frankenburg v. Great Horseless Carriage Co., (1900) 1 Q. B. 504. See notes to next form, and the following claim can be added:

5. Or, in the alternative, for a declaration that the dfts, — and —, are, under sect. 84 of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (the Directors' Liability Act, 1890), liable to pay the plt compensation for the loss sustained by him by reason of untrue statements contained in the sd prospectus, and judgment against such dfts for the payment of such compensation.

As to the Directors' Liability Act, 1890 (now embodied in sect. 84 of the Act of 1908), see supra, pp. 208 et seq.

The following is another form, sometimes used instead of clauses 1 and 2, above:

1. To have the contract by virtue of which he becomes entitled to — shares in the capital of the defendant company set aside on the ground that he was induced to enter into that contract by misrepresentation and non-disclosure of material facts, and to have the register of members of the company rectified by striking out his name as the holder of such shares.

Form 67.

Rescission
and damages (fraud alleged).

[Plt, A.; dfts, the coy, and A., B., and C., directors.]

The plt claims:

1. A declaration that he was induced to take 200 shares in the dft coy by the fraudulent misrepresentations of the dfts.

2. Rescission [as in Form 675 (2).]

3. Damages for the loss occasioned to him by such fraudulent misrepresentations.

4. An injunction [Form 675 (4).]

5. Or, in the alternative, as against the dfts —, —, and —, damages for the loss occasioned to the plt by such fraudulent misrepresentations, and indemnity against all liability in respect of such shares.

The above form can be used where the prospectus was issued before 18th August, 1890, when the Directors' Liability Act, 1890, came into operation, if the action is not statute-barred. That Act only applied to prospectuses and notices issued after that day, and accordingly any claim for damages in respect of misrepresentation in a prospectus or notice previously issued must be made in an action of deceit. See supra, p. 202. In such an action fraud must be proved.

The form may also be used where the claim is barred by lapse of time under the Directors' Liability Act, 1890 (p. 208), but is not barred upon the footing of an action of deceit (p. 202).

Some persons, instead of claiming damages (3.), claim "To have judgment against the defendants jointly and severally for the repayment of the amounts paid by the plaintiff upon the said shares, with interest"; but, of course, this may not cover the damages sustained. See Mathias v. Fetta, 46 L. T. 197, where a contract was rescinded and damages awarded. In Ridgway v. Hurd, 20 C. Div. 1, a contract was rescinded, but the claim for damages failed because there was no allegation that the defendant made the misrepresentations complained of fraudulently.

It is enough to establish at the hearing a case for inquiry as to damages. See Shepherd v. Broome, (1904) A. C. 342, 348.

Joinder of Parties.

As to the joinder of plaintiffs, Ord. XVI. r. 1, as originally framed, commenced with the words "All persons may be joined as plaintiffs in whom the right to any relief claimed is alleged to exist, whether jointly, severally, or in the alternative"; but for these words the words in italics below were substituted in October, 1896, and the rule now stands as follows:

All persons may be joined in one action as plaintiffs in whom any right to relief in respect of a claim arising out of the same transaction or series of transactions is alleged to exist, whether jointly, severally, or in the alternative, where if such persons brought separate actions any common question of law or fact would arise; provided that, if upon the application of any defendant it shall appear that such joinder may embarrass or delay the trial of the action, the Court or judge may order separate trials or make such other order as may be expedient, and judgment may be given for such one or more of the plaintiffs as may be found to be entitled to relief, for such relief as he or they may be entitled to, without any amendment. But the defendant, though unsuccessful, shall be entitled to his costs occasioned by so joining any person who shall not be found entitled to relief, unless the Court or a judge in disposing of the costs shall otherwise direct.

The rule in its old form was dealt with in Smurthwaite v. Hannay, (1894) A. C. 491; Peninsular and Oriental Co. v. Tsune Kijima, (1895) A. C. 661; and Carter v. Rigby, (1896) 2 Q. L. 113, and other cases referred to in the Annual Practice. None of the three cases referred specially to actions relating to company matters; though in Carter v. Rigby, A. L. Smith, L. J., said that he read Smurthwaite v. Hannay "as applying to both contract and tort."

But in Arnison v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 98 (C. A.), which was commenced in 1887, when the rule stood in the old form, fifty-four persons who had severally taken debenture stock in a company sued the directors for damages for misrepresentation in a prospectus, and Kekewich, J., held that the forty who appeared at the trial were entitled to judgment, although each of them had a distinct cause of action, and although it may be that the joinder in this case was irregular under the old rule, it would be regular under the rule as amended in 1896.

And when four persons, each of whom had separately taken debentures on the faith of the statements in a prospectus and covering letter issued by the directors of a company, joined as co-plaintiffs in an action against the directors, claiming damages for misrepresentations contained in the prospectus and covering letter, Byrne, J., held that, as the several causes of action were the same and arose out of the same transaction, and were against the same defendants, the action was properly constituted. Dringbier v. Wood, (1898) 1 Ch. 393. And see the remarks of Byrne, J., at p. 397, as to the meaning of the word transaction." See also Walters v. Lyeon, (1899) 3 Ch. 696, and Pope v. Daintrey, 85 L. T. 263.

But a plaintiff cannot in one action sue directors for damages for fraudulent misrepresentation inducing him to purchase shares, and also on behalf of himself and the other members for ultra vires payment of dividend. Strand v. Lawson, (1898) 2 Q. B. 44.

By Ord. XVI. r. 2 "Where an action has been commenced in the name of the wrong person as plaintiff, or where it is doubtful whether it has been commenced in the name of the right plaintiff, the Court or a judge may, if satisfied that it has been so commenced through a bond fide mistake, and that it is necessary for the determination of the real matter in dispute so to do order any other person to be substituted or added as plaintiff upon such terms as may be just." The Court of Appeal has held that where an action has, through a bond fide mistake, been commenced in the name of the wrong person as plaintiff, the fact that the original plaintiff has no cause of action does not take away the jurisdiction of the Court to order the substitution of another person as plaintiff. Hughes v. Pump House Hotel Co. (No. 2), (1902) 2 K. B. 485.

As regards defendants, Ord. XVI. rr. 4 to 7, are as follows:

4. All persons may be joined as defendants against whom the right to any relief is alleged to exist, whether jointly, severally, or in the alternative. Judgment may be given against such one or more of the defendants as may be found to be liable, according to their respective liabilities, without any apportionment.

5. It shall not be necessary that every defendant shall be interested in the relief prayed for, or as to every cause of action included in any process against him; but the Court or a judge may make such order as may be just to prevent any defendant from being embarrassed or put to expense by being required to attend any proceedings in which he may have no interest.

6. The plaintiff may, at his option, join as parties to the same action all any of the persons severally or jointly and severally liable on any one contract including parties to bills of exchange and promissory notes.

7. Where the plaintiff is in doubt as to the person from whom he is entitled to redress, he may, in such manner as hereinafter mentioned, or as may be prescribed by any special order, join two or more defendants, to the intent the question as to which, if any, of the defendants is liable, and to whom the debt may be determined as between all parties.

Rules 4 and 6 were discussed by Lords Herschell and Russell in Thwaite v. Hannay, supra, the latter saying (1891) 15 Q. B. 504 "It is the rule in its original form 'is to have this with one defendant' viz., that any number of persons with any number of distinct causes of action might join in one action." Rule 4 must receive an equal construction. And he dissented from the view that Rule 6 applied to "all persons" persons charged on distinct grounds of liability" and by "any" plaintiffs with distinct cause of action.

Rule 4 is still, it is to be observed, in its original form. In Sadler v. Great Western Rail. Co. and Midland Rail. Co. (1898) 1 A. C. 450, one plaintiff sued two companies claiming damages, and an injunction in respect that each of the defendants by their combined acts, and the defendants by their combined acts, had obstructed the plaintiff's access to his premises; and the House of Lords held that a claim for damages against two or more defendants in respect of their several and distinct torts could not be combined in one action. This decision governs the rules bearing on the question. See Cover v. Couldridge, (1899) 14 Q. B. (C. A.) at p. 352.

In this case, Cover v. Couldridge, (1899) 14 Q. B. 348, where two only out of three defendants were joined for alleged fraudulent conspiracy to promote a company to buy a worthless business and induce the plaintiff to take shares therein, and all three were sued under the Directors' Liability Act and for false and fraudulent statements in the company's prospectus, the Court of Appeal held that the claim against the two could not be combined with the claim against the third. And see Pope v. B. & C., 17 T. L. R. 717; 85 Q.B. 263.

Franklin v. Great Hunzeless Carriage Co., (1900) 1 Q. B. 544, the Court of Appeal held, that where an action is brought by a shareholder against the directors for relief in respect of an improperly issued prospectus, the fact that the relief claimed against the several defendants is different in detail is no ground for objection that the action is had as joint causes of action against separate defendants, for in substance there is only one cause of action, namely, the improper issue of the prospectus, and that it is not improper to join in such an action the legal persons or representatives of a deceased director alleged to have been a party to the issue of the prospectus.

Consolidation Co. v. Martin (16 T. L. R. 186) 1900, 1 Q. B. 544, the Court of Appeal held, that where an action is brought by a shareholder against the directors for relief in respect of an improperly issued prospectus, the fact that the relief claimed against the several defendants is different in detail is no ground for objection that the action is had as joint causes of action against separate defendants, for in substance there is only one cause of action, namely, the improper issue of the prospectus, and that it is not improper to join in such an action the legal persons or representatives of a deceased director alleged to have been a party to the issue of the prospectus.

But A. L. Smith, L. J., said that in his opinion the claim was not governed by Condliffe (supra), as in the case before him the allegation was that there was a cause of action for conspiracy against the defendants, and that the same cause of action it was alleged that the defendants were guilty of breach of duty as directors. In his opinion the claim ought not to be struck out, but ought to be allowed to proceed. Neither did he see any reason why the Court in the exercise of its discretion should order the charge of conspiracy to be tried separately from the other part of the action; and Vaughan Williams and Romer, L. JJ., delivered judgment to the same effect.

And the principle of Sadler v. Great Eastern Ry. Co., supra, does not apply where several defendants are sued in one action not on account of several liability for several torts, but jointly in respect of their joint acts. Walters v. Green, (1899) 2 Ch. 696.

Rule 4 of Ord. XVI. is not confined in its operation to joinder of parties, but extends also to joinder of causes of action, so that persons may now be joined as defendants who are alleged to be liable in respect of causes of action, which are not necessarily limited to the same exact state of facts, contracts and circumstances as showing liability, and in respect of which relief is claimed by the plaintiff in the alternative. Companie Saussem v. Houbler, (1910) 2 K. B. 354.

And see notes to Ord. XVI. r. 4, Ann. 13, 14, 15.

Damages for fraud.

Form 676.

This form is for use where the plaintiff sues, in an action of deceit, the directors, or other persons who, by issuing a fraudulent prospectus, induced him to take shares, and does not seek rescission either because he has lost the right or prefers to keep the shares. Supra, pp. 202, 205. The form is available both in the case of common law fraud, and also fraud under the now repealed sect. 38 of the Act of 1867, where that section can now be proceeded with, and, if necessary, the statement of claim can allege an alternative case.

As to the measure of damages in such a case, see Peck v. Devry, 37 C. Div. 541; Twyeross v. Grant, 4 C. P. Div. 40; McConnell v. Wright, (1903) 1 Ch. 546; and supra, p. 207.

As to action for fraud, in inducing purchase of shares on the market as distinguished from original allotment, see Andrews v. Mockford, (1896) 1 Q. B. 372 (C. A.).

Where two or more defendants join in a defence, the jury, in awarding damages, has no power to sever such damages—so much against one defendant, so much against another. Daniels v. Modern Soc., Lim., 27 T. L. R. 174.

Compensation under the Directors'
Liability Act,

[Plt, A.; dfts, B., C., and D.]

The plt's claim is for compensation for the loss sustained by the plt by reason of untrue statements contained in a prospectus of the — Coy, Limtd, on the faith of which prospectus the plt subscribed for 100 shares in the sd coy. The dfts B. and C. are sued as directors, and the dft D. as promoter of the sd coy, or as having authorized the issue of the sd prospectus.

[Plt, A.; dfts, B., C., and D.]

The plt's claim is for damages for the loss occasioned to him by the dfts' non-compliance with the requirements of sect. 81 of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, as regards a prospectus of The — Coy, Limtd, whereby the plt was induced to take up — shares in that coy.

Form 679.

Specific per-
agreement to allot shares.

[Plt, A.; dfts, the coy.]

The plt's claim is:

1. Specific performance of an agreement to allot to the plt 1,000 shares of 1*l.* each in the dft coy, and an injunction to restrain the dft coy, its directors and agents, from allotting the unallotted shares in the dft coy in such manner as to render it impossible for them to perform the sd agreement.

2. Or, in the alternative, damages for the breach of the sd agreement

Specific performance will be ordered of an agreement to take shares where the remedy of damages is inadequate (see Fry on Specific Performance, 34; Oriental Island Steam Co. v. Briggs, 31 L. J. Ch. 241; Odeon Tramways Co. v. Mendel, 8 Ch. D. 235; Dunell v. Albrecht, 12 Sim. 189); but it is wise to claim damages in the alternative, for specific performance may be impossible, e.g., where all the shares have been allotted. Ferguson v. Wilson, 2 Ch. 77.

As to the measure of damages, see Michael v. Hart & Co., (1901) 2 K. B. 867.

In such an action it is not proper to make the directors defendants. Ferguson v. Wilson, supra.

An injunction against the company will bind them. Seton, pp. 709 to 721.

Specific performance may now be ordered of a contract with a company to take and pay for debentures of the company. Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 105.

[Plt, the coy; dfts, A., B., C., D., and E.]

1. A declaration that an agreement, dated, &c., and made between the dft B., of the one pt, and the plt coy, of the other pt, and an indenture of assignment, dated, &c., made between the sd dft, of the one pt, and the plt coy of the other pt, are resp'y fraudulent, and are voidable at the option of the plt coy.

2. A declaration that the dfts are jointly and severally liable to make good to the plt coy all profits derived by the dfts, or any of them, in respect of the sale, the subject of the sd agreement and indenture.

3. In case the plt coy shall elect to avoid the sd agreement and assignment, judgment that the sd agreement and assignment be resp'y set aside and delivered up to be cancelled, the plt coy offering to account for all (if any) the profits derived by the plt coy in working the mines, the subject of the sd sale. And in any case

4. Judgment against the dfts, jointly and severally, for the surrender to the plt coy of so many of the 50,000 fully pd-up shares of 1*l.* each in the plt coy, issued as the common for the sd sale, as are still held by the dfts, or any of them, or in lieu of such surrender, and at the option of the plt coy, judgment for the payment of the maximum value of any of the sd shares since the date of the incorporation of the plt coy, with interest.

5. Judgment against the dfts, jointly and severally, for the amount of all money and other profits received or derived by the dfts, or any of them, in respect of such of the sd 50,000 shares as have been sold or disposed of, or otherwise received in respect of the sd sale, with interest, but, in case the plt coy shall elect to retain the ppty sold, giving credit to the dfts for 3,500*l.*, the amount pd by them, with interest at 4 p.c. from January, 1880.

6. 10,600*l.* damages for the loss occasioned to the plt coy by the fraud and collusion of dfts.

The above is an example of the indorsement used in a case somewhat resembling New Sombrero Co. v. Erlanger, 5 C. Div. 111; 3 App. Cas. 1218. The defendants, having purchased a property for 3,500*l.*, promoted the plaintiff company, and sold the property to it for 50,000*l.*, without disclosing their profit or position and made misrepresentations.

Form 681. [Plt, the coy; dfts, A., B., and C.]Bribe to directors.

1. A declaration that the dfts are jointly and severally liable to pay to the plt coy the maximum value, with interest, of 700 shares in the capital of the plt coy, which shares were issued to B. as pt of the consen for ppty sold by him to the plt coy, and were by him gratuitously transferred to the dfts, who were directors of the plt coy.

2. Judgment against the sd dfts, jointly and severally, for the payment of such maximum value with interest.

There have been a good many cases in which directors have been held liable for paid-up shares privately given them by the vendor or promoters. See infra, Chap. XX. And it has been held that in such case they are liable for the maximum value. Nant-y-Glo Co. v. Grave, 12 C. D. 738; and see infra, Form 726. See also Carling's case, 1 C. Div. 115; McKay's case, 2 C. Div. 1; De Ruvinne's case, 5 C. Div. 306; Pragnon's case, 4 C. Div. 222; 5 C. Div. 336; Weston's case, 10 C. Div. 579; Metcalf's case, 13 C. Div. 169; Eden v. Riddale Lamp Co., 23 Q. B. D. 368; Postage Stamp Automatic Delivery Co., (1892) 3 Ch. 566; Boston v. Ansell, 39 Ch. D. 339; Coats v. Crossland, 20 T. L. R. 800. But where there is no real market for the shares, the damages are the value at the time of allotment to the delinquent director. Shaw v. Holland, (1900) 2 Ch. 305. And see Part II. Chap. XLIV., and the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1906 (6 Edw. 7. c. 34).

When the company is in liquidation, the procedure under sect. 215 of the Companies Act, 1908 (sect. 10 of the Companies (Winding-Up) Act, 1890), is often preferable to an action; and when the winding-up is under a compulsory order, evidence under Rule 70 of the Companies (Winding-Up) Rules, 1909, is admissible on proceedings under sect. 215, though not in an action. As to the relief of directors who have acted honestly and reasonably, see sect. 279 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

Form 682. [Plt, the coy; dft, A.]Promoter's secret profit.

1. A declaration that the dft is liable to pay to the plt coy the sum of 10,000*l.*, being the difference between the amount pd by him for The ---- Colliery and the amount pd him by the plt coy for such colliery, and all other profits (if any) made by the dft when promoter or director of the plt coy, without its knowledge and consent, with interest; and

2. Judgment against the defendant for payment accordingly

See supra, p. 133, and note to Form 723.

The plt claims as a debenture holder of the dft coy:—

1. A declaration that the mortgage debentures issued by the dft coy, and now outstanding, constitute a [first] charge upon all the ppty of the coy comprised therein.

2. All necessary accounts and inquiries.

4. Foreclosure or sale.
5. A receiver and manager.

The above and other forms of writ in actions to enforce the rights of holders of debentures and debenture stock will be found in Part III.

Plt, A. (on behalf of himself and all other shareholders in the dft coy, except those who are dfts); dfts, the coy and the directors.] Form 684.

The plt's claim is for a declaration that an agreemt dated, &c., and made, &c., is ultra vires the dft coy, and for an injunction to restrain the dfts from carrying the sd agreemt into effect. Ultra vires agreement.

See Russell v. Wakefield Waterworks, 20 Eq. 474; Whitcam v. Watkin, 78 L. T. 188; Towers v. African Tug Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 558, as to parties in such actions.

Writ intituled in the matter of the estate of A. B., deceased: plt, the N. Coy, Limtd (on behalf of itself and all others, the creditors of the sd A. B.); dft, C. D.] Form 684a.

The plt coy's claim is, as a creditor of A. B. of —, in the county of —, deceased:—

Action against personal representative of deceased shareholder who has transferred property to avoid payment of calls.

1. For a declaration that the following transfers from the said A. B. to the dft, namely, (a) a transfer dated, &c., of — shares, numbered — to — in the X. Co., Limtd; (b) a transfer dated, &c.; (c) a transfer, &c., are respy fraudulent and void as against the creditors of the sd A. B. (including the plt coy) under the statute 13 Eliz. c. 5, and that the sd transfers may be set aside.

2. For a declaration that the sd shares and the proceeds of such (if any) of them as have been disposed of are assets in the hands of the dft, as the legal personal representative of the sd A. B., and available for the payment of the debts due to the creditors of the sd A. B.

3. For administration by the Ct of the personal ppty of the sd A. B. to have the same applied in payment of what is found due to the plt coy, and the other unsatisfied creditors of the sd A. B.

4. For the transfer into Ct of the sd shares and proceeds or the certificates for the sd shares, or (in the alternative) the appointment of a receiver of the sd shares and proceeds, and the income thof.

5. For an injunction to restrain the dft, his brokers and agents from disposing of or otherwise dealing with the sd shares and proceeds, and the income thof.

The dft is sued as the admor of the said A. B., and in his own right as the transferee of the sd shares.

Form 684a.

Shares are within 13 Eliz. c. 5 (avoiding conveyances to defeat or delay creditors), and it is no objection that the transferor has been dead for even a considerable time. Re Mulderer, 27 Ch. D. 523. Where the transfer is voluntary, it is unnecessary to show an actual intention to defeat or delay creditors, if that is the necessary effect. Freeman v. Pope, 5 Ch. 538; Cornish v. Clark, 14 Eq. 184.

The action should be on behalf of all the creditors. Reas River Co. v. Atwell, 7 Eq. 347; Tanqueray v. Bowles, 14 Eq. 151; Turquand v. Kirby, 4 Eq. 123; European Co. v. Radcliffe, 7 Ch. D. 733.

As to obtaining a receiver, see Re Mount, (1899) 1 Ch. 831.

Debenture not deed.

[Plt, A. (on behalf of himself and all other the holders of debentures enttd to the benefit of the indenture mentd in the indorsement on the writ in this action); dfts, the coy and the trustees of the sd indenture.]

The plt claims as a debenture holder of the dft coy:

1. To have an account taken of what is due from the dft coy to the plt and the other holders of debentures enttd to the benefit of an indenture dated, &c., and made, &c.

2. To have the trusts of the sd indenture carried into execution under the order of the Ct.

3. To have a recr and manager of the ppty comprised in the sd indenture appointed.

The dfts — and — are sued as trustees of the sd indenture.

The trustees are properly made defendants. Montage Insurance Corporation v. Canadian Agricultural, &c. Co., (1901) 2 Ch. 377.

Form 686.

Ultra vires
resolution.

[Plt, A. (on behalf of himself and all other holders of B. shares in the dft coy, except those who are dfts); dfts, the coy and the directors.]

1. A declaration that the special resolution of the coy, passed at the general meeting held on the — day of —, is ultra vires and illegal.

2. An injunction to restrain the dfts from acting on the sd resolution or applying the profits of the coy otherwise than in accordance with the special resolution of the coy passed the — day of —.

This form was adopted when a resolution was passed purporting to alter the rights of different classes of shareholders as defined by a former special resolution.

Form 687.

Ultra vires
business.

Parties as in Form 686.

1. A declaration that it is beyond the powers of the dft coy to carry on the business of —, and that in carrying on such business, and applying thereto the funds of the coy, the dfts A., B. and C. have acted ultra vires and in breach of trust, and that they are liable to make good to the dft coy all losses sustained by the coy by reason of such breach of trust. Form 667.

2. All necessary accounts and inquiries.

3. Judgment against the dfts A., B. and C. for the amount of such losses.

4. An injunction to restrain the dfts from further carrying on the sd business.

This is a simple case. Where there have been changes of directors, nice questions as to liability and parties arise.

An action, not a winding-up petition, is the proper mode of proceeding in case of ultra vires. Ex parte Fox, 6 Ch. 176; and see Crouch Bank, 38 W. R. 667.

Where directors are doing anything which is ultra vires the company, any shareholder may bring an action to restrain them. Simpson v. Westminster Palace Hotel Co., 8 H. L. Cas. 712; Rochford v. Eagle, (1902) A. C. 83.

Plt and dfts as in Form 684.]

The plt claims as a holder of preference shares in the dft coy:

1. A declaration that the resolution, passed at the ordinary general meeting of the coy on the — day of —, declaring a dividend on the ordinary shares is ultra vires and illegal as against the holders of preference shares in the dft coy.

2. An injunction to restrain the payment of the dividend so declared, and to restrain the declaration or payment of any other dividends on the ordinary shares in prejudice of the rights of the holders of preference shares in the dft coy.

Form 686.

Dividend in prejudice of preference shares.

Plt, A. (on behalf); and dfts, the coy and the directors.]

1. A declaration that the resolution declaring a dividend, passed at the ordinary meeting of the dft coy held on, &c., is ultra vires and illegal.

2. An injunction to restrain the dfts from acting or further acting on the sd resolution, and from paying such dividend or any dividend out of the capital of the dft coy.

3. A declaration that the dfts, other than the dft coy, are jointly and severally liable to make good to the dft coy all moneys (if any) paid by them out of the dft coy's assets on account or in respect of the dividend so sanctioned, and judgment against them jointly and severally for repayment of such moneys accordingly.

Dividend out of capital.

As a general rule the company ought to sue for the recovery of any assets misapplied. Gray v. Lewis, 8 Ch. 1036. But in such a case as above the Court would have jurisdiction. Russell v. Wakefield Waterworks, 20 Eq. 481. But a shareholder who has, with knowledge of the facts, received part of the illegal dividend cannot as particeps criminis at any rate while he retains the same—maintain such an action. Towers v. Abieson Tag Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 558.

Form 690.

Plt, the coy; dfts, the directors, and (sometimes) the auditors.

Recovery of dividends improperly paid.

1. A declaration that the dividends pd to the shareholders in the plt coy since its formation have all been pd out of the plt coy's capital, and that the dfts are jointly and severally liable to make good the amount of the dividends so pd, with interest.

2. Judgment against the dfts accordingly.

As regards misapplication of the moneys of a company, it must be borne in mind that "the money of the company is a trust fund, because it is applicable only to the special purposes of the company in the hands of the agent of the company, and it is in that sense a trust fund applicable by them to those special purposes; and a person taking it from them with a notice that it is being applied to other purposes cannot in this Court say that he is not a constructive trustee." Per Jessel, M. R., Russell v. Wakefield Waterworks Co., 20 Eq. 479; and see Ernest v. Crocadill, 2 D. F. & J. 172; Great Eastern Rail. Co. v. Turner, 8 Ch. 149; and Mozham v. Grant, (1900) 1 Q. B. 88. And in case of fraud or breach of trust the parties are jointly and severally liable. See Form 723, infra; Wye Valley Rail. Co. v. Hawes, 16 C. Div. 489; Leeds Estate Co. v. Shepherd, 36 Ch. D. 807; and Flitcroft's case, 21 Ch. D. 519.

The auditors may also be sued. Leeds Estate Co. v. Shepherd, supra. See further, as to liability for dividends paid out of capital, the cases cited in Part II. 10th ed. pp. 644, 645. If the company was in liquidation, proceedings were generally taken under sect. 10 of the Act of 1890 (now sect. 215 of the Companies Act, 1908). See Part II. Chap. XLIV.

Form 691.

Plt, the coy and A., on behalf, &c. Dfts, the directors.]

To enforce resolution of company.

An injunction to restrain the dfts from acting in contravention of a resolution to the effect that, &c., passed at a general meeting of the coy, held on, &c.

In the above case it is assumed that A., a shareholder, makes the company a plaintiff in order to escape complying with the rule in Foss v. Harbottle, infra, p. 1357. See Pender v. Lushington, 6 C. D. 70; Harben v. Phillips, 23 C. Div. 14; La Compagnie de Mayrille v. Whitley, (1896) 1 Ch. 788.

As a general rule, where by reason of that rule it is necessary to make the company plaintiff, there is no need to make the complaining shareholder also a plaintiff. He can use the name of the company without leave or licence, subject only to this: that in all probability the defendants will deny the plaintiff's right to use the company's name, and in that case the Court usually refers the matter to a general meeting; and if the general meeting approves of the action, it will proceed, whereas, if the meeting disapproves, the company's name will be struck out and the plaintiff will be ordered to pay the costs. In order to provide for this possibility, it may in some cases be wise to make a shareholder a co-plaintiff as above, provided that he has some individual cause of action. See also Alexander v. Automatic Telephone Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 50, more fully referred to below.

As to discovery from a company, as an "opposite party," where joined as a defendant to an action, by shareholder on behalf, &c., see Spokes v. Grosvenor Hotel Co., (1897) 2 Q. B. 124.

A., plt. The coy, B., C., D., dfts.]

Form 692.

The plt's claim is:—

director.

1. An injunction to restrain the dfts, other than the dft coy, from preventing or hindering in any way the plt from acting as a director of the dft coy, and from excluding the plt from meetings of the directors of the dft coy.

2. Damages in respect of the matters afd.

See Pulbrook v. Richmond Mining Co., 9 C. D. 610; Nutton v. English and Colonial Produce Co., (1902) 2 Ch. 502; Bainbridge v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 475.

Plts, the coy and A., B., and C. Dfts, D., E., and F.]

Form 693.

1. The plts' claim is for an injunction to restrain the dfts, D., E., and F., from acting as directors of, or dealing with the funds of, or using the seal of, or otherwise interfering in the management of the plt coy, and to restrain the dft D. from acting as a director of, or dealing with the funds of the coy, or using the seal of, or otherwise interfering in the management of the plt coy, otherwise than as a member of the Board of Directors of the plt coy, elected on the 1893 (which Board consists of the plts A., B., and C. and the dft D.), and to restrain the dfts from representing that the four persons who first subscribed their names to the memorandum of association of the plt coy continued after May, 1893, or now continue or are directors of the plt coy, or that either of the dfts E. and F. after that date continued or now continues or is a director of the plt coy, and from preventing or hindering the plts A. and B., or either of them, from acting as directors of, or taking part in the management of the plt coy, or excluding them or either of them from the Board meetings of the plt coy.

To restrain de facto
directors
from acting.

2. Damages in respect of the matters afd.

In this case the plaintiff, as in Pender v. Lushington, 6 C. D. 70, makes the company a co-plaintiff, inasmuch as the company can alone complain of persons not duly appointed acting as directors. Mardoull v. Gardiner, 1 C. Div. 13; Harben v. Phillips, 23 C. Div. 14; and Coventry's case, 14 Ch. D. 660.

See further cases in regard to directors not duly appointed, Imperial Hydro-pathic Co., 23 C. Div. 1; Harben v. Phillips, ibid. 14; Munster v. Cammell Co., 21 C. D. 183.

Rule in Foss v. Harbottle.

It may be convenient here to refer to the rule in Foss v. Harbottle, 3 H. 461, and Mozley v. Alston, 1 Ph. 790 (already touched on, supra, p. 74), namely, that prima facie the company can alone sue in respect of wrongs done to the company; that the acts of the defendants complained of were of such a nature as to be capable of confirmation by a majority of the members of the company; that it was for the defendant in its corporate capacity to sue; and that, under these circumstances, the Court could not interfere at the suit of a minority.

In Mozley v. Alston (1847), two members of an incorporated railway company filed a bill, in their individual characters, against the corporation and twelve other members, who were alleged to have usurped the office of directors and to be exercising the functions thereof, as a majority of the governing body injuriously to the company's interests, and praying that the twelve might be restricted from acting as directors, and be ordered to deliver the company's common seal, property and books to six other persons, who were alleged to be the only duly constituted directors. Lord Cottenham, L. C., allowed a demurrer to the bill. In the first place, he pointed out that if there had been no other objection to the bill, the fact of its having been brought by shareholders, not on behalf of themselves and others but in their individual characters only, was fatal. Then he said that a more important objection was that the injury alleged was not to the plaintiffs personally but to the corporation, without any reason being assigned by the bill why the corporation does not put itself in motion to seek a remedy. After observing that Foss v. Harbottle was identical in principle with the case before him, Lord Cottenham said that the Vice-Chancellor's observations in that case applied with greater force to the present case because there "the bill expressly alleges that a large majority of the shareholders are of the same opinion with [the plaintiffs]; and, if that be so, there is obviously nothing to prevent the company from filing a bill in its corporate character to remedy the evil complained of." Finally, he relied on the ground that it was without precedent for the Court to interfere "solely on the ground of the supposed invalidity of the title of persons claiming to be corporate officers."

These two cases have been frequently followed. James, L. J., in Guy v. Lewis (1873), 8 Ch. 1035, 1050, 1051, said: "It is very important, in order to avoid oppressive litigation, to adhere to the rule laid down in Mozley v. Alston, and Foss v. Harbottle, which cases have always been considered as settling the law of this Court, that where there is a corporate body capable of filing a bill for itself to recover property either from its directors or officers, or from any other person, that corporate body is the proper plaintiff, and the only proper plaintiff. . . . I think that it is of the utmost importance to maintain the rule laid down in Mozley v. Alston and Foss v. Harbottle, to which, as I understand, the only exception is where the corporate body has got into the hands of directors and of the majority, which directors and majority are using their power for the purpose of doing something fraudulent against the minority, who are overwhelmed by them, as in Atwood v. Merryweather (5 Eq. 464, n.), where Wood, V.-C., under those circumstances sustained a bill by a shareholder, on behalf of himself and others, and there it was after an attempt had been made to obtain a proper authority from the corporate body itself in public meeting assembled." The same learned judge, James, L. J., in Maddougali v. Gardiner, 1 C. Div. 13, again emphasised the importance of the rule.

"I think," he said, "it is of the utmost importance to all these companies that the rule which is well known in this Court as the rule in Mozley v. Alston . . . and Foss v. Harbottle should always be adhered to: that is to say, that nothing connected with the internal disputes between the shareholders is to be made the subject of a bill by some one shareholder on behalf of himself and others, unless there be something illegal, oppressive, or fraudulent, unless there be something ultra vires on the part of the company quâ company, or on the part of the majority of the company, so that they are not fit persons to determine it: but that every litigation must be in the name of the company if the company really desire it."

And in a case in the Privy Council, Burland v. Earle, (1902) A. C. 83, 93, Lord Davey said: "It is an elementary principle of the law relating to joint stock companies that the Court will not interfere with the internal management of companies acting within their powers, and in fact has no jurisdiction to do so. Again, it is clear law that in order to redress a wrong done to the company, or to recover money or damage alleged to be due to the company, the action should prima facie be brought by the company itself. These cardinal principles are laid down in the well-known cases of Foss v. Harbottle and Mozley v. Alston, and in numerous later cases which it is unnecessary to cite. But an exception is made to the second rule, where the persons against whom relief is sought themselves hold and control the majority of the shares in the company, and will not permit an action to be brought in the name of the company. In that case the Courts allow the shareholders complaining to bring an action in their own names. This, however, is mere matter of procedure in order to give a remedy for a wrong which would otherwise escape redress, and it is obvious that in such an action the plaintiffs cannot have a larger right to relief than the company itself would have if it were plaintiff, and cannot complain of acts which are valid if done with the approval of the majority of the shareholders, or are capable of being confirmed by the majority. The cases in which the minority can maintain such an action are, therefore, confined to those in which the acts complained of are of a fraudulent character or beyond the powers of the company. A familiar example is where the majority are endeavouring, directly or indirectly, to appropriate to themselves money, property, or advantages which belong to the company, or in which the other shareholders are entitled to participate, as was alleged in the case of Menier v. Hooper's Telegraph Works (1874), 9 Ch. 350. It should be added that no mere informality or irregularity which can be remedied by the majority will entitle the minority to sue if the act when done regularly would be within the powers of the company and the intention of the majority of the shareholders is clear. This may be illustrated by the judgment of Mellish, J., in Maddougall v. Gardiner. And by a recent case - Marshall's Valve Gear Co. v. Manning, Wurdle & Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 267 where clause 55 of Table A. of 1862, as to directors' powers, applied, and where the four directors held substantially all the share capital, one of them, who had the majority of votes at general meetings, commenced an action in the name of the company, and the other directors moved to strike out the name and dismiss the action, it was held that by clause 55 the majority [in value] of the shareholders had the right to control the action, and that the motion must be dismissed with costs.

Accordingly, the Court refused to interfere at the suit of a shareholder suing on behalf of himself and others in the following cases:

- (a) Proceedings to compel directors to make good funds of company improperly expended. Foss v. Harbottle, supra.
- (b) Where directors were acting who had not been duly appointed. Mozley v. Alston, ubi supra, and Hattersley v. Shelburne, 10 W. R. 881.
- (c) To recover property alleged to belong to the company. Gray v. Lewis, ubi supra; see also Russell v. Wakefield Waterworks, 20 Eq. 474.
- (d) Where it was alleged that chairman had improperly refused to take a poll. Maddougall v. Gardiner, 1 C. Div. 13.
- (e) Where winding-up resolution passed at meeting convened by order of an irregular board. Southern Counties Deposit Bank v. Rider, 73 L. T. 374, C. A.
- (f) Action against company's solicitor and vendor to set aside an agreement alleged to have been a fraud on the company, and to recover money of the company. Duckett v. Gover, 6 C. Div. 82. For further proceedings in this case, 25 W. R. 554.
- (g) Action for re-imbursement of dividend paid out of capital, part of which was received and retained by plaintiffs. Towers v. African Tug Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 558.
- (h) Action against company and its directors in respect of an investment of reserve funds, bona fide but imprudently made in the name of a sole trustee. Burland v. Earle, supra.

And see Exeter and Crediton Rail. Co. v. Butler, 5 Ry. Cas. 311, and Normandy v. Ind, Coops & Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 84.

The exceptions to the rule of Foss v. Harbottle are well illustrated in the decision of the Court of Appeal in Alexander v. Automatic Telephone Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 56. Lindley, M. R., in that case, says (p. 69):—"The breach of duty to the company consists in depriving it of the use of the money, which the directors ought to have paid up sooner than they did. I cannot regard the case as one of mere internal management, which, according to Foss v. Harbottle and numerous other cases, the Court leaves the shareholders to settle among themselves. It was ascertained . . . that when this action was commenced the defendants held such a preponderance of shares that they could not be controlled by the other shareholders. Under these circumstances an action by some shareholders on behalf of themselves and the others against the defendants is in accordance with the authorities, and is unobjectionable in form. See Menier v. Hooper's Telegraph Works (1874), 9 Ch. 350. An action in this form is far preferable to an action in the name of the company and then a fight as to the right to use its name."

The only exceptions therefore to the rule are the following:—

- (a) Where the act complained of is ultra vires the company. Simpson v. Westminster Palace Hotel Co., 8 H. L. Cas. 712.
- (b) Where the act complained of is a fraud on the minority. Alexander v. Automatic Co., supra.
- (c) Where there is an absolute necessity to waive the rule in order that there may not be a denial of justice. See observations of M. R. in Pender v. Lushington, 6 C. Div. 70; Russell v. Wakefield Waterworks, 20 Eq. 474; Harben v. Phillips, 23 C. Div. 14; Burland v. Earle, supra.

Accordingly, the Court has interfered at the suit of one or more suing as above in Clinch v. Financial Corporation, 5 Eq. 480; 4 Ch. 117; Atwood v. Merryweather, 5 Eq. 464, n. Ultra vires agreement. See Form 739, infra.

Ultra vires return of capital. Holmes v. Newcastle Co., 1 C. Div. 682.

Ultra vires purchase of shares. Hop v. International Financial Society, 4 C. Div. 327. See Form 747, infra.

Payment of dividends out of capital. Macdougall v. Jersey Hotel Co., 2 H. & M. 528. See Forms 744 and 745, infra; and compare Towers v. African Tug Co., supra.

Majority, or persons controlling majority, proposing to benefit themselves at the expense of the minority. Menier v. Hooper's Telegraph Works, 9 Ch. 350; Alexander v. Automatic Co., supra.

Action to set aside fraudulent sale to company, the vendor holding the majority of the shares. Mason v. Hurris, 11 C. Div. 97.

Where a shareholder desires to complain of a wrong done to the company, and the case does not fall within the above exceptions, and the directors decline to proceed, the shareholder can sue in the company's name. But if it is shown that the majority do not support the action, the company's name will be struck out; and if there is a dispute as to the views of the majority, the Court will take means to ascertain them, e.g., by giving liberty to convene a meeting. Exeter and Crediton Rail. Co. v. Butler, 5 Ry. Cas. 311; 11 Jur. 527; Pender v. Lushington, 6 C. D. 70; Du-kett v. Gower, ibid. 82; Harben v. Phillips, 23 C. Div. 14. It is therefore advisable that a shareholder commencing an action in the name of the company should himself take immediate steps to procure the convention of a general meeting. Morris v. Morris, W. N. (1877) 6. For "if authority is wanted to use the name of the company, it must be authority got from the proper quarter—either from the directors, or from the shareholder convened for the purpose." La Compagnie de Mayville v. Whitley, (1896) 1 Ch. 788, 803.

There must be a strong prima facie case for the Court to allow such a bill filed in the name of the company, but without the sanction of a majority of the shareholders, to remain on the file in order to see whether the company will adopt it or not. East Pant Du United Lead Mining Co. v. Merryweather, 1 N. R. 541.

But the fact that the approval of the majority has not been obtained before the writ is issued does not prevent the Court from giving interlocutory relief by injunction or otherwise. Pender v. Lushington, ubi supra. See further, Lindley on Companies, 6th ed. 774; Seton, 602.

As to ordering the plaintiff's solicitor to pay the costs of action brought in name of company without authority, see La Compagnie de Mayville v. Whitley supra; Newbiggin v. Armatrong, 13 C. D. 310.

Where the company is joined as plaintiff without authority, a motion to strike out the name can be made under Ord. XVI. r. 11. La Compagnie de Mayville v. Whitley, (1896) 1 Ch. 788; Marshall's Valve Gear Co. v. Manning, (1909) 1 Ch. 267. And where the notice of motion also asks that the solicitor responsible may be ordered to pay the costs, notice of discontinuance subsequently given will not prevent the Court from making the order. Gold Reefs of Western Australia v. Dawson, (1897) 1 Ch. 115.

Striking out company's name as plaintiff

The rule above referred to does not of course prevent a member from suing in respect of an individual wrong. Pender v. Lushington, ubi supra; and see Forms 736 et seq., infra.

Appearance.

The subjects of appearance and default of appearance are dealt with in Ords. XII. and XIII.

A company, being a corporation aggregate, can only appear by a solicitor. See Ann. Pr., notes to Ord. XII. r. 11. The appearance of a company by its secretary, &c. is refused at the Central Office. Ibid.

If the company is in liquidation, whether voluntary or compulsory, appearance should be entered for "The --- Company, Limited, in liquidation, by M. D., its liquidator duly appointed." Ann. Pr. ibid.

As to attaching a solicitor for breach of an undertaking to enter appearance see Kerly, Son & Verden, (1901) 1 Ch. 467; and Ann. Pr., note to Ord. IX. r. 1.

Summons for Directions.

Ord. XXX., as amended in July, 1902, is as follows:

1.—(a) Except in the cases mentioned in paragraph (d), the plaintiff in every action shall take out a summons for directions returnable in not less than four days.

(b) Such summons shall be taken out after appearance and before the plaintiff takes any fresh step in the action other than application for an injunction, or for a receiver, or the entering of judgment in default of defence under Ord. XXVII.

(c) Where under Ord. XIV. the plaintiff applies for judgment, or where under Ord. XVIII. the defendant applies for a statement of claim, the judge may deal with such application as if the plaintiff had been entitled to take out and had taken out a summons for directions.

d) This rule shall not apply to Admiralty actions within the meaning of sect. 31 of the Judicature Act, 1873, or to actions in which the writ is specially endorsed under Ord. III. r. 6, or to actions coming under the provisions of Ord. XVIII., or to any proceeding commenced by originating summons: but in any such action or proceeding a summons for directions may be taken out at the instance of any party thereto.

2. Upon the hearing of the summons the Court or a judge shall, so far as practicable, make such order as may be just with respect to all the proceedings to be taken in the action, and as to the costs thereof, and more particularly with respect to the following matters: Pleading, particulars, admissions, discovery, interrogatories, inspection of documents, inspection of real or personal property, commissions, examination of witnesses, place and mode of trial. Such order shall be in the Form No. 4, Appendix K., with such variations as circumstances may require.

3. No affidavit shall be used on the hearing of the said summons except by special order of the Court or a judge.

4. On the hearing of the summons any party to whom the summons is addressed shall, so far as practicable, apply for any order or directions as to any interlocutory matter or thing in the action which he may desire.

5. Any application subsequently to the original summons and before judgment for any directions as to any interlocutory matter or thing by any party shall be made under the summons by two clear days' notice to the other party, stating the grounds of the application.

6. Any application by any party which might have been made at the hearing of the original summons shall, if granted on any subsequent application, be granted at the costs of the party applying, unless the Court or a judge shall be of opinion that the application could not properly have been made at the hearing of the original summons.

7. On the hearing of the summons, the Court or a judge may order that evidence of any particular fact, to be specified in the order, shall be given by statement on oath of information and belief, or by production of documents or entries in books, or by copies of documents or entries or otherwise as the Court or judge may direct.

8. In any action to which r. 1 of this order applies, if the plaintiff does not within fourteen days from the entry of the defendant's appearance take out a summons for directions under this order, the defendant shall be at liberty to apply for an order to dismiss the action, and upon such application the judge may either dismiss the action on such terms as may be just, or may deal with such application in all respects as if it were a summons for directions under this order.

Ord. XVIII. is the one which deals with cases in which the plaintiff wishes to proceed to trial without pleadings.

For form of summons see Part III. (10th ed.) of this work, p. 491. As to putting parties under conditions, see Barter v. Holdsworth, (1899) 1 Q. B. 266.

Where a defendant makes default in entering appearance, the master cannot, on a summons for directions, order the action to be set down for trial without pleadings. Re No-man, W. N. (1900) 159; and see Green v. St. John's Mansions, W. N. (1900) 9.

See further notes to Ord. XXX. in the Annual Practice.

The summons for directions comes to an end at the trial, after which any interlocutory application ought to be by summons, not by notice. Brown v. Hain, W. N. (1905) 120.

Discovery

Ord. XXXI, r. 5. If any party to a cause or matter be a body corporate or a joint stock company, whether incorporated or not, or any other body of persons authorized by law to sue or be sued, whether in its own name or in the name of any officer or other person, any opposite party may apply for an order allowing him to deliver interrogatories to any member or officer of such corporation, company, or body, and an order may be made accordingly.

As to who are "opposite parties" for the purposes of interrogatories, see notes to Ann. Pr. Ord. XXV, r. 1. In the case of discovery of documents the words are "any other party" (Ord. 12), but they have been held to mean the same thing as "opposite party."

It is a matter for the discretion of the judge whether any, and what, order should be made. Where the applicant seeks to interrogate the company through its secretary or other such officer, it being his duty to be acquainted with the affairs of the company and to act for them in such matters, it seems to be unnecessary to serve the officer with notice of the application; but in the case of a member who is not an officer, as a rule, notice of the application ought to be served on him. Chadduck v. British South Africa Co., (1896) 2 Q. B. 151, 155.

Unless the judge thinks that there is no officer capable of giving the discovery, a member should not be ordered to be examined. Berkeley v. Standard Oil Co., 13 C. D. 97.

The officer or member is the representative or alter ego of the company for the purpose of answering the interrogatories. Berkeley v. Standard Co., 13 C. D. at p. 101. An officer of a company, answering on its behalf interrogatories administered to it, is only bound to answer as to his knowledge acquired in the course of his employment by the company, and as to the result of inquiries made by him of its other officers and agents with regard to their knowledge acquired in the same way, and he is not bound to answer as to his own knowledge, or to make inquiries of the other officers or agents of the company as to their knowledge, acquired accidentally or in some other capacity. The answer of an officer, being the company's answer, can be read against it, and it can only be required to answer as to that with respect to which an individual litigant in its position would have been bound to answer. Welshuch Incandescent Gas Lighting Co. v. New Southlight Incandescent Co., (1900) 1 C. A. 2 Ch. 1. See also Ann. Pr., notes to Ord. XXXI.

If the officer selected to answer have no personal knowledge of the facts he should apply to those servants of the company who have. Southwick Co. v. Luck, 5 Q. B. D. 315.

The Court will not, as a rule, compel persons who are parties to an action to produce books which are in their possession as directors of a company which is not a party. Williams v. Ingram, 16 T. L. R. 431, 451. Otherwise in the case of a liquidator having absolute control of the documents. London & Bank Corp., 15 Q. B. D. 7, 473. But where a suit was proceeding against some only of the directors of an unincorporated joint stock company, alleging fraud at the expense of the company, an order was made for the production of books and documents which were the joint property of all the directors, and which were in the custody of a solicitor as the agent of the directors. Wolburn Inc., 1 M. & K. 61.

As to ordering copies of entries in business books to be furnished in lieu of inspection, see Ord. XXXI. r. 19a, and White v. Spafford & Co., (1901) 2 Q. B. 241.

As to interrogatories not being put with a view to obtain admissions, see Clarke v. Clarke, W. N. (1899) 130.

Interrogatories

Interrogatories on behalf of the dft for the examination of the pls by their secretary delivered pursuant to Order dated —.

1. On what date do you allege that the dft applied for shares in the plt coy? If the applicon was in writing, identify the document containing such applicon.

2. Look at the first document mentd in the schedule of the plt's affit of documents, and state in whose handwriting is the signature "John Smith." From whom, and when, and under what circumstances, did the plt coy receive this document?

3. When, and by whom, was the alleged payment of 50*l.* in respect of ordinary shares made? Was such payment made in cash? If nay, in what form was it made? and if by cheque or cheques, state to whom such cheque or cheques was, or were, made payable; by whom drawn, and on what bank; and whether indorsed or not, and, if yea, by whom indorsed. Was any and what receipt given, and to whom, for the alleged sum of 50*l.*?

4. Prior to the payment of the alleged sum of 50*l.*, did any communication pass, and was any arrangement made, between the plt coy, or anyone on its behalf, and the dft, or anyone on his behalf respecting such payment? If yea, state the nature and substance of such communication and arrangement, and when, and where, and between whom, the same took place. The plt coy is required to answer all these interrogatories by their secretary or other proper officer.

CHAPTER XIX.

19—. C. No. ——. Form 695.
Writ issued —th —, 19—

In the High Court of Justice.
Division.

Action for calls Statement of claim.

Between The C. Coy, Limtd Plaintiffs,
and
A. B. Defendant.

1. The plt coy, hnfr called "the coy," is a coy limtd by shares, and was incorporated under the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1900, in the year 19—, with a memdum and arts of asson. The dft is a member of the coy, and as such is the registered holder of — shares of £— each in its capital. The sd shares are pd up to the extent of £— per share and no more.

2. The sd arts of asson contain the following clauses numbered resply 20 and 21, that is to say:—

"20. The directors of the coy may from time to time make such calls as they think fit upon the members in respect of all moneys mpd on the shares held by them resply, and not by the conditions of allotment made payable at fixed times, and such member shall pay the amount of every call so made on him to the persons, and at the times and places appointed by the directors, and a call shall be deemed to have been made at the time when the resolution of the directors authorizing such call was passed."

"21. One month's notice of any call shall be given specifying the time and place of payment, and to whom such call shall be pd, and if the sum payable in respect of any call or instalment be not pd on or before the day appointed for payment thof, the holder for the time being of the share in respect of which the call shall have been made shall pay interest for the same at the rate of 10 p.c.p.a. from the day appointed for the payment thof to the time of actual payment."

3. In exercise of the power conferred on the directors of the coy as aforesaid, they at a meeting of the directors duly convened and held on the — day of —, duly made a call on the members, including the Form 695. dft, of £— per share, and determined that such call should be paid to the coy's bankers, Messrs. —, at their banking house at — on the — day of —.

4. Due notice of the sd call was given to the dft, and he was required to pay the sd call in accordance with the terms of the sd resolution.

5. The dft made default in payment of such call, and there is now due to the coy in respect thof a sum of £—, the amount of such call, together with interest thereon at the rate of 10 p.c.p.a. from the — day of —, the day appointed for the payment of such call.

6. The coy claims.

(1) Payment of the sd sum of £—, with interest thereon, at the rate of 10 p.c.p.a. from the — day of — until payment.

(2) Costs.

By sect. 79 of the Companies Act, 1862, it was provided that "in any action or suit brought by the company against any member to recover any call or other moneys due from such member, in his character of member, it shall not be necessary to set forth the special matter; but it shall be sufficient to allege that the defendant is a member of the company, and is indebted to the company in respect of a call made or other moneys due whereby an action or suit hath accrued to the company." This section is not re-enacted in the Act of 1908—no doubt advisedly—for under the present practice it is found more convenient to state the facts as above. By so doing, the defendant is more certainly compelled to raise and specify in detail the defences on which he relies. Moreover, unless the provisions of the articles are set out, the right to interest after the issue of the writ will not appear. In many cases judgment for payment of calls can be obtained by a specially indorsed writ, and a summons under Ord. XIV. r. 1. See p. 1368.

Very commonly, in an action for calls, allotment money, or instalments, the writ is specially indorsed under Ord. III. r. 6, and there is no other statement of claim. The defendant in such cases may put in a defence and the plaintiff company can reply thereto, e.g., as in Form 697, infra (but not now without an order. See Ord. XXII. r. 1).

In an action for calls, the usual defences set up are: (1) That the defendant is not a member of the company, and that the shares were allotted to him without his consent, and in such case there may be a counterclaim to have his name removed, and for damages, or (2) that he was induced to take up the shares by misrepresentation, in which case he would counterclaim to have the contract rescinded, or, when neither of the foregoing defences are available in such case, there could be a counterclaim to rescind the contract, or (3) that the call was irregularly made.

Other defences are: that the call was bad in form (Cawley & Co., 42 Ch. D. 209), that the stipulated period since the last call had not elapsed, that the call exceeds the stipulated amount, that the directors making the call were not duly appointed or duly qualified, that there has been a set-off (unless the company is in winding up), or that the call was made malâ fide (Norman v. Mitchell, 19 Beav. 278).

As to the defence of fraud to an action for calls see Aron's Receipts v. Funnell (1896) A. C. 273.

If the company is in winding-up, the liquidator may obtain a balance-order or may sue (in the company's name) for the calls. The balance-order can be enforced by a fi. fa., but if that remedy results in nothing, and bankruptcy proceedings are in view, a balance-order will not found procedure by bankruptcy notice as it is not a "final judgment" within sect. 1, sub-sect. 1 (g) of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883. Ex parte Whinney, 13 Q. B. D. 476; Ex parte Grimwade, Re Tennent, 17 Q. B. D. 357. The liquidator cannot sue on the balance-order. Westmoreland, &c. Co. v. Feilden, (1891) 3 Ch. 15; Pritchard v. English and Colonial Syndicate, (1899) 2 Q. B. 428, 434. But the call is a specialty debt (see sects. 14 (2) and 125 of the Companies Act, 1908 (sects. 16 and 75 of the Act of 1862)), and is not merged in the balance-order. Westmoreland, &c. Co. v. Feilden (at p. 25). The liquidator may, therefore, notwithstanding the balance-order, sue for the call in the name of the company and in such an action, sect. 168 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908 (sect. 106 of the Act of 1862), makes the balance-order conclusive evidence that the money is due, and "of all other pertinent matters stated in such order. On obtaining judgment in the action, the company can proceed against the shareholders by bankruptcy notice. Bankruptcy Act, 1883, s. 1 (1) (g).

Defence

Form 486

Defence to action for

1. The dft does not admit that the arts of assen of the plt coy (here called "the coy") are sufficiently or accurately set out in the statement of claim, and refers to the same when produced

2. The dft does not admit any of the allegations in paras 3 and 4 of the statement of claim, and in particular the dft denies that the directors of the coy on or about the day of or at any such date, duly or in fact made a call on the members (including the) of £ per share on any call, or that due or any notice of the alleged call was given to the dft

3. If, which the dft does not admit, certain persons purporting to act as directors of the coy purported to make any such call as alleged, such call was invalid. The persons purporting to act as directors were not duly qualified, a quorum was not present at the meeting at which such call is alleged to have been made, and proper notice convening such meeting was given

4. The dft does not admit that a sum of £ or any sum is due from him to the coy

The plaintiff company will then either put in a reply, for leave to do which the company must obtain an order (see Ord. XXIII. r. 1), or the company will set down the matter for trial. By Ord. XXVII. r. 13, if no reply is delivered the pleadings are to be deemed to be closed at the expiration of the period for delivery of it, and all the material statements of fact in the defence are deemed to have been denied and put in issue.

The time for delivering a reply, if ordered, is usually specified in the order and if no time is specified therein, it is ten days from delivery of the defence or the last of the defences, unless the time is extended (see Ord. XXIII. r. 1). If a reply is given, it must be delivered to the plaintiff company, and must be given within the time specified in the order.

Reply whether it clones the pleadings or not; but where no order for a reply has been made, notice of trial can only be given "on the expiration of four days after the defence or the last of the defences shall have been delivered, or at any time after the issues of fact are ready for trial." (Ord. XXXVI. r. 1 (July, 1903).)

Where the defence is, that the defendant was induced to take the shares by misrepresentation, the defence should be modelled accordingly, and a counterclaim should be added, claiming to have the defendant's name removed from the register of members of the plaintiff company. (See infra, Form 698, p. 1370.) In this latter case the reply and defence to counterclaim will be of more elaborate nature.

The plaintiff in the action requires leave to deliver his "Reply and Defence to Counterclaim" (Ann. Pr., notes to Ord. XXIII.), but a third person, not originally a party to the action, but made a defendant to the counterclaim, may deliver his defence to the counterclaim without leave. Ibid.

The defence of set-off is available in an action for calls by a company which is a going concern; but if such a company sues a shareholder for a call, and he sets up a defence of set-off, and before judgment is obtained a winding-up of the company commences, the defence of set-off in the action does not prevent the application of the ordinary rule that the debt owing by the company to the shareholder cannot be set-off in proceedings in the winding-up to obtain payment of the call. Hiram Maxim Lamp Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 70 (Byrne, J.).

And the liquidator can, in settling the shareholder on the list of contributories, apply for a balance-order, and will have to discontinue the action. Ibid.

A set-off of debts cannot be allowed where both are not presently payable or there has been a change in the person entitled to receive payment of one or other of the debts. Thus, in Ex p. The Peak Hill Gunfield, Limited (a Debtor), (1900) 1 K. B. 430 (Ct. A.), where a company petitioned for the bankruptcy of one of its debenture stockholders, and it was held that the set-off was prevented by the appointment of a receiver for another creditor of the debtor's interest in the stock before the petition was disposed of, and by resolution of the stock holders postponing the time for redemption of the stock, and later on the bankruptcy order being made whereby the trustees in bankruptcy of the debtor became entitled in the place of the receiver.

Defence and Counterclaim.

Defence.

The dft says that

1. He denies that he is a member of the plt coy or the holder of the sd shares or any of them.

2. He denies that the sd calls were made validly or at all, or that he had notice thereof, or that he ever became bound to pay the alleged calls or any pt thereof or any interest thereon

3. Alternatively he was induced to take the shares by certain misrepresentations and concealments in the prospectus inviting him to take the sd shares, and in a report made by L. & M. referred to in the sd prospectus. Form 697.

1. Particulars of the misrepresentations and concealments:

The prospectus stated that, &c., that, &c., that, &c.

The whole of the above statements were untrue.

The dft refers to the sd prospectus and report.

Further, in the alternative the dft agreed to subscribe for the shares upon the condition that 20,000 should be subscribed before the plt coy went to allotment. This condition was never fulfilled.

Counterclaim.

And by way of counterclaim the dft says that

6. He repeats the allegations in paragraphs 3 and 4 of the defence, and further says that, at the time of the issue of the sd prospectus, the dfts E., F., G. and H. were promoters of the plt coy, and each of them authorized the issue of the sd prospectus, and the plt by counterclaim relies on the provisions of the Directors' Liability Act, 1890 (Consolidation Act, 1908, s. 84). He also further says that the sd misrepresentations and concealments were made fraudulently by the sd dfts by counterclaim, and also that the sd dfts by counterclaim had no reasonable ground for believing that Messrs. L. & M. were competent to make their sd report.

7. By reason of the plt by counterclaim having taken the sd shares on the faith of the sd prospectus and report, which shares are wholly valueless, he has become liable, if he be held liable, to pay the plt coy their claim in this action, and has lost the moneys pd or to be pd by him for the sd shares.

The plt by counterclaim claims against all the dfts

- (1) Rescission of the contract (if any) to take shares
- (2) Rectification of the register by striking off the dft's name as the holder of the shares in the plt coy
- (3) Repayment of all moneys pd by the dft, and
- (4) Against the dfts E., F., G. and H. damages, and an indemnity against his liability (if any) to the plt coy in this action and in respect of any further calls

If the shareholder is a trustee for another person, the latter is bound to indemnify the former against calls, and may be made a party to the action by a third party notice. See Hardoch v. Bellius, (1901) A. C. 118; Stevenson v. Wilson, (1907) P. C. 44.

Form 698

Defence and Counterclaim

Another.

Defence.

1. The dft denies that he is the holder or registered holder of any shares in the plt coy, or that any right of action has accrued to the plt coy, or that any interest is payable, or that any call has been made upon any shares held by the dft.

2. If the dft is entered on the register of members of the plt coy, he says that he is entered without sufficient cause, and that his name should be removed from such register for the reasons following:

3. The dft by two certain underwriting letters requested the W. B. Coy, Limtd (herein called the promoters), to admit him as an underwriter of 2,120 shares in the plt coy upon the footing of and subject to the conditions printed at the back of the sd two letters, and handed to the promoters cheques amounting to 200*l*. By the 5th of the sd conditions it was declared that the underwriters were to be relieved altogether unless at least 45,000 of the sd shares were underwritten before the prospectus was issued to the public.

4. In fact 45,000 of the sd shares were not underwritten before the prospectus was issued to the public, but the promoters none the less and without any authority from the dft, applied to the plt coy for 2,120 shares in the plt coy, and pd over to the plt coy the sd cheques amounting to 200*l*.

5. The plt coy purported to make an allotment to the dft of the sd 2,120 shares, although they knew and had notice of the terms of the dft's letter of underwriting, and knew that 45,000 of the sd shares had not been underwritten.

6. The plt coy falsely by its prospectus pretended that 45,000 shares or the whole of the capital then offered for subscription was underwritten.

7. The dft, believing that the whole of the sd 45,000 shares had been underwritten, pd to the plt coy £ — on receiving notice of the allotment of the sd 2,120 shares.

8. As soon as the dft learned that in fact the sd 45,000 had not been underwritten he repudiated the sd allotment.

Counterclaim

9. The dft repeats paragraphs 2 to 8 of his defence, and counterclaims —

1. Repayment of the sd sums of 200*l*. and £ — , with interest.
2. Rectification of the register of members of the plt coy by striking out his name.

As to striking out a defence for being frivolous and vexatious, and an abuse of process, see Remington v. Scholer, (1897) 2 Ch. 1, and Ann. Pr., notes to Ord. XXV, r. 4.

Reply

[As to obtaining leave to deliver a reply, see verba note to Form 696]

As to the defence:

1. The plts contend that paragraphs 2 to 8 in fact are his bare defence in law to this action

2. Save in so far as the same contains admissions, the plts join issue with the dft on the whole of his defence

Reply to a defence to action for allotment of money, as on special endorsed writ

As to the counterclaim:

3. As to paragraph 3 of the defence, the plts admit that the dft made two underwriting applicons to the X. Coy. Limtd (called in the sd applicons the contractors), requesting them to admit him as an underwriter in the plt coy at a commission to be pd to him by the contractors for such underwriting of 10 p.c. in cash, and 10 p.c. in fully pd shares, and upon the footing and subject to the conditions printed at the back of such applicons

4. As to paragraph 4 of the defence, the plts say that it is untrue that a number less than 45,000 of the shares in the sd coy were underwritten before the sd prospectus was issued to the public

5. The plts further deny that the sd applicon to them to allot the sd shares was made without the authority of the dft. The sd shares were duly allotted to the dft, and the dft subsequently pd the amount due from him then upon allotment

6. As to paragraph 5 of the defence, the plts admit that they had notice of the terms of the dft's sd underwriting applicons; but deny that they knew that 45,000 of the sd shares had not been underwritten. As a fact (as hitherto in paragraph 3 stated), the whole of the sd 45,000 shares were underwritten.

7. As to paragraph 6 of the defence, the plts deny that in their sd prospectus it was ever pretended that 45,000 shares or the whole of the capital then offered for subscription were underwritten, or that the dft ever was induced to apply, and did apply, to underwrite any shares by any statement in the sd prospectus. If such statement had in fact appeared in the sd prospectus, the same would have been true

8. As to paragraph 7 of the defence, the plts admit that the dft duly pd to them the sd sum of 337*l.* 10*s.* due upon allotment of the sd 2,120 shares on or about the 25th September, 1899. Save as aforesaid they deny each and every allegation in the sd paragraph contained

9. As to paragraph 8 of the defence, the plts say that at 45,000 shares had not in fact been underwritten (which they do not admit). They deny that the dft, as soon as he learned the sd fact, repudiated the sd allotment, and say that he at all times acquiesced in the same. The plts further say that if the dft did not know that the sd 45,000 shares had been underwritten, he had at the time when he pd the sd

rescind
take shares

1. In the month of Nov., 1900, the plt applied for and was allotted by the directors of the dft coy (herein called "the coy") 200 l. shares in the capital of the coy, and the plt has pd to the coy the sum of 15*s.* per share in respect thof.

2. The plt applied to the coy for an allotment of the sd shares in response to the prospectus published by the coy, and in reliance on the truth of the representations contained therein. Such prospectus contained divers false representations of material facts, of which the following are the particulars:

- (a) The prospectus stated that the owners of the mining rights mentd therein had pd 10,000*l.* for the right to mine upon the N estate therein mentd, whereas, in fact, they had not made any such payment
- (b) The prospectus stated that after an expenditure of several thousand pounds in making borings on the estate, the gutter containing auriferous drift, which had retained enormous profits to the mines situate in the neighbourhood, was struck, whereas, in fact, the gutter had not been struck.
- (c) The prospectus stated that the mining rights were held on lease from the Government for fifty years from the 1st February, 1900, at 6*d.* per acre, whereas, in fact, no such lease had been granted.

3. The plt first had reason to believe that the representations aforesaid were false towards the end of April, 1901, and on the 7th of May, 1901, he wrote to the coy, repudiating his shares, and demanding repayment of the amount pd by him thereon. The coy has declined to comply with this demand.

Form 600

4. According to the terms of the prospectus aforesaid, the balance, namely, 5s. per share on the sd shares, became payable in the month of May, 1901, but the plt has not pd this balance, and the coy threaten to sue him for the amount.

5. Had the plt been aware of the falsity of the representations aforesaid, he would not have applied for or taken shares in the capital of the coy.

The plaintiff claims:

- (1) To have the contract to take the shares aforesaid rescinded, and to have his name removed from the register of members of the coy.
- (2) Repayment of the amount pd by him to the coy with interest at 5 p.c.p.a.
- (3) An injunction to restrain the coy from taking any proceedings against him in respect of the 5s. per share still remaining unpaid.
- 4) Further or other relief and the costs of the action

The commencement of an action claiming rescission as above is a final election by the alleged shareholder to rescind, and is not neutralized by acts which before the action would have destroyed the right to rescind, such as acting as a member. Pomlin's case, (1898) 1 Ch. 104, supra, p. 201.

In cases of rescission the main points to be borne in mind are that it must be alleged and proved that the representations on which the action is based were made by or on behalf of the company; that they were as to material facts; that they were incorrect; that they were made with the object of inducing the plaintiff to take shares; and that he took shares relying on them, and that he sought his remedy with all due promptitude, the latter point being of the greatest importance, because the plaintiff's name being on the register of members may have induced others to alter their position (see pp. 183, 184, 197).

As to actions for damages by a purchaser of shares in the market (as distinguished from an allottee) on the faith of fraudulent statements in prospectuses, see Andrews v. Mockford, (1896) 1 Q. B. 372. A defendant may, before delivering a counterclaim, move for an injunction if both he and the plaintiff are suing upon the same contract. Collison v. Warren, (1901) 1 Ch. 312.

Defence

Delivered, &c.

1. The dft coy (hereafter called "the coy") does not admit any of the allegations in paragraph 2 of the statement of claim, and in particular does not admit that the plt applied for an allotment of the sd shares in response to the prospectus published by the coy, or in reliance on

Form 700

action for rescission

the truth of the representations contained therein; and the coy denies that the sd prospectus contained divers or any false representations of material facts, or any false representation whatever.

2 The coy does not admit that the sd alleged statements in the sd prospectus are accurately set out in paragraph 2 of the statement of claim, but if and so far as that paragraph does accurately set out such statements, the same are all true, and, in particular, it is the fact that the owners of the mining rights mentd therein had pd 10,000*l.*, or thereabouts, for the right to mine upon the N territory therein mentd; and it is the fact that the gutter referred to in sub-sect. (b) of the sd paragraph had been reached; and it is the fact that the mining rights of the coy are held on lease from the Government for fifty years from the 1st February, 1900, at 6*d.* per acre

This is the line of defence if the company can substantiate the statements in the sd prospectus, but often the directors cannot, and then, of course, the line of defence must entirely depend on the peculiar facts. The following is an instance.

2 If, which the coy does not admit, the sd prospectus contains any such statement as is alleged in sub-sect. (a) of paragraph 2 of the statement of claim, such statement is in fact correct. The owners therein referred to did, in conson of the right to mine therein mentd, hand over ppty which had been valued at 10,000*l.*, and which has since been sold for more than 10,000*l.*

2a. If, which the coy does not admit, the sd prospectus contains any such statement as is alleged in sub-sect. (b) of paragraph 2 of the statement of claim, such statement is substantially true, for even if, which the coy does not admit, the gutter struck was not the gutter in the sd sub-sect. referred to, such gutter was even richer, and capable of producing a still larger percentage of gold.

2b. If, which the coy does not admit, the sd prospectus contained any such statement as is alleged in sub-sect. (c) of paragraph 2 of the statement of claim, such statement was substantially accurate at the time it was made. Although no lease had actually been granted, the Government of the State of — had agreed to grant a lease on the terms in the sd sub-sect. mentd, and the lease was subsequently granted upon terms substantially as favourable.

If, which the coy denies, any of the sd representations were in fact false, the coy does not admit that the plt first had reason to believe that they were false towards the end of April, 1901. Some months prior to the month of April, 1901, the plt was well aware of the true facts of the case, and with such knowledge he abstained from repudiating his sd contract to take the sd 200 shares. Moreover, at a general meeting of the coy, held in the month of May, 1901, the plt, with such knowledge, voted as a member of the coy in respect of the sd shares. Accordingly, if such contract was originally acquiescence from now avoiding it.

1. If, which the coy denies, any of the sd representations were in fact false, the coy does not admit that the same or any of them were representations of material facts, and the coy denies that the plt relied on any of the sd representations when he applied for his sd shares, or that he would not have applied for the same had he known the true facts.

There will then follow a counterclaim for the balance of 5s. a share, which will be in the Form 697, with the necessary modifications. The plaintiff's defence to the counterclaim will practically be a repetition of the material allegations in the statement of claim. The above defence may also, in a proper case, contain an allegation that the plaintiff made independent inquiries with a view to showing that he did not rely wholly or at all on the prospectus, but unless there is some substantial ground for such a case it is not much use putting in general allegations of this kind, as particulars will have to be given.

1. &c., on hearing of an application on the part of the dft coy for Form 701 an account in writing of further and better particulars of the alleged misrepresentations and concealments referred to in paragraph 3 of the defence and paragraph 5 of the defendants' counterclaim with Summons & further particulars respect to the following points:

1. Particulars of which of the statements therein referred to are untrue, and which are misleading.

2. Particulars of the dates, parties, and contents of the contracts between the — Coy, Limtd, and the vendors of the various shares, and particulars of the date and contents of the contract between — Syndicate and Messrs. L. & M.

3. Particulars of the agreement referred to in paragraph 4 of the defence as to whether such agreement was verbal or in writing, and when, where and between whom such agreement was made.

And that unless such particulars be delivered in four days, the dfts be precluded from giving evidence in support thereof at the trial, and that the plts have twenty-one days after delivery of the sd particulars in which to deliver their reply to defence and defence and counterclaim.

Dated, &c.

As to an order for further and better particulars, see Ord. XIX. r. 7, and notes thereto in Ann. Pr. If needed be the application can be made before defence. Bank v. Gurnantun, 28 C. D. 123.

Form 702.

1. The dft coy (hence called "the coy") was incorporated on, &c., Form 701
1901, under the Cos Acts, 1862 to 1900, as a coy limtd by shares, and having a nominal capital of 100,000/- divided into 20,000 shares of Form 702. 5*l.* each. One of the objects for which the coy was established was as stated by its memdum of assen, to purchase, &c.

2. On the — day of —, 1901, the coy issued a prospectus to the public inviting applicons for the shares in the capital of the coy on each of which 10*s.* was to be pd on applicon, and 1*l.* 10*c.* on the allotment thof. The sd prospectus contained misrepresentations of which the following are the parlars:

3. [State them.]

4. The sd prospectus omitted to state the following material facts, &c.

5. The plt received a copy of the sd prospectus, and on the faith thof, and induced by and relying on the statements and representations therein contained, and misled and induced by the omission to state the material facts afsd, subscribed for sixty shares in the coy of 5*l.* each, which shares were allotted to him, and in respect of which he has pd to the coy 120*l.*

6. The plt had no reason to doubt the accuracy and fairness of the sd prospectus until the — day of —, 1901, when he read an article in the G — C —, stating, in effect, that, &c. Upon reading that article the plt immediately made inquiries through his solor, and on or about the — day of — discovered the misrepresentations afsd.

7. Immediately after such discovery the plt's solor, acting by his directions, gave notice to the coy repudiating the shares afsd, and demanding repayment of the sd moneys. The coy declined to comply with this demand, and denied the plt's right to repudiate.

The plaintiff claims:

1. A declaration that he was induced to apply for and take the sd sixty shares of 5*l.* each in the capital of the coy by misrepresentation and non-disclosure of material facts.
2. Rescission of the contract by the plt with the coy to take the sd sixty shares, and the rectification of its register of members by the removal of the name of the plt therefrom.
3. Repayment to the plt by the coy of the sd sum of 120*l.* pd by him in respect of the sd shares, and also interest thereon as to the sums of 30*l.* and 90*l.* forming the same, at the rate of 5*l.* p.c.p.a. from the respive times when the sd sums were pd by the plt.
4. An injunction to restrain the coy from making or attempting to enforce, by action or otherwise, any call in respect of the sd sixty shares or any of them.

The defence to this will be very much on the lines of the last defence, except that the material facts alleged to have been omitted will be dealt with and their materiality denied.

1. The dft coy (huftr called "the coy") was incorporated in the year 1907, under the Cos Acts, 1862 to 1900, for the purpose of, &c

2. The dfts, A. B., and C., were, at the dates of the preparation and issue of the prospectus huftr mentd, and are, the directors of the coy.

3. In the month of January, 1909, the dfts, A., B., and C., advertised and issued to the public a prospectus relating to the coy, and inviting persons to subscribe for shares therein.

4. The sd prospectus contained several untrue statements, of which the following are the parlars:

(a) The sd prospectus stated, &c., whereas it was the fact that, &c.

(b) The sd prospectus stated, &c., whereas, &c.

5. Prior to the issue of the sd prospectus, a contract in writing, dated the . . . day of . . . , was made between P. and Q. The sd contract provided, &c. The sd contract was a material contract within the meaning of sect. 81 of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and was not entered into in the ordinary course of business carried on, or intended to be carried on, by the coy.

6. The sd P. was, when the sd prospectus was issued, a promoter of the coy, and the sd contract was material to persons who contemplated subscribing for shares in the coy. The sd prospectus did not specify the date of and parties to the sd contract, and the plt had no notice thof.

7. The untrue statements afsd were made by the dfts A., B., and C. fraudulently, and the sd dfts issued the sd prospectus with knowledge and cognizance of the said contract.

8. The plt received a copy of the sd prospectus, and on the faith thof, and induced by and relying on the statements and representations therein contained as afsd, and misled and induced by the omission to specify therein the date of and parties to the sd contract, he subscribed for 1,000 shares of 1L. each in the capital of the coy, which shares were allotted to him, and he has pd to the coy 500L. in respect of such shares, and has in consequence sustained serious damage.

9. The shares in the dft coy are not, and never were, of any value.

of the Defendants, A., B., and C.

1. These dfts do not admit any of the allegations in paragraph 3 of the statement of claim.

2. (See paragraph 2 of Form 700.)

3. If, which the dfts do not admit, any such contract as is alleged in paragraph 5 of the statement of claim was ever made, these dfts do not admit that the same is sufficiently or accurately set out in paragraph 5 of the statement of claim.

4. These dfts do not admit any of the allegations in paragraph 6 of the statement of claim, and in particular they do not admit that the sd P. was, when the sd prospectus was issued, or ever, a promoter of the dft coy, or that the sd alleged contract was material to persons who contemplated subscribing for its shares in the coy. At the time when the plt applied for his sd shares, he was well aware of the sd alleged contract, and of the particulars thof.

5. If, which these dfts do not admit, any of the sd statements in the sd prospectus were untrue, such statements were not made by them fraudulently, but were made by them in good faith, and after the most careful investigation, and in the full belief that they were perfectly true and accurate. These dfts do not admit that at the date of the issue of the sd prospectus they were cognizant of the sd contract. If there has been a non-compliance with any statutory duty imposed on the dfts, such non-compliance arose from an honest mistake of fact on the pt of them and every of them, as they were informed by, &c. [State particulars.]

6. (Deny paragraph 8.)

7. The shares in the dft coy are, and always have been, of their full nominal value, and particularly in the month of —, after the plt had ascertained the true facts of the case, and become aware of the existence of the sd contract, he could have disposed of his shares at a premium.

One or more of the directors may, of course, have some special ground of defence (see Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 84 (1) (i) (ii) (iii)), as that their names were improperly inserted in the prospectus, or that they were not responsible for its issue; and if there was more than one prospectus, and one had a reference to the contract, it may be shown that the plaintiff applied on such one.

7. Subsequently to such order the plt. for the first time, discovered the untruth of the statements afd.

8. The dft D. was, at the time when the sd prospectus was issued, a promoter of the coy, and he took part in the preparation of such prospectus.

9. The dft E. authorized the issue of the sd prospectus.

10. The shares in the coy are not, and never were, of any value, and the plt has sustained damage by reason of the sd untrue statements.

The plt claims:

- (1.) A declaration that the dfts are liable to pay to the plt compensation for the loss sustained by him by reason of the untrue statements afd.
2. Judgment against the dfts severally for the payment of such compensation.
- (3.) Further or other relief, and the costs of the action.

The defence to such an action will no doubt deny or not admit the facts alleged, and further, will allege that, if the statements were made, they were made by the defendants in the belief that they were true, and that they had reasonable grounds for such belief. contractor, carried on by the dft, together with certain freehold and leasehold premises therein mentioned.

2. By an agreement dated 28 September, 1896, and made between the dft of the one pt and C. of the other pt (after reciting inter alia that a coy was about to be formed under the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1890, having for its objects, amongst other things, the acquisition and working of the sd business and the whole of the defendant's interest therein, and that the capital of the coy was to be such sum as the sd C., in his discretion, should think sufficient), the sd business and freehold and leasehold premises, and certain chattels and effects therein mentd were agreed to be sold by the dft to the sd C. for the sum of 8,280*l.*, and by clause 10 of the sd agreement the dft agreed on being called upon so to do by the sd C., to enter into an agreement with the sd, then intended, coy to act as managing director thof for the term of five years from any period of the year 1896, at a salary of 300*l.* p.a.

3. By an agreement dated 6 November, 1896, and made between F (who was a clerk in the employ of, and the nominee of the sd C.) on the one pt and the sd R. 4. On 6 January, 1899, the sd coy was voluntarily wound up, and J. was appointed liqr thof. [Order appointing joint liquidator.]

5. On 3 June, 1899, the liqr of the coy sold to the dft the sd business, and freehold and leasehold premises, and chattels and effects, for the sum of 1,096*l.* 6*s.* 7*d.*

6. The dft was, when the prospectus hnftr mentd was issued, the managing director of the sd coy. The other directors thof were P., H., and M. The sd C. became a director of the sd coy on 17 November, 1896.

7. The sd coy issued the sd prospectus inviting persons to subscribe for shares in the sd coy. The sd prospectus contained untrue statements, of which the following are particulars:—(1), (2), (3).

8. Each of the sd statements was a material statement.

9. The sd prospectus, whilst setting out a certificate of the sd J., showing the average net profit for the last four years was 3,200*l.* 12*s.* 9*d.*, and alleging that for many years past the establishment at the sd freehold and leasehold premises had carried on a most lucrative business, omitted to state the following facts which were within the knowledge of the dft and were material:—(a), (b), (c), (d), (e).

10. The omission from the sd prospectus of these facts rendered the statements in the prospectus false and misleading, and the omission from the sd prospectus of all mention of the sd contract of 28 September, 1896, made the sd prospectus fraudulent as against the plt under sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1867.

11. The plt had no notice of any of the afd facts and agreement of 28 September, 1896, when he applied for and was allotted shares in the sd coy. Form 706.

12. The plt received a copy of the sd prospectus, and he subscribed for 50 ordinary shares in the sd coy on the faith of the sd prospectus, and he has paid to the sd coy 50l. in respect of the sd shares.

13. The shares in the sd coy are not of any value, and the plt has sustained damage by reason of the sd untrue statements and omissions.

14. The plt relies on the provisions of the Directors' Liability Act, 1890, and also upon sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1867.

15. The plt further says that the misrepresentations and omissions were made by the dft wilfully, and as to the representations with knowledge of their falsity.

The plt's claim is to have:

1. Damages.
2. A declaration that the dft is liable to pay to the plt compensation for the loss sustained by him by reason of the afd untrue statements and omissions.
3. Judgment against the dft for payment of such compensation.
4. Costs of the action.

1. The dft does not admit that the purpose for which R. S., Limtd. was incorporated is correctly stated in paragraph 1 of the statement of claim and craves leave to refer to the prospectus of the sd coy when produced. Form 707.

Defence to the above.

2. The dft does not admit that the agreements referred to in paragraphs 2 and 3 of the statement of claim are fully or correctly set out therein and craves leave to refer to the sd agreements when produced.

3. The sale by the dft to the sd C. referred to in paragraph 2 of the statement of claim was an absolute sale and was not dependent or conditional upon the sd coy being formed.

4. The price for which the sd business and freehold and leasehold premises and chattels and effects were sold by the sd liqrs is not correctly stated in paragraph 5 of the statement of claim.

5. The prospectus of the sd coy did not contain untrue statements as alleged in paragraph 7 of the statement of claim or at all. The statements set out in the particulars under the sd paragraph were not untrue.

6. The dft does not admit that there were any omissions in the sd prospectus as alleged in paragraph 9 of the statement of claim or that the sd omissions were within the knowledge of the dft or material, or that by any omission the statements in the prospectus were rendered false or misleading. The dft denies each and all of the allegations in clauses (a), (b), (c), (d), and (e) of the sd paragraph. Neither the dft nor the sd coy was under any duty or obligation to state in the sd prospectus any of the facts set out in clauses (a),

Form 707. (b), (c), (d), and (e) of the sd paragraph (if they were facts, which is not admitted).

7. The sd contract of 28 September, 1896, was not a contract within the provisions of sect. 38 of the Cos Act, 1867, and the omission from the sd prospectus of mention of the sd contract did not make the sd prospectus fraudulent as against the plt under sect. 38 of the Cos Act, 1867, or at all.

8. In the course of the liquidation of the sd coy the liqrs of the sd coy acting on behalf of the shareholders of the sd coy (of whom the plt was one) gave notice of motion in the High Court of Justice, Chancery Division, that it might be declared among other things that the present dft and the sd C. as promoters and directors of the sd coy were jointly and severally liable to contribute to the assets of the sd coy the sum of 13,792*l.* as compensation for their alleged misfeasances and breaches of trust in concealing from their co-directors the existence of the sd agreemt of 28 September, 1896.

9. Upon the hearing of the sd motion the sd motion was dismissed as against the present dft, and the Ct held that the dft was not in a fiduciary relationship to the sd coy on 28 September, 1896.

10. The dft will contend that in so far as the present action is based upon the omission of mention of the sd contract in the sd prospectus the plt is estopped by the sd judgment of the sd Chancery Ct.

11. The dft denies each and all of the allegations contained in paragraphs 11, 12, 13 and 15 of the statement of claim.

1. The dfts do not admit any of the allegations in paragraph 2 of the statement of claim, and in parlar the dfts do not admit that the coy was promoted by D. and E., and they deny that shortly before the incorporation of the coy, or ever, the sd D. and E., or either of them, requested the dfts, or any of them, to become directors of the coy, or promised to transfer to each of them 100 or any fully pd-up 101 shares therein if they consented to do so.

2. The dfts were, by the arts of asson of the coy, appointed to be the first three directors thof, but, save as aforesaid, they deny each of the allegations in paragraph 3 of the statement of claim. They never received or accepted any such offer as is in the statement of claim alleged, nor were they appointed directors in consequence of any such offer and acceptance.

3. The dfts deny that the residue of the shares which were to be allotted to D. and E. under the contract of the - - -, namely, - - - shares, were by the direction of the sd D. and E., and in pursuance of any such promise as is alleged, allotted to the dfts equally between them, or at all. The dfts have purchased and acquired certain shares from the said D. and E., but they pd the full market price for them. The agreement for the sd purchase was made in the month of - - -, 19-- , and there was not any prior agreemt or understanding to the effect that any such shares should be sold to the dfts.

4. The dfts acquired their shares under the circumstances above mentd, and they deny that in obtaining them they committed a breach of trust.

Of course, if the directors did receive the shares by way of gift, the defence may be open to them that the articles authorized the transaction, or that a general meeting has sanctioned it, or that an independent board, or all the Rectification of Register of Members.

A COMPANY'S register of members is a public document, which all persons dealing with the company are entitled to inspect, and on which they are invited to rely as showing its share capital paid and unpaid (supra, pp. 71, 72). It is therefore of the first importance that the register should correctly represent the actual membership of the company, and should be revised so as to show all changes in such membership as speedily as possible. Sect. 35 of the Companies Act, 1862, which provided a machinery for this purpose, that is, the rectification of a company's register in a summary way, is now replaced by sect. 32 of the Act of 1908. This section runs as follows:

32.—(1) If—

- (a) the name of any person is, without sufficient cause, entered in or omitted from the register of members of a company; or
- (b) default is made or unnecessary delay takes place in entering on the register the fact of any person having ceased to be a member, the person aggrieved, or any member of the company, or the company, may apply to the Court for rectification of the register.

(2) The application may be made, as respects companies registered in England or Ireland, by motion in the High Court, or by application to a judge of the High Court sitting in chambers, or by application to the judge of the

Court to rectify

Court exercising the stannaries jurisdiction in the case of companies subject to that jurisdiction, and, as respects companies registered in Scotland, by summary petition to the Court of Session, or in such other manner as the said Courts may respectively direct; and the Court may either refuse the application, or may order rectification of the register, and payment by the company of any damages sustained by any party aggrieved.

(3) On any application under this section the Court may decide any question relating to the title of any person who is a party to the application to have his name entered in or omitted from the register, whether the question arises between members or alleged members, or between members or alleged members on the one hand and the company on the other hand; and generally may decide any question necessary or expedient to be decided for rectification of the register.

(4) In the case of a company required by this Act to send a list of its members to the registrar of companies, the Court, when making an order for rectification of the register, shall by its order direct notice of the rectification to be given to the registrar.

This summary jurisdiction on motion or summons conferred by sect. 32 is exercisable, it will be seen, in two classes of cases:

1. When the name of a person is without sufficient cause entered in or omitted from the register.
2. Where default is made, or unnecessary delay takes place, in entering on the register the fact of any person having ceased to be a member of the company.

The jurisdiction to rectify in any of the cases mentioned in sect. 32 is exercisable as well after as before winding-up, whether voluntary or otherwise; and where there is a winding-up the power has been held not limited by sect. 98 of the Act of 1862 (now sect. 163 of the Act of 1908) to rectification in order to settle the list of contributories. Oakes v. Turquand, L. R. 2 H. L. 325; Sussex Brick Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 598. But after a winding-up order a person whose name is on the register cannot obtain relief on the ground that the contract under which he took the shares was voidable by him, unless he shows that he avoided it before the winding-up commenced, and, if necessary, took legal proceedings to enforce the avoidance. Oakes v. Turquand, supra.

After a winding-up order the Court, on settling the list of contributories, is, by sect. 163 of 1908, given power to rectify the register, but the liquidator cannot rectify without the special leave of the Court. Sect. 173 of the Act of 1908.

In a voluntary winding-up the liquidator may alter the register on sanctioning transfers of shares made after the commencement of the winding-up. Sects. 131, 133 (7) of 1862; Taylor, Phillips & Rickard's case, (1897) 1 Ch. 298. If there is no winding-up pending, the application should be made to one of the ordinary judges of the Chancery Division (if it is made in that Division) and not to the winding-up judge. British Columbian Exploitation and Gold Estates, W. N. (1899) 32.

The secretary of a company has no power to strike a name off the register of members. Wheatcroft's case, 29 L. T. 326.

The following are some of the cases in which orders have been made:-

1. Where the applicant was induced to take the shares by misrepresentation in the prospectus. Stewart's case, 1 Ch. 574; Smith's case, 2 Ch. 604. See also Ex parte Kintrea, 5 Ch. 95; London and Staffordshire Co., 24 C. D. 149; Anderson's case, 17 C. D. 373.
2. Where the company improperly neglected or refused to register a transfer. Stranton Iron Co., 16 Eq. 559. Although winding-up has commenced before the application to rectify is made. Sussex Brick Co., supra.
3. Where shares had been issued under a contract to issue fully paid-up shares, and the contract had not been filed pursuant to sect. 25 of the Act of 1867. See infra, p. 1394, and Form 718, infra.
4. Where shares have been improperly forfeited (see Form 716), or where the register has been improperly altered with a view to asserting the company's lien. Ystalyfera Gas Co., W. N. (1887) 30.
5. Where a transfer in favour of a mortgagee has been registered by mistake (see Pullbrook v. Richmond Co., 9 C. D. 610); or where the company have omitted to register a transfer. Manchester and Oldham Bank, 54 L. J. C. 926; see also Violet Consolidated, &c. Co., supra.
6. Where the company, acting on a forged transfer, removed a name. Bahia and San Francisco Railway Co., L. R. 3 Q. B. 584.
7. Where there was a dispute between a vendor and purchaser of shares. Ex parte Shaw, 2 Q. B. Div. 463.
8. Where the applicant was registered as the holder of shares which had been irregularly allotted to him. Homer District Gold Mines, 39 C. D. 546; Portuguese Consolidated Copper Mines, 42 C. Div. 160.
9. When the signatory of an underwriting letter not constituting a contract had been placed on the register. Consort, &c. Co. (1897) 1 Ch. 575.
10. Where a shareholder who had made an ultra vires surrender of his shares to the coy claimed to have his name reinstated. Bellerby v. Rowland and Marwood's Steamship Co., (1902) 2 Ch. 14, C. A.

There was at one time some difference of opinion as to the extent of the jurisdiction conferred by sect. 35. See Ex parte Sargent 17 Eq. 273; and Ex parte Shaw, ubi supra. But the true view apparently is that, although persons are not entitled to an order et debito justitia, the jurisdiction is unlimited, with a discretion in the Court in the circumstances of each case. Kimberley North Block Diamond Mining Co., W. N. (1888) p. 126, C. A.; 59 L. T. 579; Sussex Brick Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 598, C. A. See, too, Ward and Henry's case, 2 Ch. 431; Askew's case, 9 Ch. 664; Stewart's case, 1 Ch. 575.

As between a member and the company, the Court will rarely decline to act under the section. Ex parte Parker, 2 Ch. 685; Ex parte Penney, 8 Ch. 446; Stranton Iron Co., 16 Eq. 559. But the Court under the repealed section had to be satisfied of the justice of the case. "The Court may . . . if satisfied of the justice of the case, make an order." See the observations of Lord Macnaghten in Trevor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409, 440, and of Vaughan Williams, L. J., in Sussex Brick Co., supra.

With reference to this discretion, the following passage from the judgment of Kekewich, J., is in point:

"The power of rectifying the register given by the 35th section of the Act of 1862 is discretionary in this sense, that the Court properly can only exercise it if satisfied of the justice of the case; and on many applications the Court has declined to exercise this power on the ground that it would not be fair to do so, or, to put it more technically, that the applicant has not established any equity to disturb the existing state of things. And in considering this, the Court has always had regard to the lapse of time and to any facts and circumstances indicating acquiescence in the existing state of things by those on whose behalf the application is made to disturb it. The applications have been generally made by official liquidators seeking to establish liability for calls, but obviously the like considerations must apply to applications by those who seek to be restored to the privilege of shareholders." Bellerby v. Rowland and Marwood's Steamship Co., (1901) 2 Ch. 265, 273.

The words "if satisfied of the justice of the case" do not appear in sect. 32 of the new Act, but the Court still has a discretion by virtue of the word "may."

Whether in any particular case it is desirable to apply under this section, or to bring an action, must depend on the circumstances. In a simple case, where an immediate rectification is essential, it may be desirable to apply under the section; but if the case is at all complicated (e.g., where the applicant seeks to enforce rescission of his contract to take shares on the ground of misrepresentation and witnesses may have to be examined, and a little delay will not much matter), an action should be brought. Re Kimberley North Block Diamond Co., 59 L. T. 579; Ruby Consolidated Mining Co., 43 L. J. Ch. 633. Under the present practice, a question can be tried in a much more satisfactory manner in an action than upon a motion or summons. In any case, it is not the practice in the Chancery Division to take such applications on ordinary motion days; they are commonly placed in the list of non-witness actions: see Form 717.

An application under sect. 32 should be intitled "In the Matter of the Act of 1908 and of the company." It should be made by motion (Duffin v. Merriam, &c. Co., W. N. (1890) 116) or originating summons.

If the application is made in the Chancery Division, the judge should be balloted for. Re Dowson, W. N. (1889) 222. And see Legal and General Investment Co., W. N. (1901) 72.

The register should be rectified, in the case of a removal, by striking through the name with pen and ink (not scratching it out with a penknife), and adding, "By order of the High Court of Justice, dated, &c., this name has been erased," the abstract to be signed by the secretary. Iron Shipbuilding Co., 34 Beav. 597.

Upon an examination of witnesses before an examiner for the purposes of a motion under the above section, the applicant's witnesses are first to be cross-examined. Doré Gallery, W. N. (1890) p. 62.

Whether the company is being wound up or not, the Court may fix a particular date— even a past date —as from which the alteration is to become operative—nunc pro tunc—subject to any conditions necessary to protect the rights of third persons. Sussex Brick Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 598.

The order to rectify does not invalidate notices to registered members of a meeting to pass resolutions for voluntary winding-up. Ibid.

As to drawing up the order where an undertaking to stamp unstamped documents has not been complied with, see Coolgardie Goldfields, (1900) 1 Ch. 475.

The effect of an order for rectification, by striking out a name, is the same as if the name had never been put on. Pulbrook v. Richmond Mining Co., 9 Ch. D. 615.

Damages can only be given where the Court rectifies the register, not where the applicant claims damages under the estoppel doctrine, in Bahia Rail. Co., L. R. 3 Q. B. 584; Ottos Kopje Diamond Mines, 41 W. R. 258.

It has been usual to frame an order to rectify in general terms as above without saying who is to rectify; but in L. L. Syndicate, Limited, W. N. (1901) 164, Kekewich, J. (the company's officials having resigned), ordered the company to rectify the register, and on its default made an order (under R. S. C. Ord. XLII. r. 30) empowering the applicant to rectify.

And order that after the agreemt of the 27th April, 1888 (being the sd exhibit marked D., adopting agreemts under which the sd shares were agreed to be issued), has been filed with the Registrar of [Joint Stock] Cos, the sd coy do allot or issue to the sd A., B., and C. resply, fully pd up shares of the same nominal value and number as they now resply hold as afsd in exchange for the certificates of the like shares now held by them. Hadfields Steel Co., Chitty, J., 3rd June, 1892, A. 880.

When paid-up shares had been agreed to be issued for a consideration other than cash, and by mistake the agreement had not been filed in accordance with the now repealed sect. 25 of 1867, the Court in some cases rectified the register to the intent that the agreement might be filed, and the shares re-issued. See further, infra, pp. 1420, 1421.

Form 718.

Although the above and the following forms actually order the agreement to be filed, it would seem that there is not in fact any jurisdiction to make such an order except by consent. The jurisdiction is merely to rectify the register, and give damages. Maynards, Limited, (1898) 1 Ch. 515. Since the decision in Trevor v. Whitworth, 12 App. Cas. 409, it seems doubtful how far any relief ought to be granted in such cases; and, at any rate, if there has been any considerable lapse of time, it will be proper to provide for the payment of creditors, who may possibly have given credit to the company on the faith of the shares in question having been issued on the footing that they shall be paid up in cash. See Darlington Forge Co., 34 C. D. 522; Broad Street Bldg. Co., W. N. (1887) 149; Nottingham Brewery Co., 4 T. L. R. 429. In the case last mentioned, North, J., made the order on the terms that, before it was passed, evidence should be produced that all creditors for 300*l.* or upwards had been paid.

And where notice of motion was served and, before the hearing, a winding-up order was made on a petition presented after service of this notice, Vaughan Williams, J., only made the order to rectify on the terms that due provision should be made for all debts incurred between the dates of the issue of shares and the notice of motion. Preservation Syndicate, (1895) 2 Ch. 768.

Upon motion, &c., for M., of —, and W., the tree in liquidation of M., &c. [rectifying register by cancelling M.'s name]. And let an agreement be forthwith drawn up and executed, embodying the agreement in relation to the purchase of the business of sd M. contained in the original resolutions dated 31st October, 1872, in accordance with which the sd coy was formed; and let the agreement when so executed be forthwith filed with the Registrar of [Joint Stock] Cos; and let new [sic] shares of the sd coy be then forthwith issued in the name of the sd M. by the sd coy in pursuance of the sd agreement, and delivered [sic] to the sd W. Liberty to apply. Phosphate Sewage Co. v. Hartmont, Malins, V.-C., 22 Mar., 1876, B. 481.

In the above case, the promoters had formed the company, and sold it to a concession which they knew to be already forfeited; the real ownership was concealed; the persons who agreed to buy on the company's behalf received a secret bonus of 15,000*l.*; the directors were nominees of the promoters, and the prospectus contained serious misrepresentations. Upon discovery of the facts, a bill was filed by the company against the promoters, including the owners of the concession, the members of a provisional committee, the solicitors, secretary, and others, and a decree was made as above and was affirmed on appeal. See report in 5 C. Div. 394.

In another leading case, New Sombbrero Phosphate Co. v. Erlanger (5 C. Div. 73; 3 App. Cas. 1218), the promoters sold a property to the company without disclosing the fact that they were getting double what they had paid, and without disclosing the real ownership; the directors were nominees of the promoters, and the prospectus contained misrepresentations. Upon discovering the facts, a bill was filed, and, on appeal, a decree was made as below mentioned. An appeal to the House of Lords was dismissed with costs.

The decree of the Court of Appeal declared that the contract ought to be set aside, and decreed the same; declared that the defendants were liable to repay the purchase-money, and were liable for the shares issued in part payment; ordered them to pay the purchase-money, with interest; gave liberty to prove for amount against estates of bankrupt defendants; directed inquiries as to which of the shares still belonged to defendants, and of proceeds of sale of those sold; directed a transfer of the former, and payment of such proceeds; gave liberty to prove against estates of bankrupt defendants for such proceeds; declared that company entitled to be paid the purchase-money and said proceeds out of estate of deceased defendant; declared defendants and estates of bankrupt and deceased liable for costs of suit, and directed payment, &c.; directed accounts of profits, if any, made by company in working the island; ordered company, upon payment of the purchase-money, &c., to deliver up island, and pay over such profits, if any; directed inquiries as to estate of deceased defendant; adjourned further consideration; dismissed bill, with costs, as against D. & W. Seton, 6th ed. p. 2328, where the decree will be found more fully set out.

The case was explained and distinguished in Solomon v. Solomon & Co., (1897) A. C. 22, the case of a private company. See supra, pp. 940-945.

Contract for sale of mine set aside.

In the above case a mine had been purchased from the liquidator of a company for 1,000*l.*, and resold shortly afterwards to a new company, promoted by the purchasers, for 4,500*l.*, payable part in cash and part in shares. Due disclosure was not made, and the directors were not independent. Kay, J., was of opinion that the defendants, except S., the nominal purchaser, against whom no relief was claimed, were promoters and partners in carrying out an inequitable, and therefore fraudulent, scheme; that the directors, who were mere nominees of the defendants, had no opportunity of forming a separate judgment as to the propriety of carrying out the contract entered into by the defendants; that the defendants, as promoters, stood in a fiduciary position to the company; that the increased price was exorbitant; that the plaintiff company was not disentitled on the ground of delay, because the knowledge of the transaction complained of was improperly kept back; and accordingly judgment as above was entered. Presents, &c. to Directors.

Minute of judgment: This Ct doth order and adjudge that the dft G. do, within one calendar month after service of this order, pay to the plts, the Nant-y-Glo, &c. Director ordered to
shares.

In this case the defendant G. became a director at the request of the promoters, and he accepted from them a present of fifty fully paid-up shares of 100*l.* each. It was admitted that at the time they were transferred to him, or shortly afterwards, they were worth 80*l.* per share. They subsequently fell to 1*l.* per share. The company claimed a declaration that G. was a trustee for the company of the shares, or of the value thereof, at the election of the company, and judgment was given as above. See also the somewhat similar case of Drum Slate Quarry Co., McLean's case, 55 L. J. Ch. 36, in which McLean, who had during the whole of its existence been a director of the Drum Slate Quarry Company, which was then in liquidation, and had received from the promoters a present of 1,000*l.* to buy shares, was, on the application of the liquidator under sect. 165 of the Companies Act of 1862 (now sect. 215, Companies Act, 1908), ordered to account for the shares at the value at which they were when he received the present, with interest at 5 per cent.

In the case of Fitzroy Bessemer Steel &c. Co., 50 L. T. 144, before Kay, J., where no dividends had ever been received, a promoter and director who obtained shares improperly, though ordered to account for the value of the shares, was not, under the circumstances, ordered to pay interest.

See also orders in Part II., Chapter XLIV., against directors under sect. 165 of the Companies Act of 1862, and the substituted sect. 10 of the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890, now itself replaced by sect. 215 of the Companies Act, 1908, and supra, p. 733.

As to an application by liquidator that the Court would direct a prosecution of a director under sect. 167 of the Companies Act, 1862, and order the costs to be paid out of the assets, see Charles Denham & Co., 32 W. R. 920; 53 L. J. Ch. 113; 51 L. T. 570; Re Euphras Fuel and Gas Co., W. N. (1875) 10; Northern Counties Bank, 31 W. R. 546; and London and Globe Finance Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 728. In the last case, Buckley, J., considered very carefully on what principles the power to order a prosecution was to be exercised, and the test he finally adopted was what would a good citizen feel to be his duty in such a case—if to prosecute, then a prosecution ought to be directed by the Court, even against the wishes of the person entitled to the assets. And see Part II., Chapter XLV., as to prosecutions.

This action and counterclaim coming on, &c., this Ct doth order and adjudge that the dft M. do, within seven days after service of this judgment, pay to the plts, the Consolidated, &c., Limtd, the sum of £— to his hands as a director of the plt coy, and the plts to recover against the dft their costs of this action and of such counterclaim to be Directors' Breaches of Trust.

Form 728. Declare that the applicon of the sums in the bills mentd, namely, &c., amounting to £—, in the purchase of shares in the sd coy constituted a breach of trust and misapplication of the moneys of the sd coy, and that the dfts, Lord F. [and others], are jointly and severally liable to make good and repay to the sd coy such sums of £— and £—, and that the dft Finch is separately and also jointly with the other dfts liable to make good and repay to the sd coy the sd sum of £—, and that dft Finch is also separately liable to make good and repay sd sum of £— to sd coy. And order that sd Lord F., &c., do, on or before 30th June next, pay sd several sums for which they are resply jointly and severally liable as afd, and interest thereon at the rate of 4 p.c.p.a. from the date of this decree up to the time of payment to the sd coy accordingly. Dfts to pay plt's costs of suit. Land Credit Co. v. Lord Fermoy, Romilly, M. R., 24 Mar., 1869, B. 1232. See the report 8 Eq. 7; 5 Ch. 763. The decree was varied as to one of the directors on appeal.

ordered to make good
trust.

Directors are responsible for loss resulting from an improper application of the assets of the company. See supra, pp. 712, 715. But they are not liable, if acting within the limits of their authority, and in good faith, for loss resulting from an error of judgment. Tarquand v. Marshall, 4 Ch. 376; Overend, Gurney & Co. v. Gibb, L. R. 5 H. L. 480.

It is a breach of trust for directors to accept their qualification shares from the promoter on the terms of holding such shares in trust for him, and executing blank transfers to him so as to enable the promoter to disqualify the directors at any moment if he chooses. London and South Western Canal Co., (1911) 1 Ch. 341.

And the Court has now power under sect. 279 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, to relieve a director from liability in cases where "he has acted honestly and reasonably, and ought fairly to be excused for the negligence or breach of trust." As to the meaning of these words, see National Trustee Co. v. Australasia v. General Finance Co., (1905) A. C. 373; Smith v. Thompson, L. J. Ch. 411; Re Turner, Barker v. Ivimey, (1897) 1 Ch. 536; Re Second East Dulwich 745th Starr Bowkett Bldg. Society, 68 L. J. Ch. 196; Re Grindey, Clews v. Grindey, (1898) 2 Ch. 593; Perrin v. Bellamy, (1899) 1 Ch. 797; and Lord de Clifford, (1900) 2 Ch. 707.

As to the liability of directors inter se in respect of breach of trust, and their rights in regard to contribution, see Form 729, infra, and Part II., Chap. XLIV.

As to how far directors are trustees, see Wilson v. Lord Bury, 5 Q. B. Div. 519; British Seamless Co., 17 C. Div. 471; Russell v. Wakefield Waterworks Co., 20 Eq. 473; Lands Allotment Co., (1894) 1 Ch. 655; and cases, supra, p. 711.

Dismiss the bill as against the dft. (G., without costs. Declare that the directors of the plt coy had no power or authority to take or accept the 3,000 and the 500 shares in Barned's Banking Coy in the pleadings mentd on behalf of the plt coy, or to give to the dfts. W., H., M., H., H., and W., and the late dft, W., or any of them, such or any of such letters of guarantee or indemnity in respect of the afsd shares, or any of them, as are in the pleadings mentd.

If a creditor of a company, whose debt is bona fide disputed, attempts to enforce payment by threatening to present a winding-up petition, he will be restrained at the suit of the company, as in the above case. An action, not a winding-up petition, is the proper mode of proceeding in such a case. See, also, Cadiz Waterworks Co. v. Barnett, 19 Eq. 182; Liverpool Household Stores Association v. Smith, 37 Ch. D. 170; and Niger Merchants v. Capper (M. R.), 18 C. D. 557, n.; 25 W. R. 365. In the case last mentioned, the writ was indorsed with a claim, "For an account of the defendant's transactions as agent of the plaintiff company under an agreement, dated, &c., and for an injunction to restrain the defendant from presenting a winding-up petition." Damages for defamation may also be recovered. Quartz Hill Gold Mining Co. v. Eare (No. 1), 11 Q. B. D. 674; and (No. 2), 50 L. T. 274.

Where a petition has already been presented to the High Court by the creditor, there is no jurisdiction now to restrain. Sect. 21 (5) of the Judicature Act, 1873. But application can under that section be made in the winding-up by motion to dismiss the petition. Gold Hill Mines, 23 C. Div. 210. Compare supra, 23 W. R. 286. And a demurrable winding-up petition, and the proceedings under it, can, if used as a means of pressure, be stayed as an abuse of process. A. Company, (1894) 2 Ch. 343. By the Companies Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 26), the Court was given power to extend the time for registering a contract under sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867. That section provided that "Every share in any company shall be deemed and taken to have been issued and to be held subject to the payment of the whole amount thereof in cash unless the same shall have been otherwise determined by a contract duly made in writing and filed with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies at or before the issue of such shares." There were many cases of omission to file such contracts, and accordingly the Act of 1898 provided amongst other things that "whenever before or after the commencement of this Act any shares in the capital of any company under the Companies Acts, 1862 and 1890, credited as fully or partly paid up shall have been or may be issued for a consideration other than cash, and at or before the issue of such shares no contract or no sufficient contract is filed with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies in compliance with sect. 25 of the Companies Act, 1867, the company or any person interested in such shares or any of them may apply to the Court for relief, and the Court if satisfied that the omission to file a contract or sufficient contract was accidental or due to inadvertence, or that for any reason it is just and equitable to grant relief, may make an order for the filing with the registrar of a sufficient contract in writing and directing that on such contract being filed within a specified period it shall, in relation to such shares, operate as if it had been duly filed with the registrar aforesaid before the issue of such shares." Frequent recourse was had to the Act of 1898 between 2nd August, 1898, when it came into operation, and 1st January, 1901, but by sect. 33 of the Companies Act, 1900, which came into operation on that day, sect. 25 of the Act of 1867 was repealed, and it was enacted that no proceedings under sect. 25 of the Act of 1867 should be commenced after the commencement of the Act of 1900. This repeal was, however, by virtue of sect. 38 of the Interpretation Act, 1883, not to affect any right, privilege, obligation or liability acquired, accrued or incurred under the enactment repealed. The Act of 1908 has not touched the matter, and in the result there are still cases in which it is or may be necessary to apply to the Court for relief under the Act of 1898 (see Brutton v. Burney, (1901) 1 Ch. 637), for the Act of 1900 in repealing sect. 25 does not make shares which by virtue of sect. 25 of the Act of 1867 are unpaid, paid-up shares. Nevertheless proceedings under the Act of 1898 are now extremely rare. The cases on the subject and the form of application and orders will be found in the 9th edition of this work. pp. 1257-1263.

Orders extending Time for Registering Mortgages or Charges under sect. 96 of the Companies Act, 1908.

The provisions of the Act of 1908, ss. 93-102 (replacing sects. 14-18 of the Act of 1900), as to registration of certain kinds of mortgages and charges, are referred to above at p. 616. As appears from sect. 93 of the Act, there set out, the registration has to be effected within twenty-one days after the creation of the mortgage or charge, but by sect. 96 power is given to extend the time for registration as follows:

"A judge of the High Court, on being satisfied that the omission to register a mortgage or charge within the time hereinbefore required, or that the omission, Act of 1908 or misstatement of any particular with respect to any such mortgage or charge was accidental or due to inadvertence, or to some other sufficient cause, or is not of a nature to prejudice the position of creditors or shareholders of the company or that on other grounds it is just and equitable to grant relief, may, on the application of the company or any person interested, and on such terms and conditions as seem to the judge just and expedient, order that the time for registration be extended, or, as the case may be, that the omission or misstatement be rectified."

extension allowable

Thus, where there has been an omission to register within the prescribed time the Court has power to extend the time in a number of alternative cases, namely

- (a) Where the omission to register was accidental; or
- (b) Where the omission to register was due to inadvertence; or
- (c) Where the omission to register was due to other sufficient cause; or
- (d) Where the omission to register is not of a nature to prejudice the position of creditors or shareholders of the company; or
- (e) Where on other grounds it is just and equitable to extend the time.

And each of these cases, it is to be noted, is independent as a ground for relief.

The power to rectify is therefore much wider than the power given by sect. 11 of the Bills of Sale Act, 1878, for there the judge is only empowered where the omission to register or misstatement is "accidental or due to inadvertence."

Accident.

The words "accidental or due to inadvertence" in sub-sect. 1 of the Act are to have their ordinary meaning.

The definition of the word "accident" in Johnson's dictionary is "that which happens, unforeseen, casualty, chance"; and in Richardson's dictionary, "that which falls or happens or occurs to, generally with a sub-condition of something unforeseen, unexpected, unfortunate, unnecessary, without design, contrivance, or intention."

The definition in Johnson's dictionary of "inadvertence" is "carelessness, negligence, inattention"; and in Richardson's dictionary, "inattention, uncautiousness, carelessness, negligence, improvidence."

Thus it appears that "inadvertence" is a much wider word than "accident," and inadvertence has been held to have occurred (1) where, the contract having been sent to the company's solicitor to be stamped and filed, there was delay at Somerset House in adjudicating the amount, and the directors in ignorance of this, and assuming the contract to have been filed, allotted the shares. Luck & Gunn, Limited, Kekewich, J., 70 L. T. 722; Cambria Daily Leader Co., Stirling, J., Aug. 1899, not reported. (2) Where the parties were ignorant of the provisions of the Act of 1867. Jackson & Co., (1899) 1 Ch. 348. (3) Forgetfulness of such provisions due to worry and pressure of business. Tomlin & Co. v. Fisher's case, 15 T. L. R. 132; W. N. (1899) 35.

Where a secured creditor proved for his debt, swearing he had no security, and voted at a meeting of creditors in respect of the whole debt, but it was all done in the bona fide belief that there was no security, it was held that this was inadvertence. Re Safety Explosives, Limited, (1904) 1 Ch. 226.

Although the words "or that for any reason it is just and equitable to grant relief" go far beyond "accidental or due to inadvertence," they impose on the applicant who relies on them the obligation of proving "that he has acted with due caution and conscientiousness, and that he has done nothing to disentitle him to relief at the cost of the other innocent persons." Per Wright, J., Roxburgh & Pegg, (1899) 1 Ch. 210.

An example of "some other sufficient cause" is where legal advice has been given (incorrectly) that registration under the Act is unnecessary. N. Abraham & Sons, (1902) 1 Ch. 695.

Many orders for rectification have been made under this section, and in most cases the order is made on the ground of accident or inadvertence. In making the order the Court is exercising a judicial discretion (supra, p. 1421), and accordingly requires evidence of the facts on which the application for relief is grounded, and this evidence is generally given by affidavit.

In one of the earlier cases (Booth Cold Storage, W. N. (1901) 54), in which an extension order was granted in respect of an accidental omission to register, the applicant, beside proving the accident, showed that there was no winding-up and that no creditor had recovered judgment against the company. This evidence was given on the assumption that the Court would follow the rule which had been adopted in regard to bills of sale (Parsons, (1893) 2 Q. B. 122; Crewe v. Cummings (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 420), viz., that the Court should not make an order for extension "so as to defeat a title actually vested in a person who has acted with perfect bona fides," e.g., rights of a trustee in bankruptcy or of an execution creditor.

creditors.

But Buckley, J., in Juplin Brewery Co., (1892) 2 Ch. 79, carried the matter much further, for he laid down a general rule that an order under sect. 15 of the Act of 1906 (now sect. 96 of the Act of 1908), should always contain words to the following effect: "But that this order be without prejudice to the rights of parties acquired prior to the time when such [mortgage or charge] shall be actually registered," except when there is some good ground to the contrary, as where the circumstances are such that the creditors cannot be prejudiced.

Orders made without
absentees.

In laying down this general rule, the learned judge stated that he was adopting the practice established in judges' chambers for years, according to which applications for extending the time for the registration of bills of sale were granted as of course and without notice, "for the reason that by the insertion of these words the rights of absent parties are not affected."

Whether this practice is consistent with the settled rules which have been laid down as to the exercise of judicial discretion may be doubted; but the judges of the Chancery Division have generally adopted the rule, though its operation has been restricted as below mentioned.

In I. C. Johnson & Co., (1902) 2 Ch. 101, the case of Juplin Brewery Co. was considered in the Court of Appeal. Directors of a company had resolved in 1899 to raise 85,000*l.* on debentures, which were secured on property included in a covering deed and by a charge on all the property of the company (including its uncalled capital) for the time being as a floating charge, and were stated to form one series ranking pari passu. Some of the series were issued before the Act came into operation, but 327 of the remaining debentures were issued after that date, and were not registered. The holders of these debentures and the company applied for an extension order, and Kekewich, J., extended the time, but added to the order the qualification introduced by Juplin Brewery Co.

The Court of Appeal substituted for the qualification imposed, the following proviso: "Provided always that this order is to be without prejudice to any rights (other than rights in respect of debentures of the said series) which may have been or may be acquired against the holders of the said debentures set forth in the schedule to this order prior to the time when the last-mentioned debentures shall be actually registered. And it is hereby declared that, except so far, if at all, as may be necessary for giving effect to the proviso aforesaid, such proviso shall not interfere with the rights of equality amongst themselves attached to all the debentures of the said series, but so that in the event of the debentures in the said schedule being avoided as against parties having any such rights as are preserved by the said proviso, none of the holders of the debentures of the said series, other than the holders of the debentures set forth in the said schedule, shall by reason of such avoidance be required to accept any less share of the assets comprised in his security than he would have taken if there had been no such avoidance."

Thus, the Court of Appeal in effect held that the Joplin proviso went too far, and that the rights to be protected were rights acquired against the debenture holders.

The matter was further considered in a subsequent case, Ehrmann Bros. (1906) 2 Ch. 697, and it was in that case held by the Court of Appeal that the proviso is merely designed to protect rights acquired against the property of the company—as by charge, execution, lien, or other security—in the interval between the expiration of the twenty-one days for registering and the extended time allowed by the order. It is not meant to protect, and does not protect, the existing unsecured creditors of the company, unless they have obtained some such security.

Where, within the time allowed by the extension order, an extraordinary resolution for winding-up was passed, Buckley, J., held that the rights of the general body of creditors under the winding-up were protected by the saving words (Joplin form), and that the debenture holders were not as against the unsecured creditors. Anglo-Oriental Carpet Manufacturing Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 914. In the course of his judgment, Buckley, J., said: "When the order of the Court of Appeal"—in Johnson & Co.—"is looked at, it will be found that the words they used seem to have exactly the same effect as those which I used in In re Joplin Brewery Co. . . . I cannot . . . derive from In re I. C. Johnson & Co. any assistance as to the classes of creditors who ought to be protected by the order in such a case as the present. However, assuming that the more restricted meaning is to be given to the words, and that those words cover only the rights of creditors by whom or on whose behalf some proceeding has been taken against the property of the company, I hold that the rights of the general body of the creditors at the commencement of the liquidation are within the terms of the order, because on the winding-up commencing every creditor had a right to say, 'So much per cent. of the assets belongs to me in due course of liquidation.'"

Where the company has power to exchange and vary its debentures, and the debentures have been sealed only and not delivered, new debentures may be issued instead of an extension order being applied for. Bowen v. Defries & Co., (1904) 1 Ch. 37.

An application under sect. 15 [now sect. 96 of 1908] should be made either by originating motion or by originating summons, and in the former case it must be assigned to some judge (if in the Chancery Division) by ballot in the usual way. Legal and General Investment Co., W. N. (1901) 72.

RECONSTRUCTION.

CHAPTER XXII.

INTRODUCTORY NOTES.

THE expression "reconstruction" is not a technical term; it is a popular phrase long in use, compendiously describing a well-known process. Reconstruction usually involves the transfer of the assets and liabilities of an existing company to a new company formed to take the place of the existing company, the conversion of the shareholders in the existing company into shareholders in the new company, and the dissolution of the old company, the result being that the new company and its assets and shareholders are substantially the old company in a new form. But it is not practicable to define reconstruction with any precision, seeing that the features very considerably vary, for example

- (a) The new company generally takes over all or nearly all the assets of the existing company, but sometimes substantial parts are omitted, and in almost all cases the uncalled capital, if any, on the shares in the existing company is excepted from the transfer.
- (b) The new company generally takes over all the debts and liabilities of the old company, but here again part of the debts and liabilities are occasionally omitted, and sometimes the whole or nearly the whole of them, provision being made for the satisfaction thereof out of assets excepted from the transfer.
- (c) The shareholders of the old company are always given the right to become members of the new company, but where the reconstruction is under sect. 192 of the Act of 1908 (replacing sect. 161 of the Companies Act, 1862), they have a right to dissent and be paid out in cash, and in such cases this right is not uncommonly exercised, to some extent at any rate. The shareholders, in addition to receiving shares, sometimes receive, in a reconstruction, debentures, debenture stock or other assets

- (d) The directors of the existing company usually become directors of the new company, but this is not always the case. Sometimes the opportunity is taken to change the directorate

In confirmation of the view that the term "reconstruction" has been used in the above sense the author may refer to the first edition of this work, published in 1877, in which reconstruction on the above lines was explained in detail, with the requisite forms and precedents given, and it need scarcely be said that the author was not then inventing either the process or the word, but was only describing a process then well known in the City of London and elsewhere, and giving to it the name it then usually bore.

How reconstruction distinguished from mere sale.

It has always been customary to differentiate "reconstruction" and a mere sale of the undertaking of a company out and out to another concern without any provision for the shareholders of the selling concern becoming shareholders in the purchasing concern. Reconstruction, again, has always been distinguished from amalgamation, which, as appears below (p. 1481), involves the transfer of the concern of an existing company to another existing concern not formed to take over the amalgamating concern. This distinction has been recognized more than once by the Courts. Thus, in Hooper v. Western Counties Telephone Co., 68 L. T. 78, Chitty, J., had occasion to consider the meaning of the term "reconstruction" in a debenture. "What is included," said his Lordship, "in reconstruction by persons conversant with company law? There is one mode of reconstruction which may, perhaps, be said to be within the strict sense of the term, that is, when there is a winding-up order, an arrangement with creditors sanctioned by the Court under the Joint Stock Companies Arrangement Act, 1870, and a stay of the winding-up, upon which the old company having reconstructed itself according to the arrangement, would re-commence business and go on as the old company. That would certainly be reconstruction within the condition. The company would still continue to exist, but that, and that alone, would be too narrow a meaning to give to reconstruction here. The usual mode of reconstruction is where a company resolves to wind itself up, and proposes the formation of a new company which is to consist of the old shareholders, and to take over the old undertaking, the old shareholders receiving shares in the new company. In that case the old company ceases to exist in point of law, and there is in form a sale to the members of the new corporation. But the company is in substance, and may fairly be said to be reconstructed. It may, no doubt, be said that there is no power in such case to compel dissentient members to come in, but such a scheme is not put on foot until it has been ascertained practically that the old shareholders will come in. Mr. Palmer's well-known book was the first referred to, and it deals elaborately with reconstruction (5th ed. pp. 640, 660). He says the term used is only applicable where a new company is started to take over the business of an old company, and he thinks it is essential to a scheme of reconstruction that a new company should be formed.

The same writer, in subsequently dealing with amalgamation, includes under that heading the case of a sale by a liquidating company of its assets to another existing company for shares in the latter company.

Reconstruction is mentioned in Mr. Buckley's book as sale and transfer of the assets to a new company, but that is obviously not intended to be exclusive. Lindley, L. J., in his treatise, says that reconstruction varies from amalgamation in that, as a rule, there is only one transferring company, and the company to which the property in question is transferred is practically the same company, with some alterations in its constitution. That appears to me to afford a clue to the meaning of the word, as used in a case like the present.

The present case is that of a comparatively small company joining a larger company. . . . The view I take is that the defendant company has not undergone reconstruction." In the same case his Lordship pointed out that the terms "reorganisation" or "reconstruction" are not words of art: they have no technical meaning in law.

South African Supply and Cold Storage Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 268. Buckley, J., had to consider the meaning of the term "reconstruction," as contrasted with the term "amalgamation." "What," said his Lordship, "does reconstruction mean? To my mind it means this: an undertaking of some definite kind is being carried on, and the conclusion is arrived at that it is not desirable to kill that undertaking, but that it is desirable to preserve it in some form, and to do so, not by selling to an outsider, who shall carry it on, but in some altered form to continue the undertaking in such manner as the persons now carrying it on may substantially continue to carry it on. It involves, I think, that substantially the same business shall be carried on, and substantially the same persons shall carry it on; but it does not involve that all the assets shall pass to the new company, or that all the shareholders of the old company shall be shareholders in the new company. Substantially the business and the persons interested must be the same. Does it make any difference that the new company does or does not take over the liabilities? I think not. I think it is none the less a reconstruction because, from the assets taken over, some part is excepted, provided that substantially the business is taken, and it is immaterial whether the liabilities are taken over by the new company or are provided for by excepting from the scheme of reconstruction a sufficient amount to answer them. It is not, therefore, vital that the whole assets should be taken over, or that the liabilities should be taken over. You have to see whether substantially the same persons carry on the same business, and, if they do, I conceive it is a reconstruction."

There are at least five modes of reconstructing a company formed under the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908:—

1. By obtaining a private Act of Parliament reconstructing the company, with a new memorandum and articles of association, as in the case of the Norwich Union Life Insurance Co., the Commercial Union Assurance Co., &c.
2. By means of a sale sanctioned by the Court under sect. 120 of the Act (replacing the provisions of the Joint Stock Companies Arrangement Act, 1870). See further, infra, p. 1492, and Part II., Sect. IV.
3. By means of a voluntary winding-up and a proceeding under sect. 192 of the Act (replacing sect. 161 of the Act of 1862).
4. By means of an exchange of shares followed by a voluntary winding-up. Infra, p. 750.
5. By means of a sale of the undertaking before winding-up in consideration of shares in a new company, followed by a voluntary winding-up and distribution of such shares. But until the mischievous decision in Bisgood v. Henderson's Transvaal Estates Co. (1908) 1 Ch. 743 (see infra, p. 1454), has been overruled, this mode of reconstruction is not practically available.

Reconstruction under Sect. 192 of the Act of 1908.

In this chapter reconstruction under sect. 192 will be almost exclusively dealt with. That section provides as follows:—

Power of liquidator to accept shares, &c., as consideration for sale of property of company.

192.—(1) Where a company is proposed to be, or is in course of being, wound up altogether voluntarily, and the whole or part of its business or property is proposed to be transferred or sold to another company (in this section called the transferee company), the liquidator of the first-mentioned company (in this section called the transferor company) may, with the sanction of a special resolution of that company, conferring either a general authority on the liquidator or an authority in respect of any particular arrangement, receive in compensation or part compensation for the transfer or sale, shares, policies, or other like interests in the transferee company, for distribution among the members of the transferor company, or may enter into any other arrangement whereby the members of the transferor company may, in lieu of receiving cash, shares, policies, or other like interests, or in addition thereto, participate in the profits of or receive any other benefit from the transferee company.

(2) Any sale or arrangement in pursuance of this section shall be binding on the members of the transferor company.

(3) If any member of the transferor company who did not vote in favour of the special resolution at either of the meetings held for passing and confirming the same expresses his dissent therefrom in writing addressed to the liquidator, and left at the registered office of the company within seven days after the confirmation of the resolution, he may require the liquidator either to abstain from carrying the resolution into effect, or to purchase his interest at a price to be determined by agreement or by arbitration in manner provided by this section.

(4) If the liquidator elects to purchase the member's interest the purchase money must be paid before the company is dissolved, and be raised by the liquidator in such manner as may be determined by special resolution.

(5) A special resolution shall not be invalid for the purposes of this section by reason that it is passed before or concurrently with a resolution for winding up the company, or for appointing liquidators; but, if an order is made within a year for winding up the company by or subject to the supervision of the Court, the special resolution shall not be valid unless sanctioned by the Court.

(6) For the purposes of an arbitration under this section the provisions of the Companies Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, or, in the case of a winding-up in Scotland, the Companies Clauses Consolidation (Scotland) Act, 1845, with respect to the settlement of disputes by arbitration, shall be incorporated with this Act; and in the construction of those provisions this Act shall be deemed to be the special Act, and "the company" shall mean the transferor company, and any appointment by the said incorporated provisions directed to be made under the hand of the secretary, or any two of the directors, may be made under the hand of the liquidator, or, if there is more than one liquidator, then of any two or more of the liquidators.

A reconstruction under sect. 192, above, is a matter of ordinary occurrence, and may be resorted to with advantage in a variety of cases, of which the following are examples: Reconstructions common

A. Where the company desires to do something which, by its existing constitution, would be ultra vires, e.g.:— Examples

- (1) To engage in some business or obtain some powers not covered by the objects set forth in its memorandum of association, and it is considered that proceedings under sect. 9 of the Act (replacing the Companies (Memorandum of Association) Act, 1890) would be too expensive, or would involve too much delay, or would not be successful.
- (2) To obtain power to sell its undertaking, there being no power in the memorandum to do so. See supra, p. 510.
- (3) To issue preference shares having a priority over preference shares already issued which by the constitution have a first preference, or to alter the rights attached by the memorandum of association to several classes of shares respectively, and so fixed as to be unalterable without the sanction of the Court.

B. Where a company desires to carry into effect any arrangement which would amount to a reduction of capital without submitting to the stringent conditions prescribed by sects. 46-56 of the Act (replacing the Companies Acts, 1867 and 1877), upon a reduction of capital, e.g.:

- (1) To divide part of its paid-up capital, either in cash or in specie, among its members.

- (2) To reduce the liability on its shares which are only in part paid up.
- (3) To extinguish all further liability on such shares.
- (4) To return capital, but with power to call it up again
- (5) To cancel lost capital.
- (6) To pay off a member or members desiring to retire.

C. Where the company has exhausted its funds and is satisfied that the only or the best mode of raising further funds is to reconstruct and substitute partly paid-up shares for its fully paid-up shares.

Mode in which reconstruction effected.

In case A (1):

Case A.

Let it be supposed that the capital of the existing company is 100,000/.. divided into 10,000 shares of 10/.. each, that its object is to work a particular mine, and that it desires to have power to acquire and work other mines.

Preliminary steps.

The directors, having satisfied themselves that a reconstruction is expedient, will suggest it at a general meeting and procure a resolution in favour of it to be passed; or, as is sometimes done, they will issue a circular to the members or to the largest holders of shares seeking their approval of the plan, or informing them that the plan is under consideration.

New company.

If the plan is favourably received, the memorandum and articles of a new company will be prepared. The objects of such new company will be to acquire, take over and carry on the undertaking, property and liabilities of the old company, and to acquire and work any mines and mining rights, and such other objects as may be deemed expedient. The capital will be the same as that of the old company. The articles will authorize the directors to purchase and undertake all or any part of the property and liabilities of the old company upon the terms of an agreement therein referred to.

Probably by the articles all, or some, of the directors of the old company will be appointed directors of the new company.

The draft of the reconstruction agreement will, at the same time, be prepared. See Form 771.

Issue of notice.

Notice will then be issued by the directors of the old company convening an extraordinary meeting of that company to consider certain resolutions which will be set forth in the notice. See Form 774.

If the resolutions are passed by the requisite majority at the first meeting, a second one will be called to confirm them, so that they may become special resolutions.

And if they are duly confirmed, the new company will be at once incorporated, and the new company, and the liquidators of the old company, will execute the reconstruction agreement.

Special resolution
Sale by liquidators
Agreement

The agreement will provide for the transfer of all or substantially all the property of the old company to the new company, in consideration of the new company undertaking the debts and liabilities of the old company, paying the costs of winding it up, providing the funds necessary to purchase the interest of any dissentient members, and allotting to every assenting member of the old company one share in the new company in respect of each share held by him in the old company.

If the matter has been properly managed, the chances are that there will be but few dissentient members (if any). The funds to pay off the dissentients will be provided by the new company by borrowing or otherwise.

Dissentients

The property of the old company will in due course be made over to the new company, which will allot its shares as provided by the agreement.

Completion of sale

The debts and liabilities of the old company (if it has any) will be got rid of as soon as possible. Many of the creditors will probably agree to accept the liability of the new instead of the old company. The rest will be paid.

Debts satisfied

As soon as may be the liquidators hold the final meetings (sect. 195 of the Act), and make the proper return to the registrar (sect. 195 (3) of the Act), and at the expiration of three months therefrom (if the winding-up is not stayed by the Court) the old company is ipso facto dissolved.

Dissolution of old company

Sect. 192, it will be observed, authorizes a sale sanctioned by a special resolution conferring "either a general authority on the liquidators, or an authority in respect of any particular arrangement." Sometimes a general authority is given; but in most cases it is limited to a sale on the terms of a particular agreement.

General or
authority to liquidators

Instead of a draft agreement, as above, it is not uncommon to have a provisional agreement made between one person on behalf of the old company and another on behalf of the intended new company. In such case the resolution will authorize the liquidators "to adopt" the agreement.

Provisional
agreement

Of course the arrangement must vary according to the circumstances of the company and the objects of the reconstruction.

Variations in arrangement

Thus in cases A. (2) and (3), supra, p. 1435, care will be taken that the memorandum and articles of the new company contain the requisite provisions.

In case B. (1):—

Suppose that the shares in the old company are 20*l.* fully paid up, and that it is desired to return 10*l.*, the agreement will provide that the new company shall, in exchange for each share in the old company, allot one fully paid-up 10*l.* share in the new company, and pay the sum of 10*l.* in cash.

Or suppose that the object of the reconstruction is to divide in specie some assets of doubtful value, e.g., debentures of some other company. The new company will, as the consideration for the sale, agree to allot shares to the members of the old company, and to divide the debentures among them pro ratâ.

In case B. (2):—

Suppose the shares in the old company are 20*l.* with 10*l.* paid up, and it is desired to reduce the liability to 5*l.* In such case, one 15*l.* share in the new company, with 10*l.* credited as paid up, will be allotted in exchange for each share in the old company.

In case B. (3):

Suppose the shares in the old company to be 10*l.* with 7*l.* paid up, and that it is desired to extinguish all further liability. The object will be attained by allotting one fully paid-up 7*l.* share in the new company in exchange for each 10*l.* share in the old company.

In case B. (4):—

Suppose the shares in the old company are 10*l.* fully paid up, and that it is desired to return 5*l.* per share, but with power to call it up again. In such case the new company will allot one of its 10*l.* shares credited with 5*l.* paid up and also pay 5*l.* in cash, in respect of each 10*l.* share in the old company.

In case B. (5):—

Suppose the shares in the old company are 10*l.* fully paid up, and that 5*l.* per share has been lost. In such case the new company will allot one 5*l.* fully paid share in respect of each share in the old company.

In case B. (6):—

Suppose that some shareholders wish to withdraw their capital, and that the others wish to allow such withdrawal, an agreement can be made under which the former will in the reconstruction agree to take a specified amount in cash or shares in satisfaction.

In case C.:—

Suppose that the shares in the old company are 1*l.* fully paid up (say 100,000), and that it is considered that about 25,000*l.* working capital would suffice. In this case, the shares in the new company will be 1*l.* (100,000), with 15*s.* credited as paid up, and every member will have the option of getting one of these shares for every share in the old company held by him.

This (C.) is the commonest kind of reconstruction. The amount per share credited varies. Sometimes it is as much as 17*s.* 6*d.*, sometimes less, according to the requirements of the new company.

New company commonly

In cases of reconstruction, the new company very commonly takes the name of the old one. This is permissible under sect. 8 (1) of the Act. See supra, p. 450. Immediately after the special resolution to wind up, &c. has been passed by the old company, the liquidators sign the proper consent to the registration of the new company by the same name. Supra, p. 1090. The new company is registered by the old name the same or next day, the agreement is forthwith executed, and the new company commences business, thus avoiding any stoppage. Sometimes the name is slightly varied, and sometimes a perfectly different one is chosen for the new company.

old name

It will be observed that sect. 192 only authorizes a sale to a company. Hence a sale to an individual, who is to form a new company, and make such profit as he can out of the transaction, is not valid. Bird v. Bird's Patent Sewage Co., 9 Ch. 358. See Form 740, supra.

Sale must be to company.

But an agreement with some person purporting to act on behalf of an intended company, for a sale to him as such agent or to the company, may be valid (Hester & Co., 44 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 757).

Sect. 161 of the Act of 1862 did not require that the sale should be made to a company registered under the Act of 1862. The sale might be to any company, English or foreign. Irrigation Co. of France, Ex parte Fox, 6 Ch. 183. But it has been decided (Thomas v. United Butter Cos. of France, Limited, (1909) 2 Ch. 484) that under the corresponding section (sect. 192) of the new Act this cannot be done, for a foreign company is not a "company" as defined by sect. 285 of the Act. This oversight on the part of the Legislature involves a grave inconvenience which will have to be remedied.

company

The sale and transfer to the new company need not be of the whole business, it may be of only a portion. R. v. City and County Investment Co., 13 Ch. D. 481.

portion.

It was held in Clinch v. Financial Corporation, 4 Ch. 120, that upon a sale under sect. 161, it was ultra vires to provide that if the assets sold should not produce a sum sufficient to pay up a specified amount on the shares to be allotted as part of the consideration, the liquidators of the selling company should make good the deficiency by making a call. But it is not easy to reconcile that construction of sect. 161 with subsequent cases. What the section contemplated was the sale of the company's "property," and it has been laid down in several cases that, in a winding-up, the uncalled capital is part of the property. Webb v. Whiffin, L. R. 5 H. L. 735; Birch v. Cropper, 14 App. Cas. 545. It is a statutory debt due to the company.

As to selling
capital.

Why, then, could there not be a sale under sect. 161 (now sect. 192) of such property, or a provision for calling it up and handing over the proceeds? It has been held that such a provision is free from objection when the sale was under sects. 95 (now sect. 151) and 133 (now sect. 186), and the call is to be made in order to provide for payment of debts. Bank of South Australia (2), (1895) 1 Ch. 578. Moreover, it would seem from New Zealand, &c. Co. v. Peacock, (1894) 1 Q. B. 622, that a call may be made just before the winding-up, and that the capital thus called can then be included in the sale.

An agreement under the section may now—having regard to the altered form of the underwriting commission section, sect. 89 (1) provide for underwriting. Barrow v. Paringa Mines, (1909) 2 Ch. 658.

Liquidators may be directed to adopt agreement.

An agreement adopted by the liquidators of a company pursuant to the direction of the company, given by virtue of sect. 161 (now sect. 192), has been held valid. Southall v. British Mutual Life Assurance Society, 11 Eq. 65; 6 Ch. 614.

Agreement may provide for allotment of shares to members directly.

The agreement may provide for the allotment of the shares, &c. being made directly to the members of the company being wound up (see City and County Investment Co., 13 C. Div. 475; Burdett-Coutts v. True Blue (Hannan's) Gold Mine, (1899) 2 Ch. 616), or to the liquidator or his nominees to the intent that the shares may be distributed among the members. In such case the liquidator is entitled to object to an allotment to him instead of his nominees. Dyett's case, 43 L. T. 85; National Standard Life Insurance Co., 1 T. L. R. 271.

May give option.

It may be framed so as to give to each member the option of coming in and claiming an allotment of his proportion of share in the new company. Postlethwaite v. Port Philip Co., 43 C. D. 452.

Limit of time.

And it may limit a time within which that option must, if at all, be exercised. S. C.; Burdett-Coutts v. True Blue, &c. Mine, supra. It is no objection where a time is so limited that some members may, by illness or absence abroad or inadvertence, be prevented from dissenting or sending in claims in time. See case last mentioned. If no time is limited, the option must be exercised within a reasonable time. S. C. and Weston v. New Guston Co., 60 L. T. 805; 64 H. L. 815; Zucca v. Nacupai Co., 61 L. T. 176. What is a reasonable time for exercising the option must depend on the character of the property and on the circumstances; but where the property is of a speculative character (e.g., a mine), and those who claim must pay or come under a liability to pay calls, the Court is very ready to exclude a claimant who does not come in promptly.

May empower liquidators to sell unclaimed shares.

If the option is exercised in due time, but the liquidator fails to allot the shares, and disposes of them elsewhere, the Court has no jurisdiction in the winding-up, even when under supervision, to award damages against the liquidator. Hill's Waterfall, &c. Co., (1896) 1 Ch. 947. But in an action an allottee may be declared a trustee for the old shareholder. Rooney v. Stanton, 17 T. L. R. 272. The agreement may also provide, although it is not essential to make such a provision, that the shares not taken up pursuant to the option may be sold by the liquidator, and the proceeds held for the persons who could have claimed. Postlethwaite v. Port Philip Co., 43 C. D. 452.

Sale for partly paid shares.

A sale under sect. 161 (now sect. 192) (or under a power in the memorandum), if the context or the articles do not confine the sale to one for fully-paid shares—Mason v. Motor Traction Co., (1905) 1 Ch. 419) may be made in consideration of shares that are only in part credited as paid up. City and County Investment Co., 12

C. Div. 475, Imperial Mercantile Credit Association, 12 Eq. 504; Hester & Co., 44 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 757; Postlethwaite v. Port Philip Co., 43 C. D. 452. But in such case the liquidator should take care that the shares, if not fully paid up, are not allotted to him but direct to the shareholders, otherwise he may find himself involved in liabilities which he never contemplated. Dyett's case, 63 L. T. 85; National Standard Life Assurance Co., 27 T. L. R. 27.

As to a sale under a power in the company's memorandum, see however, pp. 510, 511, supra, and pp. 1452 et seq., infra.

No provision is made by the section as to the mode of distribution of the shares or other consideration received or receivable from the purchasing company, and in the absence of such a provision it has been held that the distribution must be in accordance with sect. 133 of the Act of 1862 (now sect. 186). Griffith v. Paget, 5 C. D. 894.

How shares to be distributed

That section provides that the property of the company shall be applied in satisfaction of its liabilities pari passu, and subject thereto shall, unless it is otherwise provided by the regulations of the company, be distributed amongst the members of the company according to their rights and interests in the company, and the liquidator is empowered to make calls inter alia for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, and is directed to pay the debts of the company and adjust the rights of the contributories among themselves.

What then are the rights in winding-up?

If all the shares are of one class, and the same amount is paid up thereon, the assets available will be distributed in proportion to the shares held; but if some shares are paid up to a greater extent than others, or if some have a preferential right as regards capital, the assets must be distributed in accordance with the general rules above referred to; and if in order to adjust the rights a call is necessary, it must be made, and in making such distribution the shares in the company must be treated as of their actual, not nominal, value.

The agreement may and sometimes does provide in general terms that the share consideration shall be allotted to the liquidator's nominees to the intent that the same may be distributed among the members in accordance with their rights and interests, or it may set forth what each member is entitled to claim; but in the latter case a member cannot, without his consent, be given less than his strict legal rights.

Thus, if there are preference and ordinary shares, both ranking equally in winding-up, it is not prima facie allowable to provide in the agreement that the former shall receive preference and the latter ordinary shares in the new company, for their right is to rank equally. Griffith v. Paget, 5 C. D. 894; 6 C. D. 514; followed by C. A. in Simpson v. Palace Theatre (1893), 69 L. T. 70.

To justify such a provision there must be a special clause in the articles (see supra, p. 785), or special meetings of the class under a clause on the lines of that at p. 685, supra, or a scheme under sect. 120 of the Act.

justify a
otherwise than in
with rights

Nevertheless, even in the absence of such clauses, it may sometimes be possible to depart from the strict legal rights. Thus, suppose a company has 100 founders' shares of £1 each (worth in the market 500*l.* each), and 5,000 ordinary shares of £1 each, worth par. It is desired to reconstruct on the footing that the shares shall all be uniform, and that 500 shares in the new company shall be given for each founders' share in the old company. Griffith v. Paget, supra, forbids such an arrangement. But it may be effected thus: Form a new company with power to acquire the undertaking of the old company and any shares in the capital thereof. Let the new company enter into a provisional agreement for the acquisition of all the founders' shares on the terms desired, viz., 500 of its own for each founders' share, and then let the old company sell its undertaking to the new company, under sect. 192 (replacing sect. 161), on the footing of a share for share allotment, the new company undertaking as the beneficial owners of the founders' shares, to make no use in respect thereof. And see Beeston Pneumatic Tyre Co., W. N. 1898, 31, distinguished in North-West Argentine Railway, (1900) 1 Ch. 882, 890, infra, p. 1443.

Another plan commonly adopted is, before the winding-up procedure and sign an agreement as to the mode of distribution. If the number of members is small, the agreement can be made between them and the company; if the number is large, it can be made between some one purporting to contract on behalf of all the shareholders of the one part and the company of the other part, and can be made conditional on its being ratified by all or some large proportion. See infra, p. 1474.

But even without such consent, a reconstruction agreement providing for distribution otherwise than in accordance with the legal rights of members is not absolutely ultra vires, and will be upheld if the Court is satisfied that all the shareholders have assented, and will not interfere. Beeston Pneumatic Tyre Co., W. N. 1898, 31. On a question of legality a provision for distribution can be made from the agreement for sale. Waller, London and Northern Corp. (No. 1), (1898) 2 Ch. 469. But the evidence must be clear that the members do consent, and accordingly when an agreement for reconstruction provided for a distribution in general terms, and by the preliminary circular it appeared that a distribution other than in accordance with the legal rights was intended, the Court, in the absence of evidence of an unanimous assent, held that the liquidator was bound to disregard the circular, and divide in strict accordance with legal rights. North-West Argentine Railway Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 882.

member

Where a reconstruction agreement provides for distribution otherwise than in accordance with the legal rights, an objecting member who desires to impeach it should bring an action and apply for an annunciation, see Clinch v. Finance and Corporation, 1 Ch. 117, supra, rem 739. Greith v. Paquet, 5 C. 1, 824.

If the agreement is not open to objection, but the liquidator proposes to distribute otherwise than in accordance with legal rights, an objecting member can either bring an action or only in the winding-up for directions to the liquidator. North-West Argentine Loan Co. (1890) 2 Ch. 832.

Dismissing members. By sect. 92 (3) (sect. 164 of the Act of 1862), members who dissent from the special resolution are allowed seven days from the confirmation of the resolution, i.e., the second meeting, within which they must give notice of dissent in writing.
 The notice must be given in writing. 1474

If of the highest importance for a person having a right to new company to be diligent in exercising such right. P.
Kay, J. Weston v. Westington Co., 60 L. T. 805. He will do himself to claim the new shares if he lies by to see whether it rise in value. Ibid. A fortiori if the company's property has no value, e.g., gold. Zuccani v. Nacupai Gold A.
 (1901) 1 T. 180.

When the time to give a limit of a fortnight. Stirling

If dissent should not merely express require the liquidators either to abstain from carrying non interest or to purchase the member's interest. Bank of Kovington v. H. 13 C. D. 808.

It has been held that a notice of dissent served before the confirmatory meeting may, if not withdrawn or returned, be a valid notice within the section. London & Westminster Brick Co. v. N.
 (1890) 3. But it is wiser to follow strictly the terms of the enactment.
 A liquidator has power in special cases to waive dissent within the seven days. Bradley v. Rhodesia Co. (limited) (1910 2 Ch. 95).

If an objecting member fails to give such notice, he must either accept the benefit offered him by the reconstruction, i.e., he must become an assenting member, or else he entirely loses his beneficial interest in the old company; for although he will remain entitled to his shares in that company, yet they are shares in a mere husk or shell, for the whole of the assets of the old company are sold over to the new company.

It was at one time contended that if a member failed to express his dissent within the prescribed period he was bound to sale or arrangement, and was consequently under an obligation to accept any shares or other interest in the purchasing company which were thereby to be allotted to him; but this notion was exploded, and it is now settled that the provision in sect. 161 (repealed by sect. 192), that the sale shall be binding, merely means that a dissentient member cannot impeach the sale. He must either assent or dissent in the prescribed manner, or simply lose his interest. Lox's case, 13 W. R. 883; Higg's case, 2 H. & M. 657; Martin's case 2 H. & M. 669; For's case, 6 Ch. 183; Southall v. British Mutual Life Assurance Soc., 6 Ch. 614; Postlethwaite v. Port Philip Co. 43 C. D. 452; Burdett-Coutts v. True Blue (Hannan's) Gold Mine (1899) 2 Ch. 616; De Rosaz v. Anglo-Italian Bank, L. R. 4 Q. B. 474.

If any question arises as to whether a member has dissented in time, application can be made to the Court having jurisdiction to wind up the company to decide the point under sect. 193 of the Act Union Bank of Kingston-upon-Hull, 13 C. D. 808. In that case the application was by motion as contemplated by sect. 138 of the Companies Act, 1862 (sect. 193, Companies Act, 1908), but it is now usually made by originating summons.

How value
tained.

Where there is a reference to arbitration under sect. 192 (3) and (6) of the Act of 1908, it rests with the arbitrator to fix the value. In doing this the arbitrator should no doubt consider what upon a cash sale the undertaking would fetch as a going concern, having due regard to its debts and liabilities and to all the circumstances of the case and what proportion of that cash the dissentient interest would represent.

The fact that the new company has given a large sum in paid-up shares affords some indication of value, but the arbitrator ought not to assume that the shares thus given are worth par. Mysore West Gold Mining Co., 42 C. D. 535. Their value is a question of fact to be determined if necessary by the evidence of experts: the paid-up or partly paid-up shares given on a reconstruction are sometimes worth but little in the market; and evidence of this kind, that the shares are only saleable at a low figure, goes far to negative the notion that the nominal value of the consideration represents the actual value of the assets sold.

The market value of the shares in the selling company at the time of the reconstruction is again no certain criterion of the value of a dissentient member's interest. Yet it often happens that an arbitrator's valuation is found to accord very closely with such market value.

If there is to be an arbitration it is to be carried out in accordance with sects. 128 to 134 of the Companies Clauses Consolidation Act 1845 (8 & 9 Vict. c. 16). And by virtue of sect. 21 of the Arbitration Act, 1889, that Act also applies except so far as is inconsistent with the provisions of the Act of 1845. See Annual Practice, Vol. 2 "Arbitration Act, 1889," and notes.

A shareholder who has agreed to arbitration has no right to examine witnesses under sect. 115 (now sect. 174, Companies Act, 1908) for the purpose of increasing the value of his shares. British Building Stone Co., (1908) 2 Ch. 450.

The costs of the arbitration proceedings are in the discretion of the Court. Re Imperial Mercantile Credit Association, 41 L. J. Ch. 116. If the liquidator has not tendered a price, the arbitration proceedings will not be at the peril of the dissentient shareholder as to costs, but the costs will be reserved. Ibid

Care should be taken so to frame the agreement that dissentient members shall have sufficient security for the payment of the purchase money for their interests; otherwise there will be risk of legal proceedings. See infra, Form 771, clause 8; Hester & Co., 44 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 757; New Flagstaff Co., W. N. (1889) 123.

Security of dissentients must be regarded.

Where the selling company has a sufficiency of uncalled capital, it would seem from the above cases that such a clause is unnecessary. It may, however, be doubted how far this is consistent with the principles laid down in Clinch v. Financial Corporation, 4 Ch. 120.

It was for many years generally thought that the right of a member to dissent under sect. 161 of the Act of 1862 (192 of new Act) could by apt words be taken away by the articles of a company, and articles of association for many years frequently contained a clause framed on that footing. Such a clause first came under consideration in Fox's case, 6 Ch. 176. In that case it was inserted immediately before the winding-up resolution, and the Court considered that it was then too late, but did not say that in no circumstances would such a clause be valid. However, a closer scrutiny of sect. 161 seemed to show that the agreement was only to be binding subject to the proviso as to dissentients, and this being so, it was held that the articles could not displace the proviso or deprive the members of the right to dissent and insist on payment in cash in accordance with the proviso. See Baring-Gould v. Sharpington Pick, & Co., (1899) 2 Ch. 80; Payne v. Cork Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 308; and see Pereril Gold Mines, (1898) 1 Ch. 122; Bisgood v. Henderson & Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 743; and infra, p. 1154. Perhaps, however, in arriving at this conclusion due weight was not given to two material considerations:

Excluding right to dissent

- (1) That by sect. 133 of the Act of 1862 (sect. 186 of the Act of 1908) the property of the company in a voluntary winding-up (including the proceeds of sale under sect. 161) is to be applied in satisfaction of its liabilities pari passu, and subject thereto shall, unless otherwise provided by the regulations, articles of the company, be distributed among the members according to their rights and interests. So that the regulations, articles are made supreme.
- (2) That the right of dissent is obviously a right reserved for the benefit of the shareholders individually, and is therefore one to which the principle embodied in the maxim Quilibet potest renunciare juri pro se introducto applies.

It may, therefore, be held hereafter, on fuller consideration, that the articles can deprive dissentients of their rights under the section

Where a notice is served upon arbitrators by one of the parties to the arbitration to appoint an umpire, they are "called upon to act" in the matter of the arbitration within the meaning of clause (c) of Sched. I. to the Arbitration Act, 1889, and the three months within which the arbitrators are by that clause bound to make their award run from the service of that notice upon them. Baring-Gould v. Sharpington, &c. Syndicate, supra.

Payment to dissentient

A member who has duly dissented is entitled to have the purchase-money for his interest paid to him; and to enforce this right when the amount has been ascertained, he has a right of action against the company. De Rosaz v. Anglo-Italian Bank, 4 Q. B. 462.

Interest.

No interest is payable upon the purchase-money until the amount has been ascertained and a demand for payment made. United States Cable Co., 48 L. J. Ch. 665. The proper rate is 4 per cent.

A dissentient member whose interest has been purchased under sect. 161 does not thereby escape from liability towards the creditors of the company which is being wound up. So it was held in Vining's case, 6 Ch. 601; but it may be that if a winding-up order is not made within a year the members of the selling company cease to be under any liability to the creditors. City and County Investment Co., 13 C. D. 475.

This, however, is by no means clear, for there is nothing in the section to release the members. No doubt the agreement after a year will not be avoided by a winding-up; but how can that prevent an unpaid creditor from obtaining a compulsory or supervision order of the old company, with a view to payment out of the capital which was uncalled at the commencement of the winding-up? It is conceived that the liability of the members is not at an end until the dissolution of the old company, or until the creditors have become bound by novation.

Whence fund to pay
to come.

As to the source from whence the funds to pay dissentient members are to come: according to the above plan the new company is bound by the agreement to provide them. It is necessary to impose this obligation on the new company, because, by the agreement, the old company is to sell all its property. Sometimes, however, as in Form 771, infra, the funds are in fact provided by the sale of the shares which the dissentients might have claimed, the new company making up any deficiency.

A mode of reconstruction at times adopted is to provide by the agreement for the allotment of the share consideration to the liquidators or their nominees, instead of to the members directly, and not to insert any provision requiring the new company to pay the dissentients. In such case the agreement, or the special resolution sanctioning the same, will direct the liquidators of the old company to raise the funds to pay dissentients by the sale of a sufficient number of the shares in the new company to be allotted pursuant to the agreement, and to distribute the residue of such shares among the assenting members. The result in either case is the same.

As to creditors, sect. 161 of the Act of 1862 did not nor does sect. 192 of the Act of 1908 contain any provision for the benefit or protection of creditors except the concluding paragraph (sect. 192 (5)) to the effect that if an order is made within a year for the winding-up of the company by or subject to the supervision of the Court, such resolution shall not be of any validity unless it is sanctioned by the Court.

Position of
creditors

Hence if the year elapses without such an order being made, the creditors are debarred from questioning the validity of the agreement (City and County Investment Co., 13 C. D. 482); but save in this respect the reconstruction does not prejudice the creditor's right to be paid, and accordingly he can, if the company does not pay him off, petition for the winding-up of the company compulsorily or under supervision, or in the alternative he can, by virtue of sect. 193 of the Act of 1908, apply in the voluntary winding-up for an order restraining the liquidator from parting with the assets or purchase consideration under the agreement without first providing for payment of his debt or claim, and, if needs be, he can bring an action for the purpose. See Lord Elphinstone v. Monkland Co., 11 App. Cas. 332; Oppenheimer v. British and Foreign Co., 6 C. D. 741; Gooch v. London Banking Assoc., 32 Ch. D. 41.

As to debentures and debenture stock holders, they are not in a worse position than other creditors, unless, indeed, their securities are so framed as to allow of a reconstruction without their consent. See Part III. of this work, 10th ed. p. 356.

The winding-up prima facie renders their securities enforceable and it needs be the Court will protect them by the appointment of a receiver (Wallace v. Universal Automatic Machine Co., (1891) 2 Ch. 547; Victoria Steamboats Co., (1897) 1 Ch. 158; for this is a very different thing from a sale of the undertaking in the ordinary course of the company's business, the company being kept going. In such case the sale may be valid as against debenture holders. Foster v. Borar Co., (1901) 1 Ch. 326; H. H. Vignand & Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 651.

In order to preclude danger, it is not uncommon, where a company which has issued debentures or debenture stock desires to reconstruct to obtain in the first place an agreement by the holders to accept debentures or debenture stock or preference shares of the new company in satisfaction, or to obtain the underwriting of sufficient debentures or debenture stock to clear off any who object; similarly, when the company is not in a very flourishing position the consent of unsecured creditors is sometimes sought for and obtained before actually going into liquidation.

Precautions as regards
creditors

But generally creditors raise no objection to a reconstruction. Novation especially if the company is a flourishing one, or if the object is to raise further funds by issuing to the members partly paid shares; and accordingly creditors with notice that the liabilities of the old company have been taken over by the new company usually deal with the new company on that footing, and in the result novation of contract (i.e., an agreement to accept the liability of the new company instead of the liability of the old company) is readily inferred. See as to novation, Family Endowment Co., 5 Ch. 118; Conquest's case, 1 Ch. D. 344; Smith, Knight & Co., 4 Ch. 671; Ex parte Blood, 9 Eq. 649, and Re Manchester and London Life Assurance Co., 9 Eq. 649, also sect. 7 of the Life Assurance Companies Act, 1872.

If the creditor does not novate, he is not entitled to sue the new company for payment, for as to him the agreement for reconstruction is res inter alios acta; supra, p. 634. It is for the old company and its liquidators to enforce the agreement, and if the old company has been dissolved before novation the creditor who has not novated may lose his right. Law Courts Chambers Co., 31 L. T. 669, Stirling, J. But a liquidator who prematurely dissolves is or may be liable in damages (Pulsford v. Devenish, (1903) 2 Ch. 625, and New Zealand Joint Stock, 23 T. L. R. 238), for he ought, before dissolving, to take every means to ascertain what claims there are outstanding against the company. See also sects. 188, 223 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and Part II., p. 721. As to assets accruing after dissolution, see Henderson's Nigel Co., 105 L. T. 370.

Notice calling meetings to pass special resolution.

The validity of a special resolution sanctioning a sale or arrangement under sect. 192 (sect. 161, Companies Act, 1862) essentially depends on the sufficiency of the notices given convening the meetings. These ought to give the members either direct or indirect notice that the transaction is to be effected under sect. 192 (sect. 161, Companies Act, 1862). Imperial Bank of China, &c. v. Bank of Hindustan, &c., 6 Eq. 91; Ex parte Fox, 6 Ch. 176. A notice which states (inter alia) that a resolution is to be proposed authorizing the liquidators to sell the assets to another company, and to accept compensation in shares, is probably sufficient; but the usual plan now is to refer expressly to the section. This precludes all doubt. Of course, the reference to sect. 192 may be either in the notice or in the accompanying circular (if any).

The notice must, as required by sect. 69 of the Act of 1908 (sect. 51 of the Act of 1862), specify the proposed resolution. See supra, p. 1092.

It must be duly served, in accordance with the regulations, a sufficiently long time before each meeting. See supra, p. 1097.

The interval between the two meetings must be at least fourteen clear days, and not more than one calendar month. Supra, p. 1096.

If the meeting is called to reconstruct and wind up with a view thereto, it is not competent to the meeting to drop the reconstruction and pass a naked resolution for winding-up (Teede & Bishop, Limited, W. N. (1901) 52-70 L. J. Ch. 409; 81 L. T. 561), unless, indeed, the notice points to such an alteration. See, however, Thompson v. Henderson's Transcaal Estates Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 765, in which it was held that where the notice specified several resolutions, some ultra vires and some intra vires, and all were passed, the latter were effective though the others failed.

In Betts & Co. v. Macraughten, (1910) 1 Ch. 430, a still more liberal construction was given by Eve, J., to a notice convening a meeting for the appointment of directors. Supra, p. 692.

If the agreement provides for any payment to outgoing directors by way of bonus or compensation, the notice must make due disclosure. Kane v. Croydon Tramways, (1898) 1 Ch. 358; Tieszen v. Henderson, (1899) 1 Ch. 861; Normandy v. Ind, Coupe & Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 84, supra, p. 696.

In relation to a reconstruction the requirements of the Act of 1908 must be borne in mind, and the first question to consider is, whether the company is a "private company" within the meaning of sect. 72 of the Act (appointment of directors). How far Act of 1908 applies.

In regard to this, the offer of shares by the liquidator to the shareholders of the selling company pursuant to the reconstruction agreement is not considered an offer to the public, and accordingly, if the number of members is not to exceed fifty, and the articles contain the requisite restrictions, the company can be registered as a private company. In the result, therefore

It will not be necessary to comply with sect. 72, p. 6, supra.

Sect. 85, supra, as to allotment, will not apply, p. 10, supra.

Sect. 87, as to commencing business, will not apply, p. 21, supra.

Sect. 88, as to making returns and filing contracts, will apply, pp. 610, 611, supra.

Sect. 89 (1), enabling the company to pay underwriting commission, will apply, pp. 279, 288, supra. Dominion of Canada General Trading Syndicate v. Bonstock, (1911) 2 K. B. 648; and see Baith v. New Africaander Gold Mining Co., (1903) 1 Ch. 295.

Seets 80 and 81 (as to disclosure in prospectuses) will not apply, for the circular to the members is not a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for shares, pp. 12, 178, 179.

The statutory meeting will have to be held, but the preliminary report need not be forwarded or filed (sect. 65 (1)).

Where, however, a prospectus is issued or a statement in lieu thereof filed (sect. 82)

Sect. 72 must be complied with. See supra, p. 6.

Sect. 73 must be complied with. See supra, p. 719.

Sect. 85 as to minimum subscription, must be complied with; and before commencing business the company must comply with sect. 87 and obtain the requisite certificate that it is entitled to commence business, p. 20, supra.

Sect. 88, as to return of allotments of shares and filing contracts, will apply, pp. 610, 611, supra.

Sect. 89, as to underwriting commission, will apply, p. 279, supra

Sects. 80 and 81, as to prospectus, pp. 179, 167, supra, and

Sect. 83, as to not varying contract before statutory meeting, will apply, p. 324, supra

Underwriting or guaranteeing the

It frequently happens that the reconstruction of a company is effected in order to raise further sums by inducing the members of the selling company to take up partly paid shares in the new company in respect of the shares held by them in the old company, and in such cases the question of underwriting may be of great importance, for the success of the reconstruction may depend largely on whether the whole of the share consideration can be placed. Thus, if it is necessary to provide 20,000*l.* for payment of debts and for working capital, and it is proposed on the reconstruction to issue 200,000 l. shares, each credited with 1*s.* as paid, it is obvious that, unless all are taken up, the 20,000*l.* will not be provided.

To get the shares underwritten may therefore be of great importance when there is any danger that the members will not take them all up. But, as sect. 8 of the Companies Act, 1900, stood, it was no easy matter to provide for such underwriting. Burrows v. Matabele Gold Reefs, (1901) 2 Ch. 23; Booth v. New Africander Mining Co. (1903) 1 Ch. 295.

The language of that section has, however, been altered in the corresponding section of the Act of 1908, s. 89. The words in the first line "upon any offer of shares to the public" disappear, and with them disappears the difficulty of utilizing the powers of the section for the purposes of a reconstruction. See Barrow v. Parinqa Mines (1909) 2 Ch. 658; Dominion of Canada General Trading Syndicate v. Brigstock, (1911) 2 K. B. 648

agreement.

As to filing the agreement with the Registrar of Companies. Where the reconstruction agreement provides, as it usually does, for the allotment of shares credited as fully or partly paid up, sect. 88 of the Companies Act, 1908, must be complied with, by filing, within one month after allotment of any shares pursuant thereto, a contract constituting the title of the allottees to such allotment, and the other returns in the section mentioned made: infra, p. 1469. It is not clear that the reconstruction agreement itself "constitutes the title" of the allottees, for they are not parties to it; and accordingly it is generally deemed expedient before allotment to sign a further contract between the company and the allottees, or a trustee for them, providing for the allotment to them, and then to file this and the reconstruction agreement within the month.

The penalties for not complying with the requirements of sect. 88 of the Act of 1908 are very heavy --50*l.* for every day's default and it seems better to avoid any risk.

Where a quotation on the Stock Exchange is to be applied for, it is necessary in the filed agreement to give the denoting numbers of the shares, and it may be as well to do this in all cases.

As the agreement to be filed is to be in writing, it must be signed or sealed by all parties.

The agreement having been carried into effect, the liquidator should take the necessary steps to dissolve the company, and with a view thereto should make out his account as required by sect. 195 of the Act of 1908, and should call the final meeting, lay the account before it, and then make the required returns to the Registrar, whereupon, at the end of three months, the company will be deemed to be dissolved. But sect. 223 of the Act must be borne in mind, for under that section an order may within two years be made declaring the dissolution void. Spottiswoode, Dixon and Hunting, (1912) 1 Ch. 410.

Subsequent procedure

The dissolution will preclude any application for a winding-up order (Pinto Silver Mining Co., 8 C. D. 273; London & Caledonian, (1879), 11 C. D. 140; Schooner Pond Coal Co. (1888), W. N. 70), unless the application is made within the three months (Crookhaven Mining Co., 3 Eq. 69; Whiteley Exerciser, Limtd. v. Gamage, (1898) 2 Ch. 405), and any action against the old company or its liquidator or directors for the purpose of further winding up its affairs (Coron v. Gorst, (1891) 2 Ch. 73. But the Court may, it seems, with the consent of the Crown, direct the liquidator to distribute assets accruing subsequently to the dissolution. Henderson's Nigel Co., 105 L. T. 370. See further, Part II

It must be borne in mind that where the new company takes over the whole of the assets of the old company, those assets will include any right of action by the old company against its directors for misfeasance (Park Gate Waggon Co., 17 C. D. 239; Wood v. Woodhouse, (1896), W. N. 4), and the new company may accordingly take steps to enforce that right.

The liquidators, in a winding-up for the purpose of reconstruction, generally act without remuneration, or for a small fee.

Remuneration
liquidators

Where the special resolution sanctioning an agreement for a sale under sect. 192 is invalid for want of proper notice or otherwise, the transaction can nevertheless be confirmed. For's case, 6 Ch. 176. In order to effect this, the liquidators must call the necessary meeting and procure the members to pass proper special resolutions.

Confirmation
resolution

It will be remembered that sect. 192 (5) provides that if an order be made within a year for the winding-up the company by or subject to the supervision of the Court, the resolution shall not be of any validity unless sanctioned by the Court. The Court cannot in such a case, it has been held, give the requisite sanction before the winding-up order (Callao Bis, 42 C. Div. 169), the policy of the Act being to protect creditors by reserving their rights. Sometimes in order to preclude danger, a supervision order is at once obtained and the sanction asked for. New Flagstaff Co., W. N. (1889) 123. [But query whether Callao Bis, ubi supra, was rightly decided

Order to

Company may register with a view to reconstruction.

Any company, though not formed or registered under the Act of 1862, if capable of being registered under that Act, may effect a reconstruction under sect. 192. In order to do this it will register under the Act, and the reconstruction may then be carried into effect as above mentioned. It is no objection that the registration was made expressly with a view to winding-up and selling under sect. 192. Southall v. British Mutual Life Assurance Society, 6 Ch. 614, C. A.

Reconstruction in winding-up by Court.

Section 192 is only applicable in a purely voluntary winding-up. Haford Hotel, W. N. (1868) 86. "Altogether voluntarily" are the words of the section. But in a winding-up by or under the supervision of the Court a reconstruction may be effected by a sale under sect. 151 of the Act to a new company, for under that section the Court has powers at least as extensive as those conferred by sect. 192 on a liquidator. Agra and Masterman's Bank, 12 Eq. 409; 15 W. R. 554; Imperial Mercantile Credit Association, 12 Eq. 501; Cambrian Co., 48 L. T. 114. Where a company gets into difficulties a reconstruction and an arrangement with creditors under sect. 120 (replacing the provisions of the Joint Stock Companies Arrangement Act of 1870) are not uncommonly effected at the same time. See infra, p. 1492.

Reconstruction by exchange of shares before winding-up.

A reconstruction by exchange of shares followed by a voluntary winding-up is another mode of reconstruction which, in special cases, is preferable to a proceeding under sect. 192, e.g. where it is desired to reconstruct on a basis which would be in contravention of the rule established in Griffith v. Paget, supra, p. 1441; see Form 790, infra, p. 1476; for instance, where the capital consists of preference shares and ordinary shares, and there is no clause in the articles like clause 153, supra, p. 785, and it is desired to reconstruct on the footing that in the new company the preference shareholders shall get preference shares and the ordinary shareholders shall get ordinary shares, or that both classes shall get ordinary shares in the new company in proportion to their market value and not in proportion to their nominal amount. In such cases it is sometimes possible to carry the thing through by an agreement for exchange to be ratified by all the shareholders. When all have ratified the agreement, the new company allots the shares, and then the old company goes into liquidation, and the new company, as the owner of all the shares in the old company, calls for and takes a conveyance of the assets of the old company and clears off its liabilities.

Reconstruction and Amalgamation by Sale under a Power in the Memorandum.

Reconstruction and amalgamation by sale under power

Another mode of effecting a reconstruction or amalgamation has been frequently adopted with success during the last twenty years, viz.:-

- (1.) To sell the company's undertaking under a power in its memorandum of association for paid-up shares in a new company to be allotted to the selling company or its nominees; in memorandum of association.

- (2.) Subsequently to resolve on a voluntary winding-up and pursuant to a power in the articles, to authorize the liquidator, after paying or providing for the debts and liabilities to distribute the surplus proceeds of sale, namely the shares amongst the members of the company according to their rights and interests.

This course can only be adopted when the memorandum of association contains the requisite power (supra, p. 510) to sell the undertaking for shares, and the articles contain the requisite power to distribute assets in kind (supra, p. 785). The sale having been made, the old company will pass a resolution to wind up and to distribute the shares in kind. See supra, p. 1128, Form 517.

This plan is best suited to cases in which the shares to be distributed are fully paid up.

For Form of Agreement for Sale, see supra, p. 371, and for resolution approving same, see Form 787, infra, p. 1471.

Reconstruction on these lines was, in many cases, found preferable to proceeding under sect. 161 of the Act of 1862 (sect. 192 of Act of 1908); for example, in cases in which it was desired to reconstruct conditionally on the new company finding further capital by the issue of shares or debentures, or conditionally on the selling company coming to some specified arrangement with its debenture holders. In such cases the agreement for sale reserved power to rescind if the condition was not fulfilled within a specified time, and in case of rescission the selling company could then continue its business; whereas, if it proceeded under sect. 161, that would not have been feasible, for it would have passed into liquidation.

So, in the case of amalgamation, if several companies agreed to sell their undertakings to a new company, or to one of the amalgamating companies conditionally on the purchasing company placing further capital or complying with some other condition; if the condition was not fulfilled the agreements could be rescinded and the several companies continue their business.

There was a further advantage in adopting this mode, in that it enabled the company or companies to avoid the danger arising from the provisions of sect. 161 in favour of dissentient members, for that section has not uncommonly been used by dissentients for blackmailing purposes. And the costs of an arbitration are in some cases capable of being run up to a very large sum. In one case they amounted to 10,000*l.* or thereabouts.

A sale followed by liquidation is, moreover, much less likely to prejudice a going concern than a liquidation followed by a sale.

There was ample authority for adopting this mode of reconstruction or amalgamation. Thus, in Cotton v. The Imperial and Foreign Agency and Investment Corporation, (1892) 3 Ch. 454, where such a mode was adopted, Chitty, L. J. (then J.), refused an injunction to restrain the company from acting on the agreement for sale to the new company, holding that the agreement, made as it was under the power contained in the company's memorandum of association, was valid, notwithstanding that it was made in contemplation of a voluntary winding-up and distribution, and that the resolution for voluntary winding-up and distribution in specie was passed shortly after the resolution ratifying the agreement. His Lordship did not decide that the proposed distribution of the shares was valid, but there being power in the articles to distribute in specie, a distribution in exercise of the power was treated as following in the natural sequence of events. So, too, in New Zealand, &c. Co. v. Peacock, (1894) 1 Q. B. 622, the validity of such a scheme came into question, and was fully recognized by the Court of Appeal. In that case the company, under a power in its memorandum agreed to sell its undertaking and a call to be made by its directors to a new company, and the sale was made in contemplation of a voluntary winding-up and distribution. The call was made, and afterwards the resolution for voluntary winding-up was passed. In the action the liquidator sought to enforce payment of the call, and it was objected that the call was made for the purposes of an ultra vires scheme, and was therefore invalid; but the Court of Appeal (Lindley, A. L. Smith, and Davey, L.J.J.) held that the scheme was not ultra vires, and therefore that the call was not invalid. And these decisions were followed in several other reported cases, and were largely acted on. So, too, in Grant v. United Switchback Co. 10 C. D. 135; 37 W. R. 313, where there was an agreement for sale of the company's undertaking under a power in its memorandum it was held valid. Lindley, L. J., said, "It was clearly not ultra vires the company, for when we look at the memorandum of association we find power so wide as clearly to include such a transaction as this."

The Reconstruction Case.

In a comparatively recent case, however (Biggood v. Henderson's &c. Co. (1908) 1 Ch. 743, below referred to as the Biggood case), a scheme of reconstruction in its main features closely resembling that adopted in Cotton v. The Imperial, &c. Corp., supra, was held by the Court of Appeal to be ultra vires on the ground or principle that sect. 161 of the Act of 1862, now replaced by sect. 192 of the Act of 1908, by implication prohibits a company from selling its undertaking for shares under a power in its memorandum where the sale is made at a time when a voluntary winding-up and distribution of the shares is "proposed." In other words, the Court's view was that "If the company is proposed to be wound up, and the transaction is a sale and dissolution, then . . . the statute provides that sale by conversion into money may be replaced by exchange for shares on the terms, but only upon the terms, of complying with the provisions of sect. 161," and as a corollary the Court held that Cotton v. Imperial de Corp., supra, was wrongly decided.

Serious doubts, however, exist whether the ground or principle of the decision in the Bisgood case—namely, that the section is to be treated as implying such a prohibition—is sound, although it may be that the actual decision, looking to the special features of the case, was correct.

The following are some of the principal objections which have been raised to the construction thus placed by the Court on sect. 161 of the Companies Act, 1862:

In the first place it is objected that there is no sufficient reason for implying the prohibition. The section is affirmative in its terms, and (1) enables a liquidator who, in a voluntary winding-up, is selling the undertaking to receive shares in another company in compensation if he is authorized so to do by special resolution, and it also (2) enables the company to give that authority to the liquidator by special resolution passed in the course of the winding-up or antecedently thereto. But there is nothing in the section or elsewhere in the Act to indicate an intention on the part of the legislature to [curtail or] derogate from the power of a company to sell under its memorandum of association prior to the commencement of the winding-up.

In reading this implied prohibition into sect. 161, the Court may have conceived the implication justified by the well-known rule of construction recognized in Chambers v. Manchester and Milford Railway (5 B. & S. 588); Baroness Wenlock v. River Dee Co. (10 App. Cas. 359) and other cases, that where the legislature gives a company express power within certain limits to do a specified thing, it is to be taken prima facie to impliedly prohibit any deviation from the power so given. But applying that rule to sect. 161, it may be pointed out that the rule merely goes to prohibit the liquidator of a company from selling for shares otherwise than under the section, and to prohibit the company from authorizing its liquidator, or proposed liquidator, to sell for shares in another company except under the section. The rule cannot be wrested to curtail the powers of the company whilst a going concern.

In arriving at the implication in question, the Court seems, too, to have overlooked sects. 131 and 133 of the Act of 1862 (replaced by sects. 184 and 186 of the Act of 1908), which have an important bearing on the construction of sect. 161 [192]. Under sect. 131, there was an express provision that "in a voluntary winding-up the company's corporate state and all its corporate powers shall continue . . . until the affairs of the company are wound up"; and under sect. 133 (5), these corporate powers were to be exercisable by the directors, with the sanction of a general meeting or of the liquidators, so that where a company has power under its memorandum to sell its undertaking for shares in another company, that being one of its corporate powers, can be exercised in the course of a voluntary winding-up, with the sanction of the company in general meeting or of the liquidators. And such a sale would not be fettered in any way by sect. 161 [192]. It is an alternative or cumulative power, and the fact that it is reserved is inconsistent with the view of the Court of Appeal that the Act impliedly prohibits in winding-up a sale for shares otherwise than under sect. 161.

Had the legislature so intended, it would have been easy for it to insert in sect. 161 [now 192] words to the effect that "except under or with reference to this section, no sale of the company's undertaking shall be made for shares or other interests in any other company where a voluntary winding-up and distribution of such shares is proposed." See sect. 13 (1) of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909.

But the section imposes no such restriction: it observes a significant silence on this point, and what adds not a little to the force of this criticism is that it appears from the context that where the legislature desired to invalidate transactions entered into in contemplation of winding-up, it did so by express provision, e.g. in sect. 161 [210] where, by apt words, certain transactions in contemplation of winding-up were invalidated.

Moreover, to imply in sect. 161 [192] the prohibition relied on by the Court of Appeal is to disregard the principle recognized and emphasized by the House of Lords in Salomon v. Salomon & Co. (1897) A. C. 22. In that case the Court of Appeal had read into the Act of 1862 provisions and conditions not expressed in it, but the House of Lords reversed the decision, holding that there was nothing to justify the implication, that the Act of 1862 was to be taken as it stood, and that it was not for the Court to supplement it by implied prohibitions and conditions. See supra, p. 942.

As a matter of judicial authority, too, apart from construction the principle of the Bisgood case is inconsistent with the decision of the Court of Appeal in New Zealand, &c. Co. v. Peacock, (1894) 1 Q. B. 622, above referred to (p. 1151, supra), and how can the Court of Appeal in 1907 arrogate to itself power to overrule a decision of the Court of Appeal in 1894?

Even assuming the decisions in Cotton v. The Imperial, &c. Co. and in New Zealand, &c. Co. v. Peacock to have been wrong, they were of so long standing, and had been acted on in such hundreds of cases and by so many thousands of people, they should not have been disturbed: the principle stare decisis always acted on by our Courts cannot be departed from without mischievous consequences.

The Court of Appeal was evidently under a misapprehension, as to the decision in Cotton v. The Imperial, &c. Co., for it represents Chitty, J., to have decided in that case, that "under clause in the memorandum of association the company might sell its whole undertaking . . . and might under the authority of special resolutions divide the proceeds of sale amongst the members without the safeguard provided by sect. 161; whereas, in truth, all that the judge decided was that the sale under the memorandum for shares was valid.

Nor, it may be pointed out, do the decisions relied on by the Court of Appeal in the Bisgood case justify the construction placed by the Court on sect. 161. Thus, to take them in order, Wellton v. Saffery, (1897) A. C. 299, on which the Court placed great reliance, when examined has in reality no application. It merely decided that where the Act of 1862 expressly or impliedly prohibits a thing, such as the issue of shares at a discount, the thing is ultra vires for all purposes, and cannot be treated as binding on the members inter se in a winding-up, even after the creditors have been paid off. The decision, therefore, does not in any way show that Cotton v. The Imperial, &c. Corporation was correctly decided, or justify the application made by the Court of Appeal.

So, too, Pewell Gold Mines, (1896) 1 Ch. 372, merely shows that a company cannot by any provision in its articles deprive its members of the right to petition for a winding-up of the company, and Re Baring-Gould and Sharpington Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 80, and Payne v. Cork Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 308, merely decided that where proceedings are taken under sect. 161 the whole machinery of the section must have effect, and therefore dissentients cannot be deprived of their rights under the section by virtue of a clause in the articles. They have no bearing on a case where the sale is being carried out by a going company under a power in its memorandum.

Taken together, the above objections to the principle on which the Bisgood case was decided constitute, it must be admitted, a serious impeachment of that principle. The Court, in its solicitude to prevent what it called "iniquitous cases of reconstruction," that is, cases in which people were, in effect, obliged to elect whether they would take partly paid shares or have them sold at perhaps a low price, seems to have strained the construction of the Act, and because articles sometimes imposed unfair conditions on dissentient shareholders, to have vetoed the power altogether. This is the more to be regretted, because the decision might have been put on other grounds. Reconstruction schemes on the lines in effect sanctioned in Cotton v. The Imperial, &c. Corporation have not at all been confined to iniquitous cases. Large numbers of them have been of a perfectly fair and bona fide character, and have been carried through with entire success. And if the dissentient shareholders felt or fancied themselves unjustly treated they could always apply to the Court to disallow the scheme of reconstruction, as in fact they did in several cases (Manners v. St. David's G. & C. Mines, (1904) 2 Ch. 593; Bisgood v. Nile Valley Co., (1906) 1 Ch. 747; Burdett-Contts v. True Blue Gold Mine, 1899 2 Ch. 616; Fuller v. White Feather Reward, (1905) 1 Ch. 823), sometimes successfully, sometimes not.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that the principle of the Bisgood decision will before long be re-considered by a higher tribunal.

Preliminary agreement for the purpose.

Sometimes a similar transaction is carried through by making a preliminary agreement ratified by all, or nearly all, the members, providing how their shares in the new company shall be distributed. See Form 789, infra, p. 1474. The mere fact that a few of the shareholders refuse to sign or ratify the agreement need not materially hamper the others.

Setting sale aside.

As to setting aside sale on reconstruction, where the liquidator is largely interested in the purchaser coy, see Silkstone and Haigh Moon Co. v. Edey, (1900) 1 Ch. 167, supra, p. 1400.

Re-entry on shareholders.

As to meaning of proviso for re-entry in a lease on a company "entering into liquidation," see Horsey Estate, Limited v. Steiger, (1898) 2 Q. B. 259; (1899) 2 Q. B. 79; approved by the House of Lords in Fryer v. Ewart, (1902) A. C. 187; and Westbourne Grove Drapery Co., 5 Ch. D. 248.

A proviso in a lease for re-entry, if the lessees being a company should enter into liquidation either compulsory or voluntary, applies to the case of a solvent company going into voluntary liquidation for the purpose of reconstruction or amalgamation only, and is "a condition for forfeiture on the bankruptcy of the lessee" within the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, s. 14, sub-s. 6 (Fryer v. Ewart, (1902) A. C. 187.)

Company may be a "respectable" person.

A limited company may be a "respectable and responsible person" within the meaning of a covenant by a lessee not to assign without the consent of the lessor (such consent not to be withheld in the case of a "respectable and responsible person"). Willmott v. London Road Car Co., (1910) 2 Ch. 525.

of the other part.

Recitals

WHEREAS the old coy was incorporated in the year under the Cos Acts, 1862 to , with a nominal capital of 50,000*l.*, divided

1. The old coy and its liq shall transfer, and the new coy shall take over, all and singular the lands, buildings, concessions, patents, goods, chattels, moneys, credits, debts, bills, notes, and things in action of the old coy, and the undertaking, business, and goodwill

Form 771. thof, with the full benefit of all contracts and agreements, and of all securities in respect of the sd things in action, to which the old coy is entld, and all other the real and personal ppty of the old coy whatsoever and wheresoever; subject nevertheless as to all the sd premises to the several mortgages, charges, liens, and incumbrances affecting the same or any pt thof

As to what contracts are assignable, see Backlund v. Papillon, 2 Ch. 67; British Wagon Co. v. Lee, 5 Q. B. D. 119; Tolhurst v. Associated Portland Cement Co., (1903) A. C. 111; Kemp v. Backelmann, (1906) 2 K. B. 604, C. A.

New company
to pay debts,
&c. of old
company.

2. As a part of the consen for the sd transfer, the new coy shall undertake, pay, satisfy, and discharge all the debts, liabilities, and obligations of the old coy whatsoever, and shall adopt, perform, and fulfill all contracts and engagements now binding on it, and shall at all times keep the old coy, its liqrs, and contributories, indemnified against such debts, liabilities, obligations, contracts, and engagements, and against all actions, proceedings, costs, damages, claims, and demands in respect thof

As to novation, see supra, p. 1447

New company to pay costs of winding-up
old company.

3. As a further pt of the consen for the sd transfer, the new coy shall pay, and at all times hereafter keep the old coy, its liqrs, and contributories, indemnified against all the costs and expenses of and incident to the winding-up of the old coy, and of carrying the sd transfer into effect

Shares in new company to be allotted to
old company.

4. As the residue of the consen for the sd transfer, every member of the old coy shall, in respect of each share therein held by him, be entld as of right, to claim an allotment to himself or herself, or to his or her nominee or nominees, of one 1*l*. share in the new coy, with the sum of 1*s*. credited as having been pd up thof, and the new coy shall allt the shares so claimed. The remaining 5*s*. per share shall be pd up to 1*s*. when the claim is made and as to 1*s*. on allotment, and as to the balance when called for; but no call is to exceed 1*s*. per share, so is to be made payable less than three months after the preceding call became payable settled.

5. A member entld to claim an allotment as aforesd must claim the same within 21 days from the date hot by sending in to the new coy a claim in writing for an allotment of the shares, and such claim must be signed by the member making the same, and must be accompanied by a sum of 1*l*. shilling per share claimed, and where it requests that the allotment of shares may be made to a nominee or nominees of such member, it must be countersigned by such nominee or nominees

As to limiting a time for the claims, see supra, p. 1440.

In the absence of a specified limit the Court will imply as a term that the claim must be made within a reasonable time, supra, p. 1440; but it is not always easy to say what is reasonable, as it depends on the circumstances.

Where a member duly claims pursuant to this clause, his claim is to be regarded as an application which will not ripen into a contract until notice of allotment is given to him, and, accordingly, until the posting of such notice he can withdraw his application. Hollins case, L. R. 4 Ch. 325, n.; Holman v. Fenner, (1892) 2 Ch. 27; supra, p. 48.

This being so, notice of allotment should be issued as soon as possible after the claims come in. See Form 786, infra.

If desired, the agreement can be so framed that the notice by the liquidator should operate as an offer by the new company, the acceptance of which will complete the contract, e.g., by adding to the next following clause the words: "The notice aforesaid shall be regarded as an offer of the shares made by the new company through the liquidator of the old company."

6. The liqs of the old coy shall within 7 days from the date hof give notice in writing to each member of the old coy, stating the number of shares which the member is entld to claim as of right under this agreemt, and the amount per share payable on claiming the same, and the situation of the registered office of the new coy and the time within which the claim for an allotment as afosd must be sent in to the new coy, and there must be enclosed therewith proper forms of claim addressed to the new coy for signature by the member. The notice afosd shall in each case be given by sending the same through the post addressed to the member at his or her registered address as appearing on the register of members.

Notice to be given by company.

Where the members are to claim within a specified time it is only fair to require notice to be given them at once, otherwise they may by oversight lose their rights.

7. As regards that proportion of the sd shares in the new co which members of the old coy other than dissentient members hntf mentd shall be entld to claim as afosd, but shall not within the period of 21 days before mentd claim, the sd liqs shall use their best endeavours to sell the same for what they will fetch, and the net proceeds of sale thof, after paying all expenses of and incident to the sale, shall be distributed rateably among the members who, if they had claimed, would have been entld to such shares in accordance with their rights and interests, and in substitution for such shares the new coy shall, upon the request of the sd liqs allot to such purchasers the shares sold to them resply credited as afosd, but such request to be effective must be made within _____ weeks from the date hereof.

Sometimes the agreement merely gives the members the right to claim, within a limited time, and makes no provision as to shares not claimed; in the case of the unclaimed shares belongg to the new company, but as unpaid shares. The company cannot then call for the same. See Re London & Lancashire Cotton Corp, 12 T. L. R. 41.

Nor in the absence of a provision in the agreement can the liqs take a view to sale, claim allotment to himself. Re London & Lancashire Cotton Corp, 12 T. L. R. 41. (W. N. 1897)

Form 771.

Form 771.

Where, however, the liquidator obtains the unclaimed shares under the terms of the agreement, the proceeds of sale thereof, even in the absence of a provision to that effect, should be divided among the non-claiming shareholders (Lake View Extended Gold Co., W. N. (1900) 14.)

And where the liquidator had, pursuant to the agreement, received certain paid-up shares, and the members entitled had not come in to claim same, he was allowed on petition to sell and pay proceeds into Court. (Australian United Trust Mining Co., W. N. (1877) 37.)

In the absence of a specified limit as regards time, a liquidator claiming under such a provision must sue and claim allotment within a reasonable time. See supra, p. 1440. And accordingly where a liquidator did not claim until after the expiration of some months, it was held by Vaughan Williams, J. that the claim was too late. St. Augustine Mines Limited, 25 April, 1895.

Sale of dissentient's shares.

Alternative to clause 9a.)

8. As regards the proportion of the sd shares in the new coy which, but for their dissent, would have been claimable by those members of the old coy who shall effectually dissent from the special resolutions aforesaid in accordance with the provisions of sect. 192 of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, the sd liqrs shall use their best endeavours to sell the same for what they will fetch, and the proceeds of sale thereof, after deducting all expenses of and incident to the sale, shall be applied in or towards payment of the amounts which shall become payable to such dissentient members in accordance with sect. 192 of the sd Act, and in so far as the same shall be deficient the new coy shall make up the deficiency. The new coy shall, upon the request of the sd liqrs, allot the shares sold under this clause to the purchasers thereof respectively credited as aforesaid, but such request to be effective must be made within — — weeks from the date thereof.

As an alternative, the old company can be left to deal with its dissentients, but the result is the same, for assets sufficient to meet the dissentients must be excepted.

How sales may be made.

9. And such sales as aforesaid may be made by the sd liqrs either by public auction or private contract, and either together or in lots, and either with or without reserve, and subject to any special or other conditions, and with power to buy in and re-sell, and generally upon such terms and conditions and in such manner as the sd liqrs shall in their absolute discretion think fit.

The object of the above clauses is to enable the liquidator to sell the shares at their market price, which may be less than the amount credited. The alternative plan is to let the unclaimed shares lapse for the benefit of the new company only, and that plan suits very well a case in which the shares are at par or at a premium; but where the market price is less than the amount credited to allow the shares to lapse would benefit no one, for the new company would not be able to issue them at a discount, and thus the lapsed shares would be unsaleable.

Alternative to clause 8.

9A. If the liqrs of the old coy shall, in order to carry the sd transfer into effect, have occasion to purchase the interest of any member of the old coy, then and in every or any such case the new coy shall be relieved from the obligations imposed on it by clause 4 hereof as regards such member, but shall pay to the liqrs, for the purpose of effecting such purchase, such sum as, by arbitration between the old coy and such member, or by agreement made with the sanction of the now coy between him and the liqrs of the old coy, shall be determined to be the price payable in respect of such purchase.

Form 771.

When the agreement provides for the allotment of the shares as the liquidators direct, the clause will provide that in "any such case the number of shares to be allotted under clause 4 shall be proportionately reduced, but the new company shall pay, &c."

Sometimes a clause as follows is required.

The balance of — shillings remaining due on the shares in the new company, which shall be claimed and allotted as aforesaid, shall be paid as follows, namely: — per share shall be paid on allotment and — per share at the expiration of three calendar months from the date of allotment, and the remaining — per share when called for.

Sometimes it is necessary or better to provide for allotment to the nominees of the liquidator, thus:

(a) As the residue of the consideration for the said transfer the new company shall allot to the nominees of the liquidators of the old company 200,000 shares in the capital of the new company of 1/ each credited as paid up to the extent of 18s. per share, to the intent that such shares may be distributed among the members of the old company as nearly as may be in accordance with their rights and interests [with due regard to any contract between them, e.g., Form 795].

(b) Every member of the old company who desires to take his proportion of the shares as aforesaid must claim the same within — days from the date hereof by sending in to the new company a claim in writing for the allotment, and such claim must be signed by the member making the same.

The liquidators of the old company shall within — days from the time when this agreement shall have become absolute as aforesaid give notice in writing to each member of the old company — [Clause 6 of Form 771, supra.]

Sometimes the shares which are to be distributed cannot be divided without fractions, and in such cases it is usual to make special provision as regard to fractions, e.g., as follows:

"Nothing herein contained shall entitle any person to claim in respect of any fraction of a share in The M. Company, but those shares in The M. Company which but for this provision would have been distributable in fractions shall be sold by the liquidators of The L. Company, and the net proceeds shall be divided among those members of The L. Company who would have been entitled to such fractions in due proportions."

Sometimes the agreement provides for the issue of fractional certificates in respect of the fractional rights, and sets out the form of certificate, which is usually framed so that the owner of (say) ten has a right to require the allotment of a paid-up share in the company. See Form 784.

Where the agreement provides for the allotment of the shares to the liquidators, and such shares are in part credited as paid-up, it may be well to insert a clause providing that "The liquidators of the — company shall not be bound to accept an allotment of any of the shares mentioned in clause — hereof, which they shall not require for allotment to the members of the old company, in accordance with that clause," or to provide that the Form 771. allotment shall be made "upon the request" of the liquidator. Unless this is done it may be contended that the liquidator is bound personally to take the shares, and this might involve him in liabilities. Dyett's case, 43 L. T. 85.

Title accepted.

10. The new coy shall accept, without investigation, such title as the old coy has to all the real and personal ppty and premises hby agreed to be transferred.

Delivery.

11. The old coy and its liqrs shall, as soon as conveniently may be but without prejudice to clause 12 hof, execute and do, at the expense of the new coy, all such assurances and things as shall be reasonably required by the new coy for vesting in it the sd ppty hby agreed to be transferred, or any part thof, and giving to it the full benefit of this agreement.

Lien in favour of dissentients.

12. Provided always that the old coy and its liqrs shall have a lien upon the whole of the ppty hby agreed to be transferred for all moneys (if any) payable by the new coy under clause 8 hof, and until the same shall have been pd the sd liqrs shall be at liberty to retain possession of all or any part of the sd ppty, and thereout at their discretion to raise and pay such moneys or any part thof.

As to this clause, see supra, p. 1445; and New Flagstaff Co., W. N. (1889) 123.

Power to rescind.

13. Notwithstanding anything herein contained, if, in order to carry the sd transfer into effect, it would be necessary for the liqrs to purchase the interest of members holding more than --- shares in the old coy, the new coy shall be at liberty, by notice in writing, addressed to the liqrs of the old coy and left at the registered office of that coy, to rescind this agreement.

This clause is not at all unusual. There might happen to be so many dissentient members of the old company that the new company could not find the means to pay them off, and in such case it is convenient to give a power of rescission.

Agreement not to operate as conveyance.

In Commissioners of Inland Revenue v. Angus & Co., 23 Q. B. Div. 579, it was held that an agreement framed on the lines of this form was not a conveyance on sale within the Stamp Act, 1870. And in some cases it seems that an agreement in this form is not considered an agreement for sale within sect. 59 of the Stamp Act, 1891. See supra, p. 338, and Alpe's Digest, 123. But prima facie such an agreement comes within sect. 59 of the Stamp Act, 1891 (see supra, p. 338), and has to be stamped accordingly. Where, however, the members of the new company and the old are the same, and hold the same or less capital in the new as they held in the old, and in the same proportions, the Revenue authorities have usually granted exemption.

Books.

14. Until the dissolution of the old coy, the new coy shall, at its own expense, produce and show at such times and to such persons, and in such places as the liqr for the time being of the old coy shall require, all the books, documents, and papers of the old coy agreed to be hby sold.

A clause as above is sometimes inserted velar Co., 12 C. D. 717. But Form 771
see North Brazilian Sugar Co., 37 C. Div. 83

15. The new coy shall, subject to the consent of the office and to the completion of the transfer hereunder, be entitled to the benefit of the current insurances of the premises Benefit of insurance

16. The new coy shall cause this agreement and also a sufficient contract constituting the titles of the allottees to the allotments of shares under clause _____ hereof to be duly filed with the Registrar of Companies pursuant to sect. 88 of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908 Filing of agreement and further contract

IN WITNESS, &c

When the reconstructing company is a dividend-paying company, it may be necessary to make some provision for the distribution of the profits made since the last dividend, otherwise they would in effect be capitalised. If the amount distributable can be ascertained approximately, the agreement can provide for payment thereof to the liquidators or to the shareholders of the old company. But sometimes it is deemed expedient to attach the dividend to the shares in the new company, thus:

And further, the profits of the old coy made during the period commencing the 1st January, 1910, and ending 30th June, 1910, shall be ascertained as soon as conveniently may be after the execution hereof, and the amount of such profits, less the several sums during that period carried by the old coy to reserve or any sinking fund and less all dividends paid by the old coy during that period, shall, in the course of the year 1910, be divided by the new coy among the members of the old coy in proportion to the shares in the old coy held by them at the commencement of the winding-up of the old coy. The right of each member of the old coy to participate in the profits also under this clause shall be deemed to be annexed to the shares allotted to him or his nominee under this clause, and shall accordingly pass with the transfer of the shares, and payment to the holders for the time being of any of the sd shares shall be deemed equivalent to payment to the original allottee Form 772

Sometimes the agreement excepts certain of the assets so as to pay a dividend to the members of the old company, thus:

There shall be excepted from the ppty hby agreed to be transferred Form 772a
(a) the uncalled capital of the old coy, and (b) such assets as shall be sufficient to pay the members of the old coy a dividend on their shares in the old coy at the rate of £ _____ per share, as from the day of _____ up to the day of _____, and it shall be for the old coy or its liqrs to select the particular assets which are to be excepted as aforesd, and if and so far as the same shall not consist of money, the old coy or its liqrs shall convert the same into money, and the sd excepted assets shall be applied in paying to the members of the old coy the sd dividend in respect of the shares held by them resply

Sometimes the liquidator is given power to rescind the reconstruction agreement provided he pays the new company's expenses, thus:—

Form 773. Unless within thirty days from the date of the whole of the 200,000 shares, being the shares specified as the consen for this agreement, shall have been taken up, or such portion thereof as in the opinion of the liqr shall afford a sufficient amount of working capital for the new coy, the liqr shall be entld to determine this agreement by notice in writing to be delivered by him to the new coy, and if the liqr shall exercise this option he shall, as a condition of so exercising it, undertake to pay out of the assets of the old coy all proper costs and charges connected with the incorporation of the new coy and the final dissolution thereof. The liqr may at any time by notice in writing to the new coy waive his option to determine this agreement as aforesaid whether such option has or has not been exercised.

rescind where shares not taken up.

THE COY. LIMITED

Form 774. NOTICE IS HBY GIVEN that an extraordinary general meeting of the above-named coy will be held at ——— on ——— day the ——— day of ——— at ——— o'clock in the forenoon, for the purpose of considering and if thought fit, passing as extraordinary resolutions the resolutions following, viz.:

Notice and resolutions with a view to reconstruction.

(1) That it is desirable to reconstruct the coy, and accordingly that the coy be wound up voluntarily, and that A. B. of, &c. and C. D. of, &c. be and they are hby appointed liqrs for the purposes of such winding-up.

(2) That the sd liqrs be and they are hby authorized to consent to the registration of a new coy, to be named the A. Coy, Limtd, with a memorandum and arts of assen which have already been prepared with the privity and approval of the directors of this coy.

(3) That the draft agreement submitted to this meeting and expressed to be made between this coy and its liqrs of the one pt. and The A. Coy, Limtd, of the other pt. be and the same is hby approved, and that the sd liqrs be and they are hby authorized, pursuant to sect. 192 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, to enter into an agreement with such new coy (when incorporated) in the terms of the sd draft, and to carry the same into effect with such (if any) modifications as they think expedient.

Should the above resolutions be passed by the requisite majority they will be submitted for confirmation as special resolutions to a second extraordinary general meeting, which will be subsequently convened.

Dated, &c.

By order,

Secretary

As to inserting in the notice the words "an extraordinary resolution," see Form 774 Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 69 (2), and remarks, supra, pp. 1093 et seq.

Where the new company is not to bear the same name as the old company, resolution (2) can be varied. Sometimes it is resolved "that the liquidators be authorized to transfer or sell the whole or any part of this company's business and property to any other company, and to receive, in compensation or part compensation for such transfer or sale, shares in such company, or to enter into any other arrangement whereby the members of this company may, in lieu of receiving cash, shares, or other like interests, or in addition thereto, participate in the profits of or receive any other benefit from such other company."

Sometimes the authority is "to make or enter into any such sale or arrangement as is contemplated by sect. 192 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, and in particular to enter into an agreement with the _____ Company, Limited, for the sale to that company of this company's business and assets upon the terms set forth in the draft agreement submitted to the meeting."

Sometimes this notice is in the form of a circular, thus:

THE — COY., LIMTD.

SIR,

I beg to give you notice that an extraordinary general meeting of the above-named coy. will be held at _____ on _____ day, the _____ day of _____ instant, at twelve o'clock noon, for the purpose of sanctioning the reconstruction of the coy.

The object of the reconstruction is to modify the constitution of the coy, and in particular to enable it to, &c., &c. The directors are satisfied that the proposed modifications would be advantageous to the coy and the shareholders, but counsel has advised that such modifications can only be effected by reconstruction.

At the above-mentioned meeting the resolutions necessary for carrying out the reconstruction will be proposed. A copy of them will be found on the other side [e.g., see Form 774]. It is perhaps unnecessary to point out that the resolution for winding-up is merely part of the machinery advised by counsel for effecting what is desired, and will not involve any disturbance of the business, since the new or reconstructed coy will at once step into the shoes of the existing coy.

The ppal shareholders have already expressed their cordial approval of the plan.

The directors will be glad if you will attend personally, or fill up and return the enclosed proxy. If the resolutions are duly passed they will be submitted for confirmation as special resolutions to another extraordinary meeting, which will be subsequently convened.

Scheme for the Reconstruction of the A. B. Coy, Limtd.

1. A new coy to be formed with the same name as the existing coy, and with a capital of 50,000*l.* divided into 50,000 shares of 1*l.* each. The objects of the coy to include the objects of the present coy, and

2. The undertaking of the existing coy to be made over to the new coy upon the footing that the new coy shall undertake all the debts and liabilities of the existing coy, and shall pay all the costs of winding it up and dissolving it, and all the costs of carrying the reconstruction scheme into effect; and further, shall allot to every member of the existing coy two fully pd-up shares of 1*l.* each in the new coy, in respect of every 1*l.* share in the existing coy held by such member.

3. The directors of the existing coy to be the directors of the new coy.

4. The reconstruction to be carried out under sect. 192 of the Companies Consolidation Act, 1908, and accordingly the existing coy to go into voluntary liquidation, and to authorize the liqrs to carry out the reconstruction immediately so that there may be no interruption of the business.

5. With all convenient speed the existing coy to be dissolved.

Sometimes it is found convenient, with a view to ascertaining the views of the shareholders and others as to a proposed reconstruction, to send out a scheme framed as above mutatis mutandis, and thus to disclose in detail the course proposed to be adopted. However, in many cases the disclosure made is in much less detail, and the parties rest satisfied with the circular stating that the proposed resolutions are with a view to the reconstruction of the company for the purpose already explained. See the form following.

Form 789. AN AGREEMENT by MEMBERS of a COMPANY for RECONSTRUCTION on LINES of SCHEME which INVOLVES a DISTRIBUTION of ASSETS OTHERWISE than in ACCORDANCE with EXISTING RIGHTS.

AN AGREEMENT, made the — day of —, between A., on behalf of all the members of the — Corporation, Limtd (hmftr called "the existing coy"), of the one part, and B., C., and D., directors of the existing coy, of the other or second part: WHEREAS it is desirable to reconstruct the existing coy in accordance with the following scheme, that is to say:—

- (a) A new coy, bearing the same name as the existing coy or some other similar name, to be registered under the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, with a memdum and arts of assen in the terms of the drafts which have already been prepared and approved by the directors of the existing coy.

- (b) The undertaking of the existing coy to be made over to the new coy upon the terms of the reconstruction agreement, which has already been prepared and approved by the directors of the existing coy.
- (c) The directors of the existing coy to be the first directors of the new coy.
- (d) The preferred stock and the deferred stock, and the founders' shares receivable under the reconstruction agreement, to be distributed among the members of the existing coy, so that as nearly as may be every member shall receive—
For every 11. of preferred stock in the existing coy, 11. of preferred stock in the new coy.
For every 11. of deferred stock in the existing coy, 11. of deferred stock in the new coy.

For every founders' share in the existing coy, one founders' share in the new coy.

- (e) The assets of the existing coy, excepted by the reconstruction agreement, are to be dealt with thus:—
(1.) The sum of £— cash is to be applied in paying to the holders of the preferred stock in the existing coy a dividend thereon for the half-year ending the 28th February, 19—, at the rate of 5 p.c.p.a.
(2.) The liqrs are to be at liberty to make over the accepted net revenue of the existing coy since 28th February, 19—, upon condition that the same is treated as net revenue of the new coy, applicable to the payment of dividend.
- (f) The reconstruction to be carried out under sect. 192 of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, subject to the provisions of the arts of assen of the existing coy, and accordingly the existing coy to go into voluntary liquidation, and to authorize the liqrs to carry out the reconstruction immediately, so that there may be no interruption of the business.
- (g) With all convenient speed the existing coy to be dissolved.

Now THEREFORE IT IS AGREED as follows:—

1. The existing coy shall be reconstructed in accordance with the sd scheme.

2. Each member of the existing coy who is a party to or ratifies this agreement shall concur in passing the requisite resolutions to effectuate such reconstruction, and shall accept the preferred stock and cash, and the deferred stock and the founders' shares, as the case may be, coming to him under the sd scheme as afsd in full satisfaction and discharge of all his interests as a member of the existing coy in the assets thof.

Reconstruction as per scheme.
Special resolutions.

Form 789.

Consideration.

When absolute.

3. The sd B., C. and D. shall use their best endeavours to procure the reconstruction of the existing coy in accordance with the sd scheme.

4. This agreemt is to become absolute—

(1.) If and when it is ratified in writing by all the members of the existing coy who are not parties to it, or

(2.) If and when the directors of the existing coy shall certify hereon in writing that in their opinion the proportion of the members who have ratified this agreemt is so large that the non-concurrence of the outstanding members should be disregarded, and in such case this agreemt shall be binding on those who are parties to it and on those who have ratified it, and shall be carried into effect as nearly as may be on the lines afd.

When void.

5. If this agreemt does not become absolute within six calendar months from the date hof, it shall thereupon become void.

AS WITNESS, &c.

Having regard to the decisions in Griffith v. Paget, 5 C. D. 894. and Simpson v. Palace Co., 69 L. T. 72 (see supra, pp. 1141, 1142), it is sometimes necessary to get all the shareholders to assent beforehand to the particular scheme proposed. An agreement in the above form was used in a case where a winding-up would have abrogated all distinction between the several classes, and it was desired to reconstruct on the footing that the shareholders should all stand in the new company as they stood in the old company. The form has since been made use of (with requisite modifications) in a number of important cases involving many millions of money and thousands of shareholders.

Sect. 120 of the Act of 1908 affords but little assistance in this respect, for class meetings under that section can only be held after the commencement of the winding-up. Now a winding-up without special terms would prejudice one class, and that class will not consent to a winding-up on the chance that meetings may subsequently approve of an arrangement.

Agreement for exchange of shares.

AN AGREEMENT, made the — day of —, —, between A. of —, on behalf of himself and all the other holders of shares in the — Coy. Limtd (hmftr called "the old coy") of the one part, and B. of —, on behalf of the new coy hmftr mentd of the other part.

WHEREAS the old coy was incorporated in the year — under the Cos Acts, 1862 to 1900, as a coy with liability limtd by shares.

AND WHEREAS the nominal capital of the old coy is 300,000L., divided into 10,000 preference shares of 10L. each and 20,000 ordinary shares of 10L. each.

AND WHEREAS a coy (hmftr called "the new coy") is about to be formed and incorporated under the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, as a coy with liability limtd by shares, and intended to be called "The — Coy, Limtd."

AND WHEREAS the memdum and arts of asson of the new coy have been prepared, and are approved of by the parties hto.

AND WHEREAS the capital of the new coy is to be 400,000*l.*, divided into 400,000 shares of 1*l.* each. Form 790.

AND WHEREAS it is desirable to make provision for the exchange of shares in the old coy for shares in the new coy, as hnfr provided.

NOW IT IS HEREBY AGREED as follows:—

1. When this agreemt becomes absolute, the sd A. and each holder of shares in the old coy who shall have ratified this agreemt shall exchange his or her preference and ordinary shares in the old coy for shares in the new coy, as hnfr provided.

2. The conson for the sd exchange shall in each case be as follows; that is to say: Sixteen fully pd-up shares in the new coy of 1*l.* each for every preference share in the old coy, and twelve fully pd-up shares in the new coy of 1*l.* each for every ordinary share in the old coy.

3. In order effectually to ratify this agreemt, each holder of shares in the old coy who desires to ratify the same must, after the incorporation of the new coy, sign and deliver to the Bank, Limtd, No. —, Street, E.C., the bankers of the new coy, a note of ratification and applicon in respect of the preference shares and another in respect of the ordinary shares in the old coy of such holder, and such applicons shall be framed in the terms of the forms set forth in the schedule hto, and must be accompanied by the certificate therein referred to.]

4. When this agreemt becomes absolute, the new coy shall allot to the sd A., and to each holder who shall have ratified the same as afsd, the fully pd-up shares in the new coy to which the sd A. and such holder shall be entld in exchange as afsd, and the sd A. and such holder shall transfer such shares to the new coy or its nominees as and when required.

It is not safe to add the words "that in the meantime the shares shall be held in trust for the new company," for that will attract ad ratorem duty. Chesterfield v. Inland Revenue, (1899) 2 Q. B. 7.

5. This agreemt shall become absolute when and so soon as it shall have been ratified as afsd by all the holders of the issued preference shares in the old coy, and by all the holders of the issued ordinary shares in the old coy, or by such proportion of the holders of each class afsd of the sd shares, not being less than nine-tenths in value, as the sd — shall consider sufficient, and shall have been adopted by the new coy, and if it shall not have been so ratified and adopted before the — day of —, it shall on that day become void.

6. In conson of the premises, the sd B. shall use his best endeavours to procure the incorporation of the new coy and the ratification and adoption afsd.

7. Each ratifying shareholder afsd shall be deemed to authorize Form 790. the sd A., on behalf of such ratifying holder, (a) to enter into a supplemental agreement with the new coy when incorporated for the adoption by the new coy of this agreement and for the discharge of the sd B. from all liability thereunder, and for the identification of the shares to be allotted to such ratifying shareholder; and (b) to sign a transfer in accordance with clause 4 *h*of.

8. In respect of the pd-up shares afo^d, the new coy shall cause a sufficient contract or contracts, within the meaning of sect. 88 of the Cos (Consolidation) Act, 1908, to be filed with the Registrar of Cos.

As witness the hands of the parties hto the day and year first above written.

AMALGAMATION.

CHAPTER XXIII.

INTRODUCTORY NOTES.

The term "amalgamation" as used in relation to companies has no technical meaning. It is a popular phrase, and as such, has for many years (see first edition of this work, published in 1877) been used to describe various transactions differing considerably in detail but generally falling within one or other of the following heads:—

What is an amalgamation?

- (a) The transfer of the undertaking of an existing company or of several existing companies to another existing not newly formed company, of which all the members of the transferring company or companies become or have the right to become members, and the subsequent dissolution of the transferring company or companies.
- b) The transfer of the undertaking of two or more existing companies to a new company formed to take over the same, of which all the members of the transferring companies become or have the right to become members, and the subsequent dissolution of the transferring companies.

The term "amalgamation" had long before 1877 been used to describe transactions of this kind. See the Era case (1861), 30 L. J. Ch. 137; Higg's case, 2 H. & M. 666; Stace and Worth's case (1869), 4 Ch. 682; Dougan's case (1873), 8 Ch. 545; Wynne's case (1873), 8 Ch. 1003; Doman's case (1876), 3 C. D. 21.

A transaction may be an amalgamation notwithstanding that the terms "purchase" and "sale" are used. See the last-mentioned cases. It is also immaterial that a substantial part of the assets are excepted. Wall v. London and Northern Assets Corporation (No. 1), (1898) 2 Ch. 469. Thorne Chitty, J., said: "In this case there is a selling of the assets with the exception I have mentioned, and there is, I think, an amalgamation in this sense, that the purchasing company gives to the selling company shares in itself to be distributed according to the clause which I shall mention presently.

That seems to me in the ordinary and reasonable sense of the term, and certainly in the sense in which it is used in this article, to be an amalgamation." See also South African Supply and Cold Storage Co., (1904) 2 Ch. 268, that the exception of a portion of the assets from the transfer does not deprive the transaction of the character of an amalgamation.

Where a company has been dissolved in pursuance of an amalgamation scheme designed to defeat payment of the company's debenture holders, such dissolution will be declared void under sect. 223 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908. Re Spottiswood, Dixon and Hunting, Ltd., (1912) 1 Ch. 410.

Advantages
mation.

A large company is generally in a much better position to carry on business successfully than a small one. The expense of management in a small company is relatively much more burdensome than in a large one, and in order to keep it down a small company is, very commonly, obliged to employ directors and other officers and agents of inferior business capacity. Again, the shares of a small company are not uncommonly unsaleable, except perhaps in a local market where the demand may be limited and uncertain. This places a small company at a disadvantage: it may, and often does, find considerable difficulty in placing its original capital, and still greater in raising any further share capital. And not only has a small company difficulty in placing share capital, but it has little or no chance of borrowing on debentures.

This is why the amalgamation of small undertakings has for some time been making considerable progress. Another great inducement to amalgamation is the desire to terminate competition. However good competition may be for the public, it is very often ruinous to the parties engaged in it.

An amalgamation may be effected:

By special
Act.

(1.) By special Act of Parliament. It is not very often that this mode is adopted by companies formed under the Companies Acts. See Part III.

Under
sect. 192.

(2.) Under sect. 192 of the Act of 1908. This is the mode generally adopted.

(3.) Under a power in the memorandum of association to sell the undertaking for shares in another company (see Form 114, supra, p. 510), combined with a power in the articles to divide assets in a winding-up in specie. So long as the validity of this kind to sell the undertaking was recognized (supra, p. 1452 et seq.), it was not at all uncommon to effect an amalgamation of several companies by forming a new company, which acquired the undertakings of the old companies in exchange for shares, and then later on the old companies went into liquidation and distributed the shares. This plan was specially applicable where the new company was going to offer its capital, or some part of it, for public subscription, as the arrangements for amalgamation could be made conditional on the new company floating, and then, if it did not float, the agreements could be determined and the old companies could go on as before. But since the Bisgood case (see supra, p. 1454) this mode of amalgamation is no longer practicable. Apart from this it was not always available, owing to the absence of a sufficient power in the memorandum to sell the business.

The fact that the agreement for sale purports to provide how the consideration is to be distributed among the shareholders of the selling company does not render the agreement itself invalid, although the proposed distribution may be inconsistent with the rights of the shareholders under the memorandum and articles. Wall v. London and Northern Assets Corporation, (1898) 2 Ch. 469. But an injunction may in such a case be obtained to prevent the assets from being distributed amongst the members otherwise than in accordance with their rights and interests in the company. Manners v. St. David's Gold and Copper Mines, (1904) 2 Ch. 593.

(sect. 161 (supra, p. 1434) of the Companies Act, 1862).

There are two modes of effecting an amalgamation under sect. 192. Two modes of effecting amalgamation under sect. 192.
Thus:—

(a) Company A. and Company B. desire to amalgamate. Company A. passes a special resolution to wind up, appointing liquidators, and directing them to sell the assets to Company B. in consideration of shares in that company to be allotted to the members of Company A. The liquidators act accordingly, and Company A. is then dissolved.

Mode (a).

(b) Company A. and Company B. desire to amalgamate. Company C. is formed to acquire their assets and liabilities, and to carry on the amalgamated business. Each of the old companies then passes a special resolution as in the last case, the liquidators carry the sale into effect, and the old companies are thereupon dissolved. See Higg's case, 2 H. & M. 666.

Mode (b).

Plan (a) can only be adopted where one of the companies desiring to amalgamate has power to acquire the property and liabilities of the other or others.

When above modes adopted.

Plan (b), on the other hand, is available in every case, and is often adopted, even where there is an ample power to purchase, for the circumstances of the companies, or the terms of the amalgamation, very commonly render the establishment of a new company necessary.

It may be convenient here to follow closely the course of proceedings upon an amalgamation in accordance with these two modes. And, first, as to mode (a).

Proceedings on amalgamation.

Mode (a).

We will suppose that Company A. and Company B. desire to amalgamate; that the directors of Company B. have full power to purchase the assets of Company A.; and that there are sufficient unallotted shares of Company B. at the disposal of the directors thereof.

Terms.

The first thing is for the directors of the two companies to arrange the terms on which the sale is to be made. They must settle whether the consideration is to consist exclusively of shares, or partly of shares and partly of cash, whether the shares are to be fully or partly paid up, whether Company B. or the liquidator of Company A. is to purchase the interests of dissentients, and satisfy the debts of Company A., whether any of the directors of Company A. are to become directors of Company B., and whether Company B. is to compensate any of the officers of Company A. for loss of office, and so forth.

Agreement.

When the terms are settled they will be embodied in a conditional agreement. See infra, Form 793. Notice of the arrangement is then given to the members of Company A. by the directors thereof, and meetings are called to pass a special resolution to wind up, appointing a liquidator, and directing him to adopt the agreement. The special resolution having been passed, the liquidator adopts the agreement and carries it into effect. Company B. will allot the shares as provided by the agreement; the dissentients will be satisfied as arranged. The debts of Company A. will be paid and liquidated by Company B., or the liquidators of Company A., according to the arrangement. As soon as may be, Company A. will then be dissolved.

It will be observed that the proceedings are very similar to those upon a reconstruction.

Plan (b).

If the amalgamation is to be effected by a sale to a new company according to plan (b), the terms of amalgamation will be settled between the directors of the companies proposing to amalgamate, and embodied in an agreement made with some person on behalf of the intended new company. Each of the companies then passes a special resolution as above, and the subsequent course will be the same as above upon amalgamation according to plan (a).

An amalgamation according to plan (b) closely resembles a reconstruction by means of sect. 192 of the Act of 1908 (sect. 162 of 1862), except that it involves the reconstruction of two or more companies instead of one. See supra, p. 1435 et seq.

How debts of transferring company to be paid.

In every case of amalgamation, the question arises whether the debts, costs of winding up the selling company, and the obligation of satisfying the dissentient members of that company, are to be borne by the purchasing company, or not. The chief advantage of throwing the burden on the purchasing company is that the members of the selling company, who will be called on to sanction the arrangement by special resolution, are more likely to do so if they know precisely how many shares in the purchasing company they are to receive; but this cannot be, if the selling company is to bear the burden. On the other hand, the purchasing party may not be willing to accept a burden which is more or less indefinite: it may well prefer to purchase the assets for a fixed sum.

In practice the burden is almost always thrown on the purchasing company.

Where the burden of paying the debts, costs of winding-up, and obligation of satisfying dissentient members of the selling company or companies is not to be thrown on the purchasing company, the agreement with the purchasing company will be for the sale of the assets in consideration of a definite number of shares in the purchasing company to be allotted to the liquidators of the selling company, or as they direct; and the special resolution of the selling company, besides providing for the winding-up, appointment of liquidators, and adoption of the agreement, will direct the liquidators to sell so many of the shares as may be necessary to pay the debts, costs of winding-up, and to satisfy dissentients, to apply the proceeds for these purposes, and to distribute the remaining shares among the members. Sometimes the agreement provides for the retention by the selling company of sufficient funds to pay its creditors.

In some cases the directors of a company can only acquire the assets of another company with the sanction of their own company in general meeting or by special resolution; and where this is the case, as regards a company to which a sale by way of amalgamation is proposed to be made under sect. 192 (sect. 161), the necessary sanction must be obtained; and it ought to be obtained before the selling company is called on to pass the special resolution for winding up, &c., for it would be a serious miscarriage for the selling company if, after the passing of the resolution to wind up, the agreement fell through. The only course would then be to reconstruct or to apply to the Court to stay the liquidation.

It is very common, upon an amalgamation, to provide that some of the directors of the selling company shall become directors of the purchasing company. Where the amalgamation is effected by means of the formation of and sale to a new company, this is provided for by the articles of the new company; but if the sale is to be to an existing company, it is generally necessary to obtain the sanction of the agreement by ordinary or special resolution of that company, for the power of appointing directors is almost always vested in the company in general meeting. See Stace and Worth's case, 4 Ch. 685; and James v. Eve, L. R. 6 H. L. 335.

So, too, it may be necessary to get the sanction of an ordinary or special resolution of the purchasing company where the agreement involves the creation of new shares by that company.

Upon an amalgamation, it is by no means uncommon to provide for compensation to such of the directors or other officers of the selling company as are not to take office under the purchasing company.

Where transferring company to pay its own debts.

When special resolution of purchasing company necessary.

As to appointment of directors of selling company to be directors of purchasing company.

Sanction if new shares have to be created.

Compensation to officers of selling company.

Nor is there any objection to such an arrangement provided there is no concealment. Southall v. British Mutual Life Assurance Society, 6 Ch. 614. It has been held that the notice convening the meeting ought to disclose such provisions. Kaye v. Croydon Tramways Co., (1898) 1 Ch. 358, followed in Tiessen v. Henderson, (1899) 1 Ch. 861; and see Normandy v. Ind, Coope & Co., (1908) 1 Ch. 84.

Notices of meetings to be explicit.

The notices calling general meetings to pass the special resolutions should be sufficiently explicit. (See p. 1448.) They should be accompanied by a circular showing the nature of the plan, and, if no previous communication on the subject has been made to the members, the advantages or necessity which should induce its adoption.

The notices ought to contain some reference, direct or indirect, to sect. 192 of the Act, particularly if the memorandum or articles contain a power "to amalgamate." See the case of the Imperial Bank of China, &c. v. Bank of Hindustan, &c., 6 Eq. 91; also Fox's case, 6 Ch. 176. It is now usual to refer expressly to sect. 192.

As the validity of the resolutions depends on the sufficiency of the notices, it is a serious mistake not to render them proper and sufficient beyond dispute. See also supra, p. 1448.

Objects of purchasing may be more extensive than those of selling company.

Upon an amalgamation effected under sect. 192 of the Act, it is no objection that the objects of the purchasing company are more extensive than those of the selling company (Southall v. British Mutual Life Assurance Society, 11 Eq. 65); nor that they are entirely different; indeed it is often one of the very purposes of the amalgamation that the objects of the purchasing company should be more extensive and diversified.

What companies can amalgamate under sect. 192.

Any company capable of being registered under the Act of 1908 (see Part VII. of the Act) may effect a reconstruction or amalgamation under sect. 192. It should register under the Act and immediately afterwards resolve on a voluntary winding-up and sale. Sect. 249 (1) of the Act provides that such a registration shall not be invalid by reason that it has taken place with a view to the company being wound up, and it has been decided that registration with a view to winding up and selling under sect. 192 is not open to objection. Southall v. British Mutual Life Assurance Society, 11 Eq. 65.

As to name of amalgamated company.

If it is desired that the purchasing company should assume the name of the selling company, or part of it, the agreement will provide accordingly, and the change will be made, with the consent of the Board of Trade and of the liquidators, under sect. 8 of the Act. This has been done in various cases, and may be effected in a few days.

Amalgamation with foreign company.

An amalgamation with a foreign company might have been effected under sect. 161 of the Act of 1862, but it cannot be under sect. 192. See Thomas v. The United Butter Corp. of France, (1909) 2 Ch. 484, and supra, p. 1439.

An agreement for sale adopted by the liquidators pursuant to a direction of the company is valid. See supra, p. 1440.

The agreement may provide for the allotment of the shares to the liquidators, or to the members directly. See supra, p. 1440.

As to dissentients, see supra, pp. 1442-1444.

Dissentients.

As to their right of action for purchase money, see supra, p. 1446.

As to arbitration, see supra, p. 1444.

As to the rights of dissentients being restricted by the articles, see supra, p. 1445.

As to altering articles of association with a view to deprive dissentients of their rights under sect. 161 (now sect. 192), see supra, p. 1445; Fox's case, 6 Ch. 183; Baring-Gould v. Sharpington Syndicate, (1899) 2 Ch. 80; Payne v. Cork Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 308.

An agreement in a winding-up to sell the assets in consideration of shares, coupled with a provision that if the realized value should not amount to a fixed sum the deficiency should be made good by a call on the members of the selling company, is not such a sale as can be made under sect. 192. Even if the call was to be made on the assenting members only, it is considered that such a sale would be invalid. "It is sufficient to say that, in my opinion, the liquidators of a company would have no right to place a shareholder of a company in this position, that he must either dissent altogether from the arrangement, and be subject to have his share taken from him at a valuation, or else come in under the arrangement, and thus be forced to subject himself to the liability of guaranteeing the sufficiency of the assets." Per Lord Cairns, L. C., Clinch v. Financial Corporation, 4 Ch. 120; p. 1439, supra. The property to be sold under sect. 192 is the assets of the company, exclusive of its uncalled capital (if any). S. C. See, however, supra, p. 1439.

Clinch v. Financial Corporation.
Invalid agreement.

But there is no objection to a sale being made in consideration of shares which are to be deemed only in part paid up (City and County Investment Co., 13 C. Div. 475; Imperial Mercantile Credit Association, 12 Eq. 504; Hester & Co., 44 L. J. Ch. 757; Postlethwaite v. Port Philip Co., 43 C. D. 452; Mason v. Motor Traction Co., (1905) 1 Ch. 419, a case of sale under powers in the memorandum of association); or in consideration of deferred or preference shares.

The resolution to be passed by the A. Company may be as follows:—

That the conditional agreemt submitted to this meeting be and the same is hby approved, and that the liqrs be and they are hby authorized, pursuant to sect. 192 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, to adopt the said agreemt and carry the same into effect, with such, if any, modification as the sd liqrs may think expedient.

Resolution for the amalgamation of two companies with a third.

1. That it is expedient to effect an amalgamation of this coy. with the A. Coy, Limtd, and with the B. Coy, Limtd.

2. That the following draft agreements, submitted to this meeting, namely:

(a) A draft agreement, dated, &c., and expressed to be made between N., on behalf of the A. Coy, Limtd, of the one pt, and this coy of the other pt:

(b) A draft agreement, dated, &c., and expressed to be made between R., on behalf of the B. Coy, Limtd, of the one pt, and this coy of the other pt:

be and they are hby approved, and that the directors be and they are hby authorized to execute agreements in the terms of the sd drafts resply, and to carry the same into effect.

3. That the capital of this coy be increased to £ —, by the creation of — new shares of £ — each.

4. That the directors be and they are hby authorized, upon the adoption of the sd first-mentd agreement by the liqrs of the A. Coy, Limtd, with the sanction of a special resolution of that coy, to appoint — and —, two of the present directors of the sd coy, to be directors of this coy.

5. That [similar resolution as to B. Coy].

6. That the following clause be substituted for clause — of the arts of asson of this coy, namely: "The number of directors of the coy shall not exceed twelve, and shall not be less than seven."

In the above case three companies, A., B., and C., desire to amalgamate. The transaction is to be effected by the winding-up of A. and B., and sale to C., which is to carry on the amalgamated business. Company C. has issued all its shares, and the capital must therefore be increased in order to effect the amalgamation. One of the terms of the arrangement is that two of the directors of each of the A. and B. companies shall be appointed directors of the C. company. In such a case one mode of effecting the transaction is as follows:—

Two draft agreements between the A. and B. companies, respectively, and the C. company will be prepared. They will be in the form of that given supra, p. 1488, mutatis mutandis.

These drafts will be submitted to the C. company, which will pass the above special resolutions.

The A. and B. companies will then pass special resolutions as above, p. 1489, and the liquidators will in due course adopt the agreements, which will be carried into effect.

The clause in the agreements as to the appointment of the directors will be as follows:—

"Upon the adoption of this agreement by the liquidators of the [A.] company, with the sanction of a special resolution of that company, — and —, two of the present directors thereof, shall be appointed directors of the C. company."

This clause can of course be modified so as to enable the A. company in general meeting to select the two directors, or to enable the directors of that company to do so.

That [amalgamation expedient, supra, p. 1490].

1. That, &c. [Wind up and appointment of liqrs.]

2. That the sd liqrs be and they are hby authorized to consent to the registration of a new coy to be named "The A. and B. Coy, Limtd," with a memdum and arts of assen, which have been already prepared with the privity and approval of the directors of this coy.

3. That the draft agreemt expressed to be made between the liqrs of this coy of the first pt, this coy of the second pt, the liqrs of the B Coy, Limtd, of the third pt, the B. Coy, Limtd, of the fourth pt, and the A. and B. Coy, Limtd, of the fifth pt, be and the same is hby approved, and that the sd liqrs be and they are hby directed to enter into an agreemt on behalf of this coy in the terms of the sd draft, and to carry the same into effect.

In this case company A. and company B. desire to amalgamate, and for divers reasons it is necessary to effect this by the formation of a new company to absorb the old ones.

An agreement, expressed to be made between the A. and B. companies and the liquidators thereof respectively, and the new company, will be prepared, or there may be two separate agreements each similar to that supra, p. 1488.

Each of the A. and B. companies will then pass a second resolution as above.

Immediately after the passing of the resolution the liquidators will sign the proper consent authorizing the registration of the A. and B. Company, which will be forthwith incorporated. For Form of Consent, see supra, p. 1090.

The primary object of the A. and B. Company, as set forth in the memorandum, will be:—

"To purchase or otherwise acquire, and to undertake all or any part of the business, property, assets, and liabilities of the following companies, namely:—

The A. Company, Limited,

The B. Company, Limited, or either of them, upon such terms and conditions, and subject to such stipulations as may be agreed on."

The memorandum will also contain all requisite objects for carrying on the amalgamated business.

The articles will authorize the directors to execute the agreement.

As soon as may be after the registration of the new company, the agreement will be executed by all parties, and carried into effect. It must also be filed under sect. 88 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

ARRANGEMENTS AND COMPROMISES.

Preliminary In previous editions of this work the subject of arrangements and compromises under the Joint Stock Companies (Arrangement) Act 1870 (now sect. 120 of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908) has been dealt with in Part II. (Winding-up), the reason being that the provisions of that Act applied only to a company "in the course of being wound up either voluntarily or by or under supervision of the Court." But as the jurisdiction in this respect has been altered and amplified, it seems desirable to treat or touch on arrangements and compromises in this Part also. By the Companies Acts, 1900 and 1907, two important changes were introduced:—

- (1.) By sect. 24 of the Act of 1900, the provisions of the Joint Stock Companies (Arrangement) Act were made to apply "not only as between the company and the creditors or any class thereof, but as between the company and the members of any class thereof."
- (2.) By sect. 38 of the Act of 1907, the Act of 1870 was made applicable whether the company was or was not in course of being wound up.

The Act of 1870, so modified, has been re-enacted in sect. 120 of the Act of 1908. That section runs as follows:—

Sect. 120 of
Act of 1908.

120.—(1.) Where a compromise or arrangement is proposed between a company and its creditors or any class of them, or between the company and its members or any class of them, the Court may, on the application in a summary way of the company or of any creditor or member of the company, or in the case of a company being wound up of the liquidator, order a meeting of the creditors or class of creditors, or of the members of the company or class of members, as the case may be, to be summoned in such manner as the Court directs.

(2.) If a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of the creditors or class of creditors, or members or class of members, as the case may be, present either in person or by proxy at the meeting, agree to any compromise or arrangement, the compromise or arrangement shall, if sanctioned by the Court, be binding on all the creditors or class of creditors, or on the members or class of members, as the case may be, and also on the company, or in the case of a company in the course of being wound up on the liquidator and contributories of the company.

(3.) In this section the expression "company" means any company liable to be wound up under this Act.

Under this section the Court can therefore sanction a compromise or arrangement between the company and its creditors or any class of them, and a compromise or arrangement between the company and its members or any class of them, and the sanction of the Court may be obtained whilst the company is a going concern, without a winding-up. This extension of the jurisdiction was first granted by sect. 38 of the Companies Act, 1907, and the power to sanction an arrangement between the company and its members or any class thereof was first given by sect. 24 of the Companies Act, 1900. Those were great boons.

The word "compromise" in the section involves, it may be remarked, the notion of some dispute or difference as to the rights of the respective parties, but the word "arrangement" is more extensive in its signification. Those words both appear as alternatives in sect. 2 of the Joint Stock Companies Arrangement Act, 1870, and ever since that Act the Courts have acted on the footing that "arrangement" is a word having the widest signification. Thus, in an early case on the Act, it was held that "an arrangement" might be provided for the issue of fully paid-up shares in a company (to be formed) in satisfaction of the company's debentures. Slater v. Darlaston Steel Co., W. N. (1877), pp. 139, 165. And the same point was decided by North, J., in Re Mammoth Copperopolis of Utah (May, 1879), affirmed by the C. A. 4 Aug. 1879, and by Chitty, J., in Re North Western, &c. Co. (1882), third edition of this work, p. 603 and p. 606. And the jurisdiction to sanction an arrangement so providing was emphasized by North, J., in Empire Mining Co., 44 C. D. 402, and by the Court of Appeal in Alabama, New Orleans, Texas and Pacific Junction Railway Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 213. In fact, the Court has declined to place any limit on the meaning of the word "arrangement." "What the Court has to do," said Lindley, J., in that case, "is to see first of all that the provisions of the statute have been complied with, and secondly, that the majority has been acting bonâ fide. The Court also has to see that the minority is not being overridden by a majority having interests of its own clashing with those of the minority whom they seek to coerce. Further than that, the Court has to look at the scheme and see whether it is one as to which persons acting honestly, and viewing the scheme laid before them in the interest of those whom they represent, take a view which can be reasonably taken by business men. The Court must look at the scheme and see whether the Act has been complied with; whether the majority are acting bonâ fide, and whether they are coercing the minority to promote interests adverse to those of the class whom they purport to represent; and then see whether the scheme is a reasonable one, and whether there is any reasonable objection to it, or such an objection to it as that any reasonable man might say that he could not approve of it." It is no objection, therefore, to a scheme as the above cases show, that it drastically affects the position of any class of creditors as, for example, by converting them into shareholders, or by postponing, curtailing, or even extinguishing their rights in some way. It is sufficient that the class taking the view which can reasonably be taken by business men, approve of the scheme in the interests of all, expressing that approval by resolution passed by the statutory majority. And these principles are not confined to an arrangement between the company and its creditors, or some class thereof, they apply equally to an arrangement between the company and its members, or some class thereof. So held in Edinburgh American Land Mortgage Co. v. Lang's Trustees, (1909) S. C. 488—Ct. of Sess.

But of late it has been suggested that the jurisdiction conferred by sect. 120 to sanction "an arrangement," though expressed in the most general terms, is by implication limited or restricted so as not to enable the Court to sanction an arrangement between the company and its members, or any class of them, which departs from the constitutional rights of the members as defined in the memorandum of association, e.g., by infringing the rights attached by the memorandum to the preference shares. This suggestion is based on sect. 45 of the Act, which points out a mode in which the conditions of the memorandum may in certain respects be altered by special resolution sanctioned by the Court (see infra, p. 1519). But there seems no sufficient ground for thus restricting the power of the Court. The jurisdiction conferred by sect. 120 is expressed in general terms, and sect. 45, which is very limited in its scope, does not at all cover the same ground, and should be regarded as pointing out an alternative mode of procedure available in certain cases; for otherwise there would be a great many cases in which a desirable arrangement could not be sanctioned for want of jurisdiction. See, too, Forms infra.

In like manner it was at one time suggested and held that the general jurisdiction to confirm a reduction of capital was impliedly restricted so as not to allow the confirmation of a reduction in contravention of the constitutional rights of the members under the memorandum of association. Thus in Quebrada Land and Copper Co., 40 C. D. 361, North, J., only confirmed a reduction which involved a departure from the constitutional rights of the classes on being satisfied that practically all the shareholders of the class prejudiced consented. So in Union Plate Glass Co., 42 C. D. 513, Kay, J., refused to confirm a reduction which involved a departure from constitutional rights of the members by throwing an undue proportion of the loss on the preference shareholders. "How could," said Kay, J., in that case, "any company in general meeting having only a general power to reduce capital say, 'In this case we agree that the capital of all the ordinary shareholders shall be reduced, but the capital of the shareholders who are entitled to preferential dividend—a right which it is to be observed gives them no preference as to capital in any kind of way—shall not be reduced.' I do not know how a majority could bind a dissentient individual by a resolution of that kind; in my opinion it could not. I am distinctly of opinion that such a resolution as that would be beyond the powers of the company. But if it were not, to expect the Court to sanction a resolution of that kind, which is in fact the resolution that has been passed in this case . . . is quite out of the question."

So in Denver Hotel Co., (1893) 1 Ch. 495, the Court of Appeal was of opinion that the Companies Act, 1867, could not be construed so as to enable a company to prefer one shareholder to another of the same class as himself by buying up his shares.

But these cases and the principles on which they rested were overruled in British and American Trustee and Finance Corporation v. Couper, (1894) A. C. 399, in which case it was held that the Court had jurisdiction to confirm any kind of reduction whatever, and that the fact that the reduction required the confirmation of the Court went far to preclude any notion that the jurisdiction was limited in any way. "If," said Lord Herschell in that case, "the scheme which the Court is asked to confirm be in fact one for the reduction of capital, I am, with all deference, at a loss to understand how the Court, in confirming it, could be acting ultra vires, seeing that, as I have pointed out, the statute has not prescribed the manner in which the reduction is to be carried out, nor has it prohibited any method of effecting that object. I do not see any danger in the conclusion that the Court has power to confirm such a scheme as that now in question, nor any reason to doubt that this was the intention of the Legislature. The interests of creditors are not involved, and I think it was the policy of the Legislature to invest the prescribed majority of the shareholders with power of deciding whether there should be a reduction of capital, and, if so, how it should be carried into effect. The interests of the dissenting minority of the shareholders (if there be such) are properly safeguarded by this: that the decision of the majority can only prevail if it be confirmed by the Court. This is a complete answer to the argument ably urged by Counsel at the Bar that if all the shareholders of the same class were not dealt with in precisely the same fashion, the interest of the minority might be unduly sacrificed to those of the majority. There can be no doubt that any scheme which does not provide for uniform treatment of shareholders whose rights are similar would be most narrowly scrutinised by the Court, and that no such scheme ought to be confirmed unless the Court is satisfied that it will not work unjustly or inequitably. But this is quite a different thing from saying that the Court has no power to sanction it." In like manner it would seem, by parity of reasoning, that the Court has jurisdiction to sanction an arrangement under sect. 120, notwithstanding that in doing so it gives legal effect to what could not be validly arranged between the members and the company apart from the section, as for instance where—contrary to Ashbury v. Watson, 30 C. D. 376—the scheme alters rights conferred on the preference shareholders as regards capital or dividend, or both, by the memorandum of association.

It is also to be noted that having regard to sub-sect. (2) of sect. 120, the arrangement, if sanctioned by the Court, is to be binding on all the creditors or the class of creditors, or on the members or class of members, as the case may be, and also on the company by virtue of the section. Here, then, is a positive enactment that the arrangement if so sanctioned is to be binding, binding by virtue of the Act of Parliament, and binding, not merely as the memorandum and articles of the company are by sect. 14 of the Act made binding, that is to say, in a qualified way, but binding to all intents and purposes.

In a recent case (General Motor Co.) the Court of Appeal, 1 Ap. 1912, held that it had no jurisdiction to sanction an arrangement of a very remarkable character.

The Court.

The Court which has jurisdiction to sanction a compromise or arrangement under the section is "the Court having jurisdiction to wind up the company." Sects. 120 (3), 131 and 285.

What companies within the section.

The expression "any company" in sect. 120 means any company liable to be wound up under this Act. See sub-sect. (3). Thus, the section is applicable not only to a registered company, but to an unregistered company as defined in sect. 267, e.g., a company incorporated by special Act for supplying water, gas, electricity, a tramway, &c.

Creditor.

Who are creditors within
section.

The term "creditor," as used in the Act of 1870, was construed in a wide sense, and it may be assumed that it will be similarly construed in reference to sect. 120 of the new Act. It includes "every conceivable class of creditor." Per Bowen, L. J., Alabama New Orleans Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 243. Accordingly it includes not merely creditors in respect of debts presently payable, but creditors in respect of debts still current; and not merely creditors in the ordinary sense, but persons who can prove for damages, e.g., policy holders whose policies are still current (Sovereign Life Assurance Co. v. Dodd, (1892) 2 Q. B. 573); and not merely unsecured creditors, but secured creditors, e.g., debenture holders and debenture stock-holders. Slater v. Darlaston Steel Co., W. N. (1877) 139; Re Empire Mining Co., 44 Ch. D. 402; Re Alabama Rail. Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 228; Re Dynevor Collieries, 11 Ch. D. 605.

"The language of the section is wide enough to include all creditors, whether they hold securities or do not hold securities—they are still creditors, and they can come in if they like and prove. If they are amply secured they need not come—they can hold their securities; but still they are creditors. Unless this Act [of 1870] is construed so as to include all creditors, it appears to me that in a great many instances the Act would be a dead letter." Per Lindley, L. J., in Alabama, New Orleans, Texas and Pacific Junction Ry., supra, p. 1493. See also Midland Coal, &c. Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 267, n.; appeal in H. L. compromised, 74 L. T. 744; Wood v. De Mattos, L. R. 1 Ex. 100.

In a very early case on the Act of 1870 it was held that to proceed under that Act it was necessary that the amount of the debts should be capable of being ascertained or estimated. Albert Life Assurance Co., 6 Ch. 381, where numberless cases arose as to whether there had been a novation by policy holders or not.

As to classes of creditors, separate meetings have to be convened where it is proposed to deal with more than one class. Unsecured creditors form one class; secured creditors form another class e.g., debenture holders. Alabama, New Orleans, &c. Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 213; Empire Mining Co., 44 C. D. 402. Each series of debenture holders again forms a separate class.

In Dynevor Collieries Co., 11 Ch. D. 610, Brett, L. J., held that debenture holders might be properly summoned to vote en masse, though there were several classes of them, but there the arrangement was for a lease of the whole undertaking.

In the case of policy holders, current policy holders may form one class and matured policy holders another. Sovereign Life v. Dodd, (1892) 2 Q. B. 573.

The meeting should adequately represent the entire body of creditors or class of creditors. Per Bowen, L. J., Re Alabama, New Orleans, &c. Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 245. It is for the Chief Clerk (now the Master) to see that due notice is given to the creditors. Ibid.

The section, however, does not apply to foreign or colonial creditors. Thus, if an arrangement is made and sanctioned in England, A. B. and C., who reside in a colony, can notwithstanding the arrangement sue the company in the colony as freely as if the arrangement had not been made. New Zealand Loan Co. v. Morrison, (1898) A. C. 349; and see Ellis v. MacHenry, L. R. C. P. 234; Gibbs v. Société des Métaux, 25 Q. B. D. 399.

So in the case of members, if there are different classes of shareholders, separate meetings should be held. In a recent case—United Providence Assurance Co., (1910) 2 Ch. 477 Swinfen Eady, J., held that shareholders who had paid up their shares in advance at interest and ordinary fully paid shareholders were not in the same position, and directed separate meetings to be held of each class.

The Court has in some cases directed subsidiary meetings to be convened abroad (English, Scottish, &c. Bank, (1893) 3 Ch. 385), but the meetings within the jurisdiction must be the governing factor.

The Court has in some cases given directions as to the deposit of proxies abroad and as to telegraphing the particulars to London. English, Scottish, &c. Bank, (1893) 3 Ch. 385.

The liquidator is, if the company is in winding-up, the proper person to preside at meetings under the Act. Slater v. Darlaston Steel & Iron Co., W. N. (1877) 139.

Though it is no longer necessary before a compromise or arrangement can be sanctioned that an order should have been made or an effective resolution passed for the winding-up of the company, there may still be cases in which a winding-up may be necessary. For example, where a company is being sued by pressing creditors whom it cannot pay, it may be necessary to pass a resolution to wind up voluntarily or even to present a petition for a compulsory order so as to stop actions and allow time for a compromise or arrangement under the section, with, perhaps, a subsequent stay of the winding-up. It must be borne in mind that unless there is a winding-up there is no power in the Court to restrain proceedings against the company. The mere commencement of proceedings for a compromise or arrangement under sect. 120 does not operate as a stay of action and proceedings (Booth v. Wallden Spinning Co., (1909) 2 K. B. 368). This is a defect in the section. See sect. 7 of the Railway Companies Act, 1867 (30 & 31 Vict. c. 127).

Binding
of order.

A compromise or arrangement under the section shall, "if sanctioned by the Court, be binding on all the creditors or the class of creditors or on the members or class of members, as the case may be, and also on the company, or, in the case of a company in the course of being wound up, on the liquidator and contributories of the company." The effect of these words is to give to the compromise or arrangement a statutory operation. Those who are bound by the scheme cannot in any way object to the terms of it. Their remedy is to appeal for the purpose of having it set aside, but whilst the order stands unappealed its propriety cannot be challenged. Nicholl v. Everhardt, 61 L. T. 489; The Empire Life, 31 C. D. 78; Midland Coal &c. Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 627. Leave to appeal is necessary in some cases. Creditors and contributories, for instance, cannot appeal unless they appeared at the hearing. Securities Insurance Society, (1894) 2 Ch. 410. The sanction of the arrangement only binds those whom it purports to bind. Sovereign Life v. Dodd, (1892) 2 Q. B. 273. Where a meeting of unsecured creditors was convened a person having a contingent claim was held bound. Midland Co., (1895) 1 Ch. 267. A creditor or member who is bound and afterwards acts in contravention of the arrangement can be sued by the company and if needs be an injunction obtained.

Who may Apply.

Who may apply.

Looking to the terms of the Act the company can apply, a creditor can apply, a member can apply, and, finally, if the company is being wound up, the liquidator can apply. Where there is not a winding-up the company is generally the proper person to make the application.

How application made.

The section says that the application may be made in "a summary way," and accordingly in the High Court the mode of application for an order to convene the meetings is now almost always made by summons. If there is no winding-up by or under the supervision of the Court this should be an originating summons. Applications have however, from time to time been made by motion or petition.

It is not in every case that a meeting of members is necessary. For example, where it is proposed to deal only with the debenture holders of the company by reducing the rate of interest and cancelling arrears of interest, all that is necessary is to call a meeting of the debenture holders. So where the scheme merely affects members, e.g., is to reduce the rate of dividend on the preference shares and to cancel arrears, then it would be necessary to convene a meeting of the preference shareholders only; or if in such case it is part of the arrangement that the ordinary shares shall be reduced, then a meeting of the ordinary shareholders also would have to be convened. On the other hand, where the ordinary shareholders or members have no beneficial interest in the company, as, for example, where the assets are over-charged by debentures so that nothing will remain for the members after the amount owing on the debentures has been satisfied, then it may not be necessary to hold any meeting of ordinary shareholders or members. So held by Chitty, J., 9th August, 1881, in Dominion of Canada, &c. Co., where it was alleged in the petition and proved that the value of the assets was less than the amount of the debentures charged thereon. Brownfields Guilds Pottery Society, W. N. (1898) 80; Tea Corporation, (1904) 1 Ch. 12, in which last case non-approval of the scheme by the ordinary shareholders was held immaterial, on the ground that as an immediate realization of the assets would produce no surplus for such shareholders, they had no interest entitling them to veto the scheme. The same principle applies to a class of creditors, e.g., to the unsecured creditors where the assets are insufficient to satisfy prior charges.

Debentures, debenture stock, and other securities made payable to bearer are not uncommon, and in such cases special care should, therefore, be taken that the holders have fair notice of the meeting. This is generally done by direction that the notice convening the meeting shall be advertised in several of the principal newspapers, and further that a circular should be sent to all those persons who are known to be creditors. In the case of bearer securities it has been held that at a meeting summoned under the Act (1870) those persons only could be regarded as entitled to vote who produced their securities at or before the meeting. Wedgwood Coal Co., 6 C. D. 627.

The voting at any meeting under the section may be either in person or by proxy. Jessel, M. R. (Madras Irrigation Co. W. N. (1881) 120), held that a proxy must be a member of the class on the ground that "it was well established that for the purpose of a meeting of any particular class of persons, proxies could only be given to and held by members of that class, and accordingly that the proxies in this case given to the official liquidator were invalid."

The author has not been able to discover any prior authority for this so-called well established rule, and it is not easy to find any

members

sound reason why the Court should depart from the words of the Act, words which clearly import that a creditor may be present and vote by proxy without any limitation or restriction whatever as to the status of the proxy.

Majority.

Under the Act of 1870 the majority required was a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of such creditors or class of creditors, &c., but in sect. 120 of the new Act the words "in number" disappear.

It has been held that, in computing the majority, those members of the class only have to be taken into account who are present in person or by proxy. Those not present in person or by proxy must be disregarded. Phoenix Bessemer, 1 C. D. 151; Alabama, New Orleans, &c. Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 213.

"The value" in the case of creditors means the amount due to the particular creditor. In the case, however, of a creditor whose claim is not liquidated, the "value" is the amount for which he is entitled, or would be entitled in a winding-up to prove. In the case of members, "value" has reference to the amount of the shares or stocks held by them respectively.

The report to be made to the Court should state accurately the number of the class—shareholders, creditors, policy holders, &c.—present and the value thereof, and how the members of the class vote. The report is usually made an exhibit to an affidavit and verified thereby.

The Petition.

The petition to the Court comes after the meetings. It states the incorporation of the company, its objects, capital, and registered office, the circumstances which have given rise to the need for a compromise or arrangement, the terms of the proposed compromise or arrangement, the order for the meetings, the convention and holding of such meetings, the passing of the resolution for approval, and it prays the Court to sanction the compromise or arrangement.

Although it is usual to apply by petition to the Court to sanction a compromise or arrangement, there is jurisdiction to make the order on summons, and this was done in the cases following:—Gaudet Frères, Malins, V.-C., 24th July, 1878, A. 1489; Northern Coal Co., Malins, V.-C., 12th September, 1876, B. 1598; Wernstrill Colliery Co., Hall, V.-C., 2nd December, 1875, B. 1991; Uruari Co., Chitty, J., 7th April, 1892.

In either case the application must be supported by affidavit evidence.

Specimen Schemes.

Character of Compromise or Arrangement.

In many cases a scheme has been sanctioned providing for the formation of a new company; for the transfer of the undertaking of the old company to the new company; for the issue by the new company to the debenture holders of the old company of debentures or debenture stock of the new company, payable at a more distant period; for the undertaking by the new company of the other debts and liabilities of the old company; and for the issue to the shareholders of the old company of shares in the new company, with a liability thereon of so much per share.

But except in a winding-up there cannot be a reconstruction: Re General Motor-Cab Co., C.A., 1 April, 1912.

The scheme very commonly provides that the debentures or debenture stock which are to be issued to the debenture holders or debenture stock-holders of the old company shall be payable at a deferred date at the expiration, say, of a term of 5, 10, 20, or 30 years.

Sometimes there are considerable arrears of interest on the debentures of the old company. When this is the case such arrears are in some cases extinguished altogether, and in other cases are satisfied by the issue of additional debentures or debenture stock, or by the issue of paid-up shares.

Where a company is loaded with debentures it is very common for the scheme to provide for the creation by the new company of a new series of debentures or debenture stock, ranking in priority to the debentures or debenture stock which are to be given to the debenture or debenture stock-holders of the old company.

Sometimes the debenture holders of the old company receive preference shares, or even ordinary shares, in the new company in satisfaction of their debentures (Slater v. Dorlston Steel Co., W. N. (1877) 165; Empire Mining Co., 44 Ch. D. 402; Alabama, New Orleans, &c. Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 213), and sometimes they receive only a composition, whether in shares or debentures, in satisfaction of their claims.

At times the debentures or debenture stock given to the debenture or debenture stock-holders of the old company carry a right to vote at general meetings of the new company, and a right to appoint and remove one or more directors. This right is sometimes to subsist until the debentures or debenture stock are redeemed, and is sometimes to subsist only for a term, or until the profits arrive at a certain figure.

As to the ordinary creditors, the scheme sometimes provides for payment of the ordinary creditors in full in cash, especially where they are of small amount, or the non-payment would be detrimental to the business.

Sometimes they are given a composition of so much in the pound, payable in cash either by instalments or otherwise.

Sometimes, again, they are given debentures or debenture stock, or preference shares or ordinary shares.

Sometimes a scheme provides only for an arrangement between the company and its members of some class, e.g., by providing as to preference shares that the preferential rights attached to the preference shares shall be modified, by reducing the preferential dividend by cancelling arrears, and by altering the holders' rights in winding-up, and as to ordinary shareholders, that in consideration of the concessions made by the preference shareholders they, the ordinary shareholders, shall submit to a reduction of capital in derogation of their rights. And when the arranging company is being wound up, it may be part of the arrangement that the winding-up shall be stayed, and the company resume business; or it can be stayed except for certain specified purposes. Western of Canada Oil Co., W. N. (1874) 148.

So where there is a debenture action pending, the Court can stay the proceedings wholly or in part if the statutory majority of the debenture holders agree.

A scheme or arrangement is very commonly initiated where a debenture action is in progress and the undertaking in the hands of a receiver. In such case an application for an order to summon meetings should be made in the action, and under the section. This accords with the past practice. A scheme may provide for the passing of special resolutions to alter the memorandum or articles (see Western of Canada Oil Co., W. N. (1874) 148); or the alteration can be effected by the scheme. Thus, in the Oakham Co., Jessel, M. R. sanctioned a scheme adopting new articles.

Court's
and power.

The Court has a discretion as to sanctioning an arrangement, even if agreed to by the statutory majority. It must be satisfied that the scheme is a proper one (Empire Mining Co., 11 Ch. D. 402), that is, that it is made in good faith and is fair and reasonable. Alabama, New Orleans, &c. Co., (1891) 1 Ch. 113. It is the duty of the Court, for instance, to see that the majority has been acting bonâ fide and that the minority has not been overridden by a majority having interests clashing with those of the minority whom they seek to coerce.

On the same principle the Court will not sanction an arrangement which has been carried by the votes of creditors who are not acting bonâ fide in the interests of the class (Wedgwood Co., 6 C. D. 627), but the mere fact that some creditors are shareholders does not invalidate their votes. See Alabama, New Orleans, &c. Co., supra; and in Buenos Ayres Water Co., 66 L. T. 408, it was held that a special concession made by a third party to voters was not to be regarded as a bribe, and therefore did not invalidate their votes.

Again, as a matter of fairness, the Court should not, so Fry, J., held in Re Richards & Co., 11 Ch. D. 676, sanction an arrangement which would prejudice a creditor whose rights would have been preferential if the petition to wind up had been carried on, e.g., a judgment creditor who would have got leave to issue execution in the winding-up.

Further, the Court has to look at the scheme and say whether it is one as to which persons acting honestly, and viewing the scheme laid before them in the interest of those whom they represent, take a view which can be reasonably taken by business men. Lindley, J., Alabama, New Orleans, &c. Rail. Co., supra; and see English, Scottish and Australian Chartered Bank, (1893) 3 Ch. 385. "I have," said Bowen, L. J., in the first of these two cases, "no doubt at all that it would be improper for the Court to allow an arrangement to be forced on any class of creditors, if the arrangement cannot reasonably be supposed by sensible business people to be for the benefit of that class as such, otherwise the sanction of the Court would be a sanction of what would be a scheme of confiscation.'

But if the arrangement is an honest and fair one the Court, as James, L. J., said in Dyneror Collieries Co., 11 Ch. D. 605, will not be astute to find out any technical defects in the proceedings. See also Edinburgh American Land Co. v. Lam's Trustees (1909), S. C. 18 Ct. of Sess., where the scheme had been approved by the statutory majorities of members of various classes, and the Court refused to withhold its sanction because of the opposition of a minority of debenture holders.

The Court does not in the case of a compromise or arrangement require provision to be made for paying out dissentient members of the class. To do so would defeat the very object of the section, for it is sufficiently obvious that the object of the section is to entrust the specified majority with the power to bind the whole class, and if the majority cannot bind the class but every objecting member is to be at liberty to insist on being paid out in cash, the value of the section is largely diminished. However, in Canning Jarrah Timber Co., (1900) 1 Ch. 708, where there was an arrangement in conjunction with a reconstruction under sect. 161 of the Act of 1862 (now sect. 192), it was held by the Court of Appeal that there ought to be provision for payment out of dissentients, as in sect. 161. This was not the view of Chitty, J., as expressed in Dominion of Canada, &c. Co., 55 L. T. 352. "The object of the Act," said his Lordship, "is to allow classes of creditors to enter into what?—A compromise or arrangement. I think, therefore, that Mr. L. (an objector), as a member of this class of creditors, is bound by the resolution that was come to at the meeting of the class"; and the same principle appears to be applicable to an arrangement or compromise of the members. No doubt, if the scheme is carried out in part under sect. 192, a dissentient member may properly claim the rights given to him by that section, but where sect. 192 is not made use of, it is submitted that there is no sufficient reason to hold that a dissentient should be given special rights. Where the Legislature intends dissentients to have special rights and privileges, it makes express provision for the same, as, for example, in sect. 9 (5) of the Act, where the Court is empowered to confirm an alteration of objects, it is provided that "the Court shall, in exercising its discretion under this section, have regard to the rights and interests of the members of the company or of any class of them as well as to the rights and interests of the creditors, and it may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the proceedings in order that an arrangement may be made to the satisfaction of the Court for the purchase of the interests of dissentient members, and may give such directions and make such orders as it may think expedient for facilitating and carrying into effect any such arrangement: Provided that no part of the capital of the company may be expended in any such purchase." So, too, in sect. 192, by which power is given to a liquidator, with the sanction of a special resolution, to transfer the whole or part of the business or property of the company to another company, there is express power given in sub-sect. (3) to any member not voting in favour of the special resolution at either of the meetings held for passing or confirming the same, to express his dissent therefrom, and to insist on payment of the fair value of his interest in cash. But sect. 120 contains no such provisions.

Under-writing.

Now that a company can pay for underwriting (sect. 89), there is no objection to providing in a scheme that the company shall offer certain shares for subscription and shall pay a commission for underwriting the same. See supra, p. 279.

Reduction of capital

A scheme of arrangement which involves a reduction of capital is occasionally submitted. In such a case it has been held that the scheme must be sanctioned as an arrangement and also as a reduction of capital, and that all the requisite proceedings in sect. 46 of the Act in regard to reduction must be carried through. See Cooper, Cooper and Johnson, 51 W. R. 314.

Modifications.

The scheme of arrangement usually contains a clause empowering the company or its liquidator to assent to any modifications or conditions approved or imposed by the Court, and the clause is sometimes qualified, e.g., by adding the words "and by the trustees for the debenture holders." In the absence of any such clause, it is more than doubtful whether the Court can sanction a modified scheme or impose conditions which must operate by way of modification.

Foreign and colonial companies.

The Joint Stock Companies (Arrangement) Act, as was held by the Privy Council, did not apply to the colonies. New Zealand Loan, &c. Co. v. Morrison, (1898) A. C. 349. Therefore, a scheme sanctioned by the Court here is, quoad colonies, to be regarded as a proceeding in a foreign Court, and cannot be pleaded by the company in a colonial Court as a defence to an action by a non-assenting colonial creditor for the value of the amount of his claim.

SCHEME OF ARRANGEMENT between the coy and its members under sect. 120 of the Act of 1908.

1. The capital of the coy is to be reduced [state how].

2. The arrears of dividend up to the 31st December, 1911, to be cancelled, and any profits up to that date available for dividend to be capitalized.

3. Instead of the provisions contained in paragraphs (a) to (f) inclusive of clause 6 of the company's memorandum of association, the rights of the several classes of shares in the company's capital as regards dividend and distribution of assets in winding-up, to be as follows:

The profits of each year to be applicable first to the payment of a cumulative preferential dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on the 70,000*l.* preference shares.

Secondly, to the payment of a dividend at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum on the capital paid up on the ordinary shares, but so that they shall for the purposes of such dividend be deemed to be of the nominal value of 1*l.* each instead of 1*s.* each, and to be fully paid up to the extent of 1*l.* per share.

Thirdly, to the accumulation of a reserve fund of 20,000*l.* for the purposes specified in clause 113 of the company's articles of association.

As to the residue, the same to be paid as to one equal moiety to the holders of ordinary shares by way of additional dividend, and as to the other equal moiety to the holders of the founders' shares in each case respectively in proportion to the number of shares of the class held by them respectively.

And in a winding-up the assets available for distribution amongst the members shall be applied first to the payment off of the capital paid up on the preference shares; secondly, to the payment off of the capital paid up on the ordinary shares and founders' shares pari passu, but on the footing that the ordinary shares shall for that purpose continue to have paid up thereon the sum of 1*l.* per share, not 1*s.* per share, and the balance to belong to the holders of the preference, ordinary, and founders' shares respectively, in proportion to the capital paid up on the said shares of each class respectively, but so that for this purpose the ordinary shares shall be deemed to be paid up to the extent of 1*l.* per share instead of 1*s.* per share. Paragraphs (g) and (h) of the memorandum of association to apply to the reduced capital.

The scheme above set forth was sanctioned in due course.

The parties had endeavoured to carry the scheme out with the assistance of the Court (see North-West Argentine Rail. Co., (1900) 2 Ch. 882), but the Court held that the scheme was irregular inasmuch as it provided for a distribution of the assets otherwise than in accordance with the legal rights of the parties thereto, i.e., gave the preference shareholders about 13,000l. more than their proper proportion, thus infringing the rules laid down in Griffith v. Paget (1877), 5 C. D. 894.

In the course of the year 1900 the Companies Act, 1900, was passed, and sect. 24 of that Act (the Joint Stock Companies Arrangement Act, 1870) was extended so as to include an arrangement between a company and its members or any class of its members. Accordingly, the application was made to the Court under the Act as so amended. In due course the order was made by Wright, J.

Advertisement of order.

Reorganization of Capital under sect. 45 of the Companies Consolidation Act, 1908.

Sect. 45 is in the terms following, that is to say:

45. (1) A company limited by shares may by special resolution confirmed by order of the Court modify the conditions contained in its memorandum so as to reorganize its share capital, whether by consolidation of shares of different classes or by the division of its shares into shares of different classes.

Provided that no preference or special privilege attached to or belonging to any class of shares shall be interfered with except by a resolution passed by a majority in number of shareholders of that class holding three-fourths of the share capital of that class, and confirmed at a meeting of shareholders of that class in the same manner as a special resolution of the company is required to be confirmed, and every resolution so passed shall bind all shareholders of the class.

(2) Where an order is made under this section an office copy thereof shall be filed with the Registrar of Companies within seven days after the making of the order, or within such further time as the Court may allow, and the resolution shall not take effect until such a copy has been so filed.

The above section appears only to provide for the specified cases of reorganization, that is to say, (1) reorganization by consolidation of shares of different classes, and (2) reorganization by the division of the company's shares into shares of different classes. In such cases it provides a mode of carrying out the reorganization subject to the conditions specified in the section. It is apprehended that the section does not by implication control or limit the powers of the Court under sect. 120, see supra, p. 1494, or any power which the company may have by its constitution apart from the section.

In Australian Estates and Mortgage Co., Ltd., (1910) 1 Ch 414, it was held that unless the preferential rights attached to preference shares were so attached by the memorandum of association, sect. 45 of the Act did not apply. In that case the company passed a resolution for reducing its capital by writing off certain lost capital, and in conjunction with this another resolution was passed altering the rights of the classes, which resolution was passed pursuant to a provision in the company's articles of association, and it was held that the resolutions were valid, and that sect. 45 did not apply, and the reduction was sanctioned.

In Stewart Precision Carburetter Co., Ltd., there was an application to confirm a special resolution to convert certain preference shares into ordinary shares, and to attach to the preference shares the right to participate pari passu with the ordinary shares in the surplus profits of each year. This resolution was passed and confirmed at separate meetings of the preference shareholders, but no meetings of the ordinary shareholders were held to consider it. Eve, J., confirmed the resolution, saying: "The question was whether there ought to have been a separate meeting of the ordinary shareholders. Undoubtedly the resolution did to a certain extent interfere with the rights of the ordinary shareholders as regarded the surplus profits, but it could not strictly speaking be said to interfere with any special privilege of the ordinary shareholders. The interference, therefore, did not come within the words of the section, and the resolution will be confirmed." Law Journal Notes, 30th March, 1912, p. 218.

Special Acts.

Chapter XXIII. of the 10th edition of this work dealt with Special Acts, Provisional Orders, &c. In the present edition the matter is placed as Part III., along with Debentures and Debenture Stock.

6. The memorandum must bear the same stamp as if it were a deed, and must be signed by each subscriber in the presence of at least one witness who must attest the signature, and that attestation shall be sufficient in Scotland as well as in England and Ireland.

7. A company may not alter the conditions contained in its memorandum except in the cases and in the mode and to the extent for which express provision is made in this Act.

8.—(1.) A company may not be registered by a name identical with that by which a company in existence is already registered, or so nearly resembling that name as to be calculated to deceive, except where the company in existence is in the course of being dissolved and signifies its consent in such manner as the registrar requires.

(2.) If a company, through inadvertence or otherwise, is, without such consent as aforesaid, registered by a name identical with that by which a company in existence is previously registered, or so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive, the first-mentioned company may, with the sanction of the registrar, change its name.

(3.) Any company may, by special resolution and with the approval of the Board of Trade signified in writing, change its name.

(4.) Where a company changes its name, the registrar shall enter the new name on the register in place of the former name, and shall issue a certificate of incorporation altered to meet the circumstances of the case.

(5.) The change of name shall not affect any rights or obligations of the company, or render defective any legal proceedings by or against the company, and any legal proceedings that might have been continued or commenced against it by its former name may be continued or commenced against it by its new name.

9.—(1.) Subject to the provisions of this section a company may, by special resolution, alter the provisions of its memorandum with respect to the objects of the company, so far as may be required to enable it—

- (a) to carry on its business more economically or more efficiently; or
- (b) to attain its main purpose by new or improved means; or
- (c) to enlarge or change the local area of its operations; or
- (d) to carry on some business which under existing circumstances may conveniently or advantageously be combined with the business of the company; or
- (e) to restrict or abandon any of the objects specified in the memorandum.

2.) The alteration shall not take effect until and except in so far as it is confirmed on petition by the Court.

(3.) Before confirming the alteration the Court must be satisfied

- (a) that sufficient notice has been given to every holder of debentures of the company, and to any persons or class of persons whose interests will, in the opinion of the Court, be affected by the alteration; and
- (b) that, with respect to every creditor who in the opinion of the Court is entitled to object, and who signifies his objection in manner directed by the Court, either his consent to the alteration has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has been determined, or has been secured to the satisfaction of the Court:

Provided that the Court may, in the case of any person or class, for special reasons, dispense with the notice required by this section.

(4.) The Court may make an order confirming the alteration either wholly or in part, and on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit, and may make such order as to costs as it thinks proper.

(5.) The Court shall, in exercising its discretion under this section, have regard to the rights and interests of the members of the company or of any class of them, as well as to the rights and interests of the creditors, and may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the proceedings in order that an arrangement may be made to the satisfaction of the Court for the purchase of the interests of dissentient members; and may give such directions and make such orders as it may think expedient for facilitating or carrying into effect any such arrangement: Provided that no part of the capital of the company may be expended in any such purchase.

(6.) An office copy of the order confirming the alteration, together with a printed copy of the memorandum as altered, shall, within fifteen days from the date of the order, be delivered by the company to the Registrar of Companies, and he shall register the same, and shall certify the registration under his hand, and the certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act with respect to the alteration and the confirmation thereof have been complied with, and thenceforth the memorandum so altered shall be the memorandum of the company.

The Court may by order at any time extend the time for the delivery of documents to the registrar under this section for such period as the Court may think proper.

(7.) If a company makes default in delivering to the Registrar of Companies any document required by this section to be delivered to him, the company shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pounds for every day during which it is in default.

(2.) Articles of association may adopt all or any of the regulations contained in Table A. in the First Schedule to this Act.

(3.) In the case of an unlimited company or a company limited by guarantee the articles, if the company has a share capital, must state the amount of share capital with which the company proposes to be registered.

33. The register of members shall be prima facie evidence of any matters by this Act directed or authorized to be inserted therein.

34.—(1.) A company having a share capital, whose objects comprise the trans- action of business in a colony, may, if so authorized by its articles, cause to be kept in any colony in which it transacts business a branch register of members resident in that colony (in this Act called a colonial register).

(2.) The company shall give to the registrar of companies notice of the situation of the office where any colonial register is kept, and of any change in its situation, and of the discontinuance of the office in the event of its being discontinued.

(3.) For the purpose of the provisions of this Act relating to colonial registers the term "colony" includes British India and the Commonwealth of Australia.

35.—(1.) A colonial register shall be deemed to be part of the company's register of members (in this and the next following section called the principal register).

(2.) It shall be kept in the same manner in which the principal register is by this Act required to be kept, except that the advertisement before closing the register shall be inserted in some newspaper circulating in the district wherein the colonial register is kept, and that any competent Court in the colony may exercise the same jurisdiction of rectifying the register as is under this Act exercisable by the High Court, and that the offences of refusing inspection or copies of a colonial register, and of authorizing or permitting the refusal may be prosecuted summarily before any tribunal in the colony having summary criminal jurisdiction.

(3.) The company shall transmit to its registered office a copy of every entry in its colonial register as soon as may be after the entry is made; and shall cause to be kept at its registered office, duly entered up from time to time, a duplicate of its colonial register, and the duplicate shall, for all the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be part of the principal register.

(4.) Subject to the provisions of this section with respect to the duplicate register, the shares registered in a colonial register shall be distinguished from the shares registered in the principal register, and no transaction with respect to any shares registered in a colonial register shall, during the continuance of that registration, be registered in any other register.

(5.) The company may discontinue to keep any colonial register, and thereupon all entries in that register shall be transferred to some other colonial register kept by the company in the same colony, or to the principal register.

(6.) Subject to the provisions of this Act, any company may, by its articles, make such provisions as it may think fit respecting the keeping of colonial registers.

36. In relation to stamp duties the following provisions shall have effect:—

(a) An instrument of transfer of a share registered in a colonial register shall be deemed to be a transfer of property situate out of the United Kingdom, and, unless executed in any part of the United Kingdom, shall be exempt from British stamp duty:

- (b) On the death of a member registered in a colonial register, the shares of the deceased member shall, if he died domiciled in the United Kingdom, but not otherwise, be deemed, so far as relates to British duties, to be part of his estate and effects situate in the United Kingdom for or in respect of which probate or letters of administration is or are to be granted, or whereof an inventory is to be exhibited and recorded, in like manner as if he were registered in the principal register.

37.—(1.) A company limited by shares, if so authorized by its articles, may, with respect to any fully paid-up shares, or to stock, issue under its common seal a warrant stating that the bearer of the warrant is entitled to the shares or stock therein specified, and may provide by coupons or otherwise, for the payment of the future dividends on the shares or stock included in the warrant, in this Act termed a share warrant.

(2.) A share warrant shall entitle the bearer thereof to the shares or stock therein specified, and the shares or stock may be transferred by delivery of the warrant.

(3.) The bearer of a share warrant shall, subject to the articles of the company, be entitled, on surrendering it for cancellation, to have his name entered as a member in the register of members; and the company shall be responsible for any loss incurred by any person by reason of the company entering in its register the name of a bearer of a share warrant in respect of the shares or stock therein specified without the warrant being surrendered and cancelled.

(4.) The bearer of a share warrant may, if the articles of the company so provide, be deemed to be a member of the company within the meaning of this Act, either to the full extent or for any purposes defined in the articles: except that he shall not be qualified in respect of shares or stock specified in the warrant for being a director or manager of the company in cases where such a qualification is required by the articles.

(5.) On the issue of a share warrant the company shall strike out of its register of members the name of the member then entered therein as holding the shares or stock specified in the warrant as if he had ceased to be a member, and shall enter in the register the following particulars, namely:—

- (i) The fact of the issue of the warrant;
- (ii) A statement of the shares or stock included in the warrant, distinguishing each share by its number; and
- (iii) The date of the issue of the warrant.

(6.) Until the warrant is surrendered, the above particulars shall be deemed to be the particulars required by this Act to be entered in the register of members; and, on the surrender, the date of the surrender must be entered as if it were the date at which a person ceased to be a member.

38.—(1.) If any person—

- (i) with intent to defraud, forges or alters, or offers, utters, disposes of, or puts off, knowing the same to be forged or altered, any share warrant or coupon, or any document purporting to be a share warrant or coupon, issued in pursuance of this Act; or by means of any such forged or altered share warrant, coupon, or document, purporting as aforesaid, demands or endeavours to obtain or receive any share or interest in any company under this Act, or to receive any dividend or money payable in respect thereof, knowing the warrant, coupon, or document to be forged or altered; or
- (ii) falsely and deceitfully personates any owner of any share or interest in any company, or of any share warrant or coupon, issued in pursuance of this Act, and thereby obtains or endeavours to obtain any such share or interest or share warrant or coupon, or receives or endeavours to receive any money due to any such owner, as if the offender were the true and lawful owner, he shall be guilty of felony, and being convicted thereof shall be liable, at the discretion of the Court, to be kept in penal servitude for life or for any term not less than three years.

(2.) If any person without lawful authority or excuse, proof whereof shall lie on him, engraves or makes on any plate, wood, stone, or other material any share warrant or coupon purporting to be a share warrant or coupon issued or made by any particular company in pursuance of this Act, or to be a blank share warrant or coupon so issued or made, or to be a part of such a share warrant or coupon, or uses any such plate, wood, stone, or other material for the making or printing of any such share warrant or coupon, or of any such blank share warrant or coupon, or any part thereof, or knowingly has in his custody or possession any such plate, or any other material, he shall be guilty of felony, and being convicted thereof shall be liable, at the discretion of the Court, to be kept in penal servitude for any term not exceeding fourteen years and not less than three years.

39. A company, if so authorized by its articles, may do any one or more of the following things; namely:

- (1.) Make arrangements for the issue of shares for a difference between the shareholders in the amounts and times of payment of calls on their shares;
- (2.) Accept from any member who assents thereto the whole or a part of the amount remaining unpaid on any shares held by him, although no part of that amount has been called up;
- (3.) Pay dividend in proportion to the amount paid up on each share where a larger amount is paid up on some shares than on others.

40.—(1.) When a company has accumulated a sum of undivided profits, which with the sanction of the shareholders may be distributed among the shareholders in the form of a dividend or bonus, it may, by special resolution, return the same, or any part thereof, to the shareholders in reduction of the paid-up capital of the company, the unpaid capital being thereby increased by a similar amount.

(2.) The resolution shall not take effect until a memorandum, showing the particulars required by this Act in the case of a reduction of share capital, has been produced to and registered by the registrar of companies, but the other provisions of this Act with respect to reduction of share capital shall not apply to a reduction of paid-up share capital under this section.

(3.) On a reduction of paid-up capital in pursuance of this section any shareholder, or any one or more of several joint shareholders, may within one month after the passing of the resolution for the reduction, require the company to retain and the company shall retain accordingly, the whole of the money actually paid on the shares held by him either alone or jointly with any other person, which consequence of the reduction, would otherwise be returned to him or them; thereupon those shares shall, as regards the payment of dividend, be deemed to be paid up to the same extent only as the shares on which payment has been accepted by the shareholders in reduction of paid-up capital, and the company shall invest and keep invested the money so retained in such securities authorized for investment by trustees as the company may determine, and on the money so invested or on so much thereof as from time to time exceeds the amount of calls subsequently made on the shares in respect of which it has been retained, the company shall pay the interest received from time to time on the securities.

(4.) The amount retained and invested shall be held to represent the future calls which may be made to replace the share capital so reduced on those shares, whether the amount obtained on sale of the whole or such proportion thereof as represents the amount of any call when made produces more or less than the amount of the call.

(5.) On a reduction of paid-up share capital in pursuance of this section, the powers vested in the directors of making calls on shareholders in respect of amount unpaid on their shares shall extend to the amount of the unpaid capital as augmented by the reduction.

6. After any reduction of share capital under this section the company shall specify in the annual list of members required by this Act the amount of the unpaid capital as augmented by the reduction, and shall specify in the statements of accounts laid before any general meeting the amount of undivided profits returned in reduction of share capital under this section.

41.—(1.) A company limited by shares, if so authorized by its articles, may, if the conditions of its memorandum as follows that it may, it may:

3. Where any alteration has been made under this section in the memorandum of a company, every copy of the memorandum issued after the date of the alteration shall be in accordance with the alteration.

If a company makes default in complying with this provision it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one pound for each copy in respect of which default is made, and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

4. A cancellation of shares in pursuance of this section shall not be deemed a reduction of share capital within the meaning of this Act.

42. Where a company having a share capital has consolidated and divided its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing share capital, or converted any of its shares into stock, or reconverted stock into shares, it shall give notice to the registrar of companies of the consolidation, division, conversion, or reconversion, specifying the shares consolidated, divided, or converted.

44. (1) Where a company having a share capital, which has not been converted into stock, has increased its share capital beyond the registered capital, and where a company not having a share capital has increased the number of its members beyond the registered number, the registrar of companies, in the case of an increase of share capital, within fifteen days after the passing, or in the case of a special resolution, the confirmation of the resolution, and in the case of an increase of the number of members within fifteen days after the increase was resolved on or took effect, shall give notice of the increase to the registrar, and the registrar shall record the increase.

45. (1) A company limited by shares may, by special resolution confirmed by an order of the Court, modify the conditions contained in its memorandum so as to reorganise its share capital, whether by the reclassification of shares of different classes or by the division of its shares into shares of different classes:

Provided that no preference or special privilege attached to or belonging to any class of shares shall be interfered with except by a resolution passed by a majority in number of shareholders of that class holding three-fourths of the share capital of that class and confirmed at a meeting of shareholders of that class in the same manner as a special resolution of the company is required to be confirmed, and every resolution so passed shall bind all shareholders of the class.

(2) Where an order is made under this section an office copy thereof shall be filed with the registrar of companies within seven days after the making of the order, or within such further time as the Court may allow, and the resolution shall not take effect until such a copy has been so filed.

47. Where a company has passed and confirmed a resolution for reducing share capital it may apply by petition to the Court for an order confirming the reduction.

48. On and from the confirmation by a company of a resolution for reducing share capital, or where the reduction does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, then on and from the presentation of the petition for confirming the reduction, the company shall add to its name, until such date as the Court may fix, the words "and reduced," as the last words in its name, and those words shall, until that date, be deemed to be part of the name of the company:

Objections by creditors, and settlement of list of objecting creditors.

49.—(1.) Where the proposed reduction of share capital involves either diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, and in any other case if the Court so directs, every creditor of the company who at the date fixed by the Court is entitled to any debt or claim which, if that date were the commencement of the winding up of the company, would be admissible in proof against the company, shall be entitled to object to the reduction.

(2.) The Court shall settle a list of creditors so entitled to object, and for that purpose shall ascertain, as far as possible without requiring an application from any creditor, the names of those creditors and the nature and amount of their debts or claims, and may publish notices fixing a day or days within which creditors not entered on the list are to claim to be so entered or are to be excluded from the right of objecting to the reduction.

(3.) Where a creditor entered on the list whose debt or claim is not discharged or determined does not consent to the reduction, the Court may, if it thinks fit, dispense with the consent of that creditor, on the company securing payment of his debt or claim by appropriating, as the Court may direct, the following amount: (that is to say, —

(i) If the company admits the full amount of his debt or claim, or, though not admitting it, is willing to provide for it, then the full amount of the debt or claim;

(ii) If the company does not admit or is not willing to provide for the full amount of the debt or claim, or if the amount is contingent or not ascertained, then an amount fixed by the Court after the like inquiry and adjudication as if the company were being wound up by the Court.

Registration of order and minute of reduction.

50. The Court, if satisfied, with respect to every creditor of the company who under this Act is entitled to object to the reduction, that either his consent to the reduction has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has been determined, or has been secured, may make an order confirming the reduction on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit.

51.—(1.) The registrar of companies on production to him of an order of the Court confirming the reduction of the share capital of a company, and the delivery to him of a copy of the order and of a minute (approved by the Court, showing with respect to the share capital of the company, as altered by the order, the amount of the share capital, the number of shares into which it is to be divided, and the amount of each share, and the amount (if any) at the date of the registration deemed to be paid up on each share, shall register the order and minute.

(2.) On the registration, and not before, the resolution for reducing share capital as confirmed by the order so registered shall take effect.

(3.) Notice of the registration shall be published in such manner as the Court may direct.

(4.) The registrar shall certify under his hand the registration of the order and minute, and his certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act with respect to reduction of share capital have been complied with, and that the share capital of the company is such as is stated in the minute.

52.—(1.) The minute when registered shall be deemed to be substituted for the corresponding part of the memorandum of the company, and shall be valid and alterable as if it had been originally contained therein; and must be embodied in every copy of the memorandum issued after its registration. S. 16 of 1867. Minute to form part of memorandum.

(2.) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one pound for each copy in respect of which default is made, and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorizes or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

53. A member of the company, past or present, shall not be liable in respect of any share to any call or contribution exceeding in amount the difference (if any) between the amount paid, or (as the case may be) the reduced amount, if any, which is to be deemed to have been paid, on the share and the amount of the share as fixed by the minute: S. 16 of 1867. Liability of members in respect of reduced shares.

Provided that if any creditor, entitled in respect of any debt or claim to object to the reduction of share capital, is, by reason of his ignorance of the proceedings for reduction, or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim, not entered on the list of creditors, and, after the reduction, the company is unable, within the meaning of the provisions of this Act with respect to winding up by the Court, to pay the amount of his debt or claim, then—

- i) every person who was a member of the company at the date of the registration of the order for reduction and minute, shall be liable to contribute for the payment of that debt or claim an amount not exceeding the amount which he would have been liable to contribute if the company had commenced to be wound up on the day before that registration; and
- (ii) if the company is wound up, the Court, on the application of any such creditor, and proof of his ignorance as aforesaid may, if it thinks fit, settle accordingly a list of persons so liable to contribute, and make and enforce calls and orders on the contributories settled on the list as if they were ordinary contributories in a winding up.

Nothing in this section shall affect the rights of the contributories among themselves.

54. If any director, manager, or officer of the company wilfully conceals the name of any creditor entitled to object to the reduction, or wilfully misrepresents the nature or amount of the debt or claim of any creditor, or if any director or manager of the company aids or abets in or is privy to any such concealment or misrepresentation as aforesaid, every such director, manager, or officer shall be guilty of a misdemeanour. S. 19 of 1867. Penalty on concealment of name of creditor.

55. In any case of reduction of share capital, the Court may require the company to publish as the Court directs the reasons for reduction, or such other information in regard thereto as the Court may think expedient with a view to give proper information to the public, and, if the Court thinks fit, the causes which led to the reduction. S. 4 of 1877. Publication of reasons for reduction.

56. A company limited by guarantee and registered on or after the first day of January nineteen hundred and one, may, if it has a share capital, and is so authorized by its articles, increase or reduce its share capital in the same manner and subject to the same conditions in and subject to which a company limited by shares may increase or reduce its share capital under the provisions of this Act. copies of any documents with copies of which he was furnished on the occasion of the original registration of the company, but, save as aforesaid, the registration shall take place in the same manner and shall have effect as if it were the first registration of the company under this Act, and as if the provisions of the Acts under which the company was previously registered and regulated had been contained in different Acts of Parliament from those under which the company is registered as a limited company.

- (f) the names and addresses of the vendors of any property purchased or acquired by the company, or proposed so to be purchased or acquired, which is to be paid for wholly or partly out of the proceeds of the issue offered for subscription by the prospectus, or the purchase or acquisition of which has not been completed at the date of issue of the prospectus, and the amount payable in cash, shares, or debentures, to the vendor, and where there is more than one separate vendor, or the company is a sub-purchaser, the amount so payable to each vendor: Provided that where the vendors or any of them are a firm the members of the firm shall not be treated as separate vendors; and
- (g) the amount (if any) paid or payable as purchase-money in cash, shares, or debentures, for any such property as aforesaid, specifying the amount (if any) payable for goodwill; and
- (h) the amount (if any) paid within the two preceding years, or payable, as commission for subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, for any shares in, or debentures of, the company, or the rate of any such commission: Provided that it shall not be necessary to state the commission payable to sub-underwriters; and
- (i) the amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses; and

(n) where the company is a company having shares of more than one class, the right of voting at meetings of the company conferred by the several classes of shares respectively.

(2.) For the purposes of this section every person shall be deemed to be a vendor who has entered into any contract, absolute or conditional, for the sale or purchase, or for any option of purchase, of any property to be acquired by the company, in any case where—

(c) the contract depends for its validity or fulfilment on the result of that issue.

(3.) Where any of the property to be acquired by the company is to be taken on lease, this section shall apply as if the expression "vendor" included the lessor, and the expression "purchase-money" included the consideration for the lease, and the expression "sub-purchaser" included a sub-lessee.

(4.) Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares or debentures to waive compliance with any requirement of this section, or purporting to affect him with notice of any contract, document, or matter not specifically referred to in the prospectus, shall be void.

(5.) Where any such prospectus as is mentioned in this section is published as a newspaper advertisement, it shall not be necessary in the advertisement to specify the contents of the memorandum or the signatories thereto, and the number of shares subscribed for by them.

(6.) In the event of non-compliance with any of the requirements of this section, a director or other person responsible for the prospectus shall not incur any liability by reason of the non-compliance, if he proves that—

(a) as regards any matter not disclosed, he was not cognizant thereof; or

(b) the non-compliance arose from an honest mistake of fact on his part:

Provided that in the event of non-compliance with the requirements contained in paragraph m of sub-section (1) of this section no director or other person shall incur any liability in respect of the non-compliance unless it be proved that he had knowledge of the matters not disclosed.

(7.) This section shall not apply to a circular or notice inviting existing members or debenture holders of a company to subscribe either for shares or for debentures of the company, whether with or without the right to renounce in favour of other persons, but subject as aforesaid, this section shall apply to any prospectus whether issued on or with reference to the formation of a company or subsequently.

(8.) The requirements of this section as to the memorandum and the qualification, remuneration, and interest of directors, the names, descriptions, and addresses of directors or proposed directors, and the amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses, shall not apply in the case of a prospectus issued more than one year after the date at which the company is entitled to commence business.

(9.) Nothing in this section shall limit or diminish any liability which any person may incur under the general law or this Act apart from this section.

82. (1.) A company which does not issue a prospectus on or with reference to its formation, shall not allot any of its shares or debentures unless before the first allotment of either shares or debentures there has been filed with the registrar of companies a statement in lieu of prospectus signed by every person who is named therein as a director or a proposed director of the company or by his agent authorized in writing, in the form and containing the particulars set out in the Second Schedule to this Act.

(2.) This section shall not apply to a private company or to a company which has allotted any shares or debentures before the first day of July nineteen hundred and eight.

Liability for statements in prospectus. faith of the prospectus for the loss or damage they may have sustained by reason of any untrue statement therein, or in any report or memorandum appearing on the face thereof, or by reference incorporated therein or issued therewith, unless it is proved—

- a) With respect to every untrue statement not purporting to be made on the authority of an expert, or of a public official document or statement, that he had reasonable ground to believe, and did up to the time of the allotment of the shares or debentures, as the case may be, believe, that the statement was true; and
- b) With respect to every untrue statement purporting to be a statement by or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a report or valuation of an expert, that it fairly represented the statement, or was a correct and fair copy of or extract from the report or valuation. Provided that the director, person named as director, promoter, or person who authorized the issue of the prospectus, shall be liable to pay compensation as aforesaid if it is proved that he had no reasonable ground to believe that the person making the statement, report, or valuation was competent to make it; and
- (c) With respect to every untrue statement purporting to be a statement made by an official person or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a public official document, that it was a correct and fair representation of the statement or copy of or extract from the document: or unless it is proved—
 - (i) that having consented to become a director of the company he withdrew his consent before the issue of the prospectus, and that it was issued without his authority or consent; or
 - (ii) that the prospectus was issued without his knowledge or consent, and that on becoming aware of its issue he forthwith gave reasonable public notice that it was issued without his knowledge or consent; or
 - (iii) that after the issue of the prospectus and before allotment thereunder, he, on becoming aware of any untrue statement therein, withdrew his consent thereto, and gave reasonable public notice of the withdrawal, and of the reason therefor.

(2.) Where a company existing on the eighteenth day of August one thousand eight hundred and ninety, has issued shares or debentures, and for the purpose of obtaining further capital by subscriptions for shares or debentures issues a prospectus, a director shall not be liable in respect of any statement therein, unless he has authorized the issue of the prospectus, or has adopted or ratified it.

(3.) Where the prospectus contains the name of a person as a director of the company, or as having agreed to become a director thereof, and he has not consented to become a director, or has withdrawn his consent before the issue of the prospectus, and has not authorized or consented to the issue thereof, the directors of the company, except any without whose knowledge or consent the prospectus was issued, and any other person who authorized the issue thereof, shall be liable to indemnify the person named as aforesaid against all damages, costs, and expenses to which he may be made liable by reason of his name having been inserted in the prospectus, or in defending himself against any action or legal proceedings brought against him in respect thereof.

(4.) Every person who, by reason of his being a director, or named as a director, or as having agreed to become a director, or of his having authorized the issue of the prospectus, becomes liable to make any payment under this section may recover contribution, as in cases of contract, from any other person who, if sued separately, would have been liable to make the same payment, unless the person who has become so liable was, and that other person was not, guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation.

(5.) For the purposes of this section—

The expression "promoter" means a promoter who was a party to the preparation of the prospectus, or of the portion thereof containing the untrue statement, but does not include any person by reason of his acting in a professional capacity for persons engaged in procuring the formation of the company:

The expression "expert" includes engineer, valuer, accountant, and any other person whose profession gives authority to a statement made by him.

Allotment.

85.—(1.) No allotment shall be made of any share capital of a company offered to the public for subscription, unless the following conditions have been complied with, namely:—

(a) the amount (if any) fixed by the memorandum or articles and named in the prospectus as the minimum subscription upon which the directors may proceed to allotment; or

(b) if no amount is so fixed and named, then the whole amount of the share capital so offered for subscription, has been subscribed, and the sum payable on application for the amount so fixed and named, or for the whole amount offered for subscription, has been paid to and received by the company.

(2.) The amount so fixed and named and the whole amount aforesaid shall be reckoned exclusively of any amount payable otherwise than in cash, and is in this Act referred to as the minimum subscription.

(3.) The amount payable on application on each share shall not be less than five per cent. of the nominal amount of the share.

(4.) If the conditions aforesaid have not been complied with on the expiration of forty days after the first issue of the prospectus, all money received from applicants for shares shall be forthwith repaid to them without interest, and, if any such money is not so repaid within forty-eight days after the issue of the prospectus, the directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to repay that money with interest at the rate of five per centum per annum from the expiration of the forty-eighth day:

Provided that a director shall not be liable if he proves that the loss of the money was not due to any misconduct or negligence on his part.

(5.) Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares to waive compliance with any requirement of this section shall be void.

(6.) This section, except sub-section (3) thereof, shall not apply to any allotment of shares subsequent to the first allotment of shares offered to the public for subscription.

(7.) In the case of the first allotment of share capital payable in cash of a company which does not issue any invitation to the public to subscribe for its shares, no allotment shall be made unless the minimum subscription (that is to say) —

(a) the amount (if any) fixed by the memorandum or articles and named in the statement in lieu of prospectus as the minimum subscription upon which the directors may proceed to allotment; or

(b) if no amount is so fixed and named, then the whole amount of the share capital other than that issued or agreed to be issued as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, has been subscribed and an amount not less than five per cent. of the nominal amount of each share payable in cash has been paid to and received by the company.

This sub-section shall not apply to a private company or to a company which has allotted any shares or debentures before the first day of July nineteen hundred and eight.

86.—(1.) An allotment made by a company to an applicant in contravention of the provisions of the last foregoing section shall be voidable at the instance of the applicant within one month after the holding of the statutory meeting of the company and not later, and shall be so voidable notwithstanding that the company is in course of being wound up.

(2.) If any director of a company knowingly contravenes or permits or authorizes the contravention of any of the provisions of the last foregoing section with respect to allotment he shall be liable to compensate the company and the allottee respectively for any loss, damages, or costs which the company or the allottee may have sustained or incurred thereby: Provided that proceedings to recover any such loss, damages, or costs shall not be commenced after the expiration of two years from the date of the allotment.

87.—(1.) A company shall not commence any business or exercise any borrowing powers unless —

(a) shares held subject to the payment of the whole amount thereof in cash have been allotted to an amount not less in the whole than the minimum subscription; and

- b) every director of the company has paid to the company on each of the shares taken or contracted to be taken by him, and for which he is liable to pay in cash, a proportion equal to the proportion payable on application and allotment on the shares offered for public subscription, or in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, on the shares payable in cash; and
- (c) there has been filed with the registrar of companies a statutory declaration by the secretary or one of the directors, in the prescribed form, that the aforesaid conditions have been complied with; and
- (d) in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, there has been filed with the registrar of companies a statement in lieu of prospectus.

(2.) The registrar of companies shall, on the filing of this statutory declaration, certify that the company is entitled to commence business, and that certificate shall be conclusive evidence that the company is so entitled:

Provided that in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares the registrar shall not give such a certificate unless a statement in lieu of prospectus has been filed with him.

Return as to allotments.

pp. 64, 610

88. (1.) Whenever a company limited by shares makes any allotment of its shares, the company shall within one month thereafter file with the registrar of companies—

(a) a return of the allotments, stating the number and nominal amount of the shares comprised in the allotment, the names, addresses, and descriptions of the allottees, and the amount (if any) paid or due and payable on each share; and

(b) in the case of shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, a contract in writing constituting the title of the allottee to the allotment together with any contract of sale, or for services or other consideration in respect of which that allotment was made, such contracts being duly stamped, and a return stating the number and nominal amount of shares so allotted, the extent to which they are to be treated as paid up, and the consideration for which they have been allotted.

(2.) Where such a contract as above mentioned is not reduced to writing, the company shall within one month after the allotment file with the registrar of companies the prescribed particulars of the contract stamped with the same stamp duty as would have been payable if the contract had been reduced to writing, and those particulars shall be deemed to be an instrument within the meaning of the Stamp Act, 1891, and the registrar may, as a condition of filing the particulars, require that the duty payable thereon be adjudicated under section twelve of that Act.

(3.) If default is made in complying with the requirements of this section, every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of the company, who is knowingly a party to the default, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds for every day during which the default continues:

Provided that, in case of default in filing with the registrar of companies within one month after the allotment any document required to be filed by this section, the company, or any person liable for the default, may apply to the Court for relief, and the Court, if satisfied that the omission to file the document was accidental or due to inadvertence or that it is just and equitable to grant relief, may make an order extending the time for the filing of the document for such period as the Court may think proper.

Commissions and Discounts.

89. — (1) It shall be lawful for a company to pay a commission to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares in the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any shares in the company, if the payment of the commission is authorized by the articles, and the commission paid or agreed to be paid does not exceed the amount or rate so authorized, and if the amount or rate per cent. of the commission paid or agreed to be paid is

(a) In the case of shares offered to the public for subscription, disclosed in the prospectus; or

(b) In the case of shares not offered to the public for subscription, disclosed in the statement in lieu of prospectus, or in a statement in the prescribed form signed in like manner as a statement in lieu of prospectus and filed with the registrar of companies, and, where a circular or notice, not being a prospectus, inviting subscription for the shares is issued, also disclosed in that circular or notice.

(2) Save as aforesaid, no company shall apply any of its shares or capital money either directly or indirectly in payment of any commission, discount, or allowance to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares of the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any shares in the company, whether the shares or money be so applied by being added to the purchase money of any property acquired by the company or to the contract price of any work to be executed for the company, or the money be paid out of the nominal purchase money or contract price, or otherwise.

(3) Nothing in this section shall affect the power of any company to pay such brokerage as it has heretofore been lawful for a company to pay, and a vendor to, promoter of, or other person who receives payment in money or shares from, a company shall have and shall be deemed always to have had power to apply any part of the money or shares so received in payment of any commission, the payment of which, if made directly by the company, would have been legal under this section.

90. Where a company has paid any sums by way of commission in respect of any shares or debentures, or allowed any sums by way of discount in respect of any debentures, the total amount so paid or allowed, or so much thereof as has not been written off, shall be stated in every balance sheet of the company until the whole amount thereof has been written off.

Payment of Interest out of Capital.

91. Where any shares of a company are issued for the purpose of raising money to defray the expenses of the construction of any works or buildings or the provision of any plant which cannot be made profitable for a lengthened period, the company may pay interest on so much of that share capital as is for the time being paid up for the period and subject to the conditions and restrictions in this section mentioned, and may charge the same to capital as part of the cost of construction of the work or building, or the provision of plant:

Provided that

- (1) No such payment shall be made unless the same is authorized by the articles or by special resolution;
- (2) No such payment, whether authorized by the articles or by special resolution, shall be made without the previous sanction of the Board of Trade;
- (3) Before sanctioning any such payment the Board of Trade may, at the expense of the company, appoint a person to inquire and report to them as to the circumstances of the case, and may, before making the appointment, require the company to give security for the payment of the costs of the inquiry;
- (4) The payment shall be made only for such period as may be determined by the Board of Trade, and such period shall in no case extend beyond the close of the half year next after the half year during which the works or buildings have been actually completed or the plant provided:

Registration of mortgages and charges in England and Ireland.
p. 616

93.—(1.) Every mortgage or charge created after the first day of July nineteen hundred and eight by a company registered in England or Ireland and being either—

- (a) a mortgage or charge for the purpose of securing any issue of debentures; or
- (b) a mortgage or charge on uncalled share capital of the company; or
- (c) a mortgage or charge created or evidenced by an instrument which, if executed by an individual, would require registration as a bill of sale; or
- (d) a mortgage or charge on any land, wherever situate, or any interest therein:

or

(e) a mortgage or charge on any book debts of the company; or

(f) a floating charge on the undertaking or property of the company, shall, so far as any security on the company's property or undertaking is thereby conferred, be void against the liquidator and any creditor of the company, unless the prescribed particulars of the mortgage or charge, together with the instrument (if any) by which the mortgage or charge is created or evidenced, are delivered to or received by the registrar of companies for registration in manner required by this Act within twenty-one days after the date of its creation, but without prejudice to any contract or obligation for repayment of the money thereby secured, and when a mortgage or charge becomes void under this section the money secured thereby shall immediately become payable:

Provided that

- (i) in the case of a mortgage or charge created out of the United Kingdom comprising solely property situate outside the United Kingdom, the delivery to and the receipt by the registrar of a copy of the instrument by which the mortgage or charge is created or evidenced, verified in the prescribed manner, shall have the same effect for the purposes of this section as the delivery and receipt of the instrument itself, and twenty-one days after the date on which the instrument or copy could, in due course of post, and if despatched with due diligence, have been received in the United Kingdom, shall be substituted for twenty-one days after the date of the creation of the mortgage or charge, as the time within which the particulars and instrument or copy are to be delivered to the registrar; and
- (ii) where the mortgage or charge is created in the United Kingdom but comprises property outside the United Kingdom, the instrument creating or purporting to create the mortgage or charge may be sent for registration notwithstanding that further proceedings may be necessary to make the mortgage or charge valid or effectual according to the law of the country in which the property is situate; and

(iii) where a negotiable instrument has been given to secure the payment of any book debts of a company, the deposit of the instrument for the purpose of securing an advance to the company shall not for the purposes of this section be treated as a mortgage or charge on those book debts; and

(iv) the holding of debentures entitling the holder to a charge on land shall not be deemed to be an interest in land.

(2.) The registrar shall keep, with respect to each company, a register in the prescribed form of all the mortgages and charges created by the company after the first day of July nineteen hundred and eight and requiring registration under this section, and shall, on payment of the prescribed fee, enter in the register, with respect to every such mortgage or charge, the date of creation, the amount secured by it, short particulars of the property mortgaged or charged, and the names of the mortgagees or persons entitled to the charge.

(3.) Where a series of debentures containing, or giving by reference to any other instrument, any charge to the benefit of which the debenture holders of that series are entitled pari passu is created by a company, it shall be sufficient if there are delivered to or received by the registrar within twenty-one days after the execution of the deed containing the charge or, if there is no such deed, after the execution of any debentures of the series, the following particulars:

- (a) the total amount secured by the whole series; and
- (b) the dates of the resolutions authorizing the issue of the series and the date of the covering deed, if any, by which the security is created or defined; and
- (c) a general description of the property charged; and
- (d) the names of the trustees, if any, for the debenture holders;

together with the deed containing the charge, or, if there is no such deed, one of the debentures of the series, and the registrar shall, on payment of the prescribed fee, enter those particulars in the register:

Provided that, where more than one issue is made of debentures in the series, there shall be sent to the registrar for entry in the register particulars of the date and amount of each issue, but an omission to do this shall not affect the validity of the debentures issued.

(4.) Where any commission, allowance, or discount has been paid or made either directly or indirectly by the company to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any debentures of the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any such debentures, the particulars required to be sent for registration under this section shall include particulars as to the amount or rate per cent. of the commission, discount, or allowance so paid or made, but an omission to do this shall not affect the validity of the debentures issued:

Provided that the deposit of any debentures as security for any debt of the company shall not for the purposes of this provision be treated as the issue of the debentures at a discount.

(5.) The registrar shall give a certificate under his hand of the registration of any mortgage or charge registered in pursuance of this section, stating the amount thereby secured, and the certificate shall be conclusive evidence that the requirements of this section as to registration have been complied with.

It shall be the duty of the company to send to the registrar for registration the particulars of every mortgage or charge created by the company and of the issues of debentures or series, requiring registration under this section, but registration of any such mortgage or charge may be effected on the application of any person interested therein.

(3.) Any payments made under this section shall be recouped as far as may be out of the assets of the company available for payment of general creditors.

(2.) If an appointment of auditors is not made at an annual general meeting, the Board of Trade may, on the application of any member of the company, appoint an auditor of the company for the current year, and fix the remuneration to be paid to him by the company for his services.

(3.) A director or officer of the company shall not be capable of being appointed auditor of the company.

(4.) A person, other than a retiring auditor, shall not be capable of being appointed auditor at an annual general meeting unless notice of an intention to nominate that person to the office of auditor has been given by a shareholder to the company not less than fourteen days before the annual general meeting, and the company shall send a copy of any such notice to the retiring auditor, and shall give notice thereof to the shareholders, either by advertisement or in any other mode allowed by the articles, not less than seven days before the annual general meeting.

Provided that if, after notice of the intention to nominate an auditor has been so given, an annual general meeting is called for a date fourteen days or less after the notice has been given, the notice, though not given within the time required by this provision, shall be deemed to have been properly given for the purposes thereof, and the notice to be sent or given by the company may, instead of being sent or given within the time required by this provision, be sent or given at the same time as the notice of the annual general meeting.

(5.) The first auditors of the company may be appointed by the directors before the statutory meeting, and if so appointed shall hold office until the first annual general meeting, unless previously removed by a resolution of the shareholders in general meeting, in which case the shareholders at that meeting may appoint auditors.

(6.) The directors may fill any casual vacancy in the office of auditor, but while any such vacancy continues the surviving or continuing auditor or auditors, if any, may act.

(7.) The remuneration of the auditors of a company shall be fixed by the company in general meeting, except that the remuneration of any auditors appointed before the statutory meeting, or to fill any casual vacancy, may be fixed by the directors.

Every auditor of a company shall have a right of access at all times to the books and accounts and vouchers of the company, and shall be entitled to require from the directors and officers of the company such information and explanation as may be necessary for the performance of the duties of the auditors.

(2.) The auditors shall make a report to the shareholders on the accounts examined by them, and on every balance sheet laid before the company in general meeting during their tenure of office, and the report shall state—

a) whether or not they have obtained all the information and explanations they have required; and

b) whether, in their opinion, the balance sheet referred to in the report is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the company's affairs according to the best of their information and the explanations given to them, and as shown by the books of the company.

(3.) The balance sheet shall be signed on behalf of the board by two of the directors of the company or, if there is only one director, by that director, and the auditors' report shall be attached to the balance sheet, or there shall be inserted at the foot of the balance sheet a reference to the report, and the report shall be read before the company in general meeting, and shall be open to inspection by any shareholder.

Any shareholder shall be entitled to be furnished with a copy of the balance sheet and auditors' report at a charge not exceeding sixpence for every hundred words.

(4.) If any copy of a balance sheet which has not been signed as required by this section is issued, circulated, or published, or if any copy of a balance sheet is issued, circulated, or published without either having a copy of the auditors' report attached thereto or containing such reference to that report as is required by this section, the company, and every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default, shall on conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds.

(5.) In the case of a banking company registered after the fifteenth day of August eighteen hundred and twenty-nine—

(a) if the company has branch banks beyond the limits of Europe, it shall be

- sufficient if the auditor is allowed access to such copies of and extracts from the books and accounts of any such branch as have been transmitted to the head office of the company in the United Kingdom; and
- (b) the balance sheet must be signed by the secretary or manager (if any), and where there are more than three directors of the company by at least three of those directors, and where there are not more than three directors by all the directors.

114.—(1.) Holders of preference shares and debentures of a company shall have the same right to receive and inspect the balance sheets of the company and the reports of the auditors and other reports as is possessed by the holders of ordinary shares in the company.

(2.) The Board of Trade may alter any of the tables and forms in the First Schedule to this Act, so that it does not increase the amount of fees payable to the registrar in the said schedule mentioned, and may alter or add to the forms in the said Third Schedule.

(3.) Any such table or form, when altered, shall be published in the London Gazette, and thenceforth shall have the same force as if it were included in one of the Schedules to this Act, but no alteration made by the Board of Trade in Table A in the said First Schedule shall affect any company registered before the alteration, or repeal, as respects that company, any portion of that Table.

p. 1492

120.—(1.) Where a compromise or arrangement is proposed between a company and its creditors or any class of them, or between the company and its members or any class of them, the Court may, on the application in a summary way of the company or of any creditor or member of the company or, in the case of a company being wound up, of the liquidator, order a meeting of the creditors or class of creditors, or of the members of the company or class of members, as the case may be, to be summoned in such manner as the Court directs.

(3.) In this section the expression "company" means any company liable to be wound up under this Act.

Meaning of "Private Company."

8. 1 of 1907
Meaning of "private company."
p. 910

121.—(1.) For the purposes of this Act the expression "private company" means a company which by its articles—

(a) restricts the right to transfer its shares; and

(b) limits the number of its members (exclusive of persons who are in the employment of the company) to fifty; and

(c) prohibits any invitation to the public to subscribe for any shares or debentures of the company.

(2.) A private company may, subject to anything contained in the memorandum or articles, by passing a special resolution and by filing with the registrar of companies such a statement in lieu of prospectus as the company, if a public company, would have had to file before allotting any of its shares or debentures, together with such a statutory declaration as the company, if a public company, would have had to file before commencing business, turn itself into a public company.

(3.) Where two or more persons hold one or more shares in a company jointly they shall, for the purposes of this section, be treated as a single member.

PART IV.

WINDING UP.

Preliminary.

Modes of
winding up

122.—(1.) The winding up of a company may be either—

(i) by the Court; or

(ii) voluntary; or

(iii) subject to the supervision of the Court.

(2.) The provisions of this Act with respect to winding up apply, unless the contrary appears, to the winding up of a company in any of these modes.

Contributories.

8. 38 of 1862.
Liability as contributories of present
members.

123.—(1.) In the event of a company being wound up, every present and past member shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be liable to contribute to the assets of the company to an amount sufficient for payment of its debts and liabilities and the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves, with the qualifications following (that is to say):—

(i) A past member shall not be liable to contribute if he has ceased to be a member for one year or upwards before the commencement of the winding up;

(ii) A past member shall not be liable to contribute in respect of any debt or liability of the company contracted after he ceased to be a member;

- (iii) A past member shall not be liable to contribute unless it appears to the Court that the existing members are unable to satisfy the contributions required to be made by them in pursuance of this Act :
- iv In the case of a company limited by shares no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount, if any, unpaid on the shares in respect of which he is liable as a present or past member :
- v In the case of a company limited by guarantee, no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount undertaken to be contributed by him to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up :
- vi Nothing in this Act shall invalidate any provision contained in any policy of insurance or other contract whereby the liability of individual members on the policy or contract is restricted, or whereby the funds of the company are alone made liable in respect of the policy or contract :
- (vii) A sum due to any member of a company, in his character of a member, by way of dividends, profits, or otherwise, shall not be deemed to be a debt of the company, payable to that member in a case of competition between himself and any other creditor not a member of the company, but any such sum may be taken into account for the purpose of the final adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves.
- (2.) In the winding-up of a limited company, any director or manager, whether past or present, whose liability is, in pursuance of this Act, unlimited, shall, in addition to his liability (if any) to contribute as an ordinary member, be liable to make a further contribution as if he were at the commencement of the winding-up a member of an unlimited company : Provided that —
- (i) A past director or manager shall not be liable to make such further contribution if he has ceased to hold office for a year or upwards before the commencement of the winding-up :
- (ii) A past director or manager shall not be liable to make such further contribution in respect of any debt or liability of the company contracted after he ceased to hold office :
- (iii) Subject to the articles of the company, a director or manager shall not be liable to make such further contribution unless the Court deems it necessary to require that contribution in order to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding-up.
- (3.) In the winding-up of a company limited by guarantee which has a share capital, every member of the company shall be liable, in addition to the amount undertaken to be contributed by him to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up, to contribute to the extent of any sums unpaid on any shares held by him.

124. The term "contributory" means every person liable to contribute to the assets of a company in the event of its being wound up, and, in all proceedings for determining and in all proceedings prior to the final determination of the persons who are to be deemed contributories, includes any person alleged to be a contributory.

125. The liability of a contributory shall create a debt (in England and Ireland of the nature of a specialty) accruing due from him at the time when his liability commenced, but payable at the times when calls are made for enforcing the liability.

126.—(1.) If a contributory dies either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories, his personal representatives and his heirs and devisees, shall be liable in a due course of administration to contribute to the assets of the company in discharge of his liability and shall be contributories accordingly.

(2.) Where the personal representatives are placed on the list of contributories, the heirs or devisees need not be added, but, except in the case of heirs or devisees of any such real estate in England, they may be added as and when the Court thinks fit.

- (ii) if default is made in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting;
- (iii) if the company does not commence its business within a year from its incorporation, or suspends its business for a whole year;
- (iv) if the number of members is reduced, in the case of a private company, below two, or, in the case of any other company, below seven;

S. 80 of 1862.

130. A company shall be deemed to be unable to pay its debts—

- (i) if a creditor, by assignment or otherwise, to whom the company is indebted in a sum exceeding fifty pounds then due, has served on the company, by leaving the same at its registered office, a demand under his hand requiring the company to pay the sum so due, and the company has for three weeks thereafter neglected to pay the sum, or to secure or compound for it to the reasonable satisfaction of the creditor; or Jurisdiction to wind up companies in England.

131.—(1.) The Courts having jurisdiction to wind up companies registered in England shall be the High Court, the Chancery Courts of the counties palatine of Lancaster and Durham, and the County Courts.

(2.) Where the amount of the share capital of a company paid up or credited as paid up exceeds ten thousand pounds, a petition to wind up the company shall be presented to the High Court, or, in the case of a company whose registered office is situate within the jurisdiction of either of the palatine courts aforesaid, either to the High Court or to the palatine court having jurisdiction.

(3.) Where the amount of the share capital of a company paid up or credited as paid up does not exceed ten thousand pounds, and the registered office of the company is situated within the jurisdiction of a County Court having jurisdiction under this Act, a petition to wind up the company shall be presented to that County Court.

(4.) Where a company is formed for working mines within the stannaries and is not shown to be actually working mines beyond the limits of the stannaries, or to be engaged in any other undertaking beyond those limits, or to have entered into a contract for such working or undertaking, a petition to wind up the company shall be presented to the Court exercising the stannaries jurisdiction whatever may be the amount of the capital of the company and wherever the registered office of the company is situate.

(5.) The Lord Chancellor may by order exclude a County Court from having jurisdiction under this Act, and for the purposes of that jurisdiction may attach its district, or any part thereof, to the High Court or any other County Court, and may revoke or vary any such order or any like order made under the Companies (Winding Up) Act, 1890.

In exercising his powers under this section the Lord Chancellor shall provide that a County Court shall not have jurisdiction under this Act unless it has for the time being jurisdiction in bankruptcy.

An order made under this provision shall not affect any jurisdiction or powers vested in any County Court under or by virtue of the Stannaries Jurisdiction (Abolition) Act, 1896.

(6.) Every Court in England having jurisdiction under this Act to wind up a company shall for the purposes of that jurisdiction have all the powers of the High Court, and every prescribed officer of the Court shall perform any duties which an officer of the High Court may discharge by order of the judge thereof or otherwise in relation to the winding up of a company.

(7.) Nothing in this section shall invalidate a proceeding by reason of its being taken in a wrong Court.

(8.) For the purposes of this section the expression "registered office" means the place which has longest been the registered office of the company during the six months immediately preceding the presentation of the petition for winding up.

132. Subject to general rules and to orders of transfer made under the authority of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1873, and the Acts amending it, the jurisdiction to wind up companies of the High Court in England under this Act shall, as the Lord Chancellor may from time to time by general order direct, be exercised, either generally or in specified classes of cases, either by such judge or judges of the Chancery Division of the High Court as the Lord Chancellor may assign to exercise that jurisdiction, or by the judge who, for the time being, exercises the bankruptcy jurisdiction of the High Court.

133.—(1.) The winding up of a company by the Court in England or any proceedings in the winding up may at any time and at any stage, and either with or without application from any of the parties thereto, be transferred from one Court to another Court, or may be retained in the Court in which the proceedings were commenced, although it may not be the Court in which they ought to have been commenced.

(2.) The powers of transfer given by the foregoing provisions of this section may, subject to and in accordance with general rules, be exercised by the Lord Chancellor or by any judge of the High Court having jurisdiction under this Act, or, as regards any case within the jurisdiction of any other Court, by the judge of that Court.

(3.) If any question arises in any winding up proceeding in a County Court which all the parties to the proceeding, or which one of them and the judge of the Court, desire to have determined in the first instance in the High Court, the judge shall state the facts in the form of a special case for the opinion of the High Court, and thereupon the special case and the proceedings, or such of them as may be required, shall be transmitted to the High Court for the purposes of the determination.

134. The Court having jurisdiction to wind up companies registered in Ireland shall be the High Court:

Provided that where the High Court in Ireland makes an order for winding up a company it may, if it thinks fit, direct that all subsequent proceedings in the winding up be had in the Court of bankruptcy having jurisdiction in the place in which the registered office of the company is situate; and thereupon those proceedings shall be taken in that Court of bankruptcy accordingly, and that Court shall, for the purposes of the winding up, have all the powers of the High Court in Ireland.

135. The Court having jurisdiction to wind up companies registered in Scotland shall be the Court of Session in other division thereof, or, in the event of a remit to a permanent Lord Ordinary, that Lord Ordinary during session, and in time of vacation the Lord Ordinary on the bills.

as to applica-

winding up.

136. Where the Court in Scotland makes a winding-up order, it may, if it thinks fit, at any time direct all subsequent proceedings in the winding up to be taken before one of the permanent Lords Ordinary, and remit the winding up to him accordingly, and thereupon that Lord Ordinary shall, for the purposes of the winding up, have all the powers and jurisdiction of the Court:

Provided that the Lord Ordinary may report to the division of the Court any matter which may arise in the course of the winding up.

137.—(1.) An application to the Court for the winding up of a company shall be by petition, presented subject to the provisions of this section either by the company, or by any creditor or creditors (including any contingent or prospective creditor or creditors), contributory or contributories, or by all or any of those parties, together or separately: Provided that

(a) A contributory shall not be entitled to present a petition for winding up a company unless—

(i) either the number of members is reduced, in the case of a private company, below two, or, in the case of any other company, below seven; or

(ii) the shares in respect of which he is a contributory, or some of them either were originally allotted to him or have been held by him, and registered in his name, for at least six months during the eighteen months before the commencement of the winding up, or have devolved on him through the death of a former holder; and

(b) A petition for winding up a company on the ground of default in filing the statutory report, or in holding the statutory meeting, shall not be presented by any person except a shareholder, nor before the expiration of fourteen days after the last day on which the meeting ought to have been held; and

(c) The Court shall not give a hearing to a petition for winding up a company by a contingent or prospective creditor until such security for costs has been given as the Court thinks reasonable, and until a prima facie case for winding up has been established to the satisfaction of the Court.

(2.) Where a company is being wound up voluntarily or subject to supervision in England, a petition may be presented by the official receiver attached to the Court, as well as by any other person authorized in that behalf under the other provisions of this section, but the Court shall not make a winding-up order on the petition unless it is satisfied that the voluntary winding up or winding up subject to supervision cannot be continued with due regard to the interests of the creditors or contributories.

(3.) Where under the provisions of this Part of this Act any person as being the husband of a female contributory is himself a contributory, and a share has during the whole or any part of the six months been held by or registered in the name of the wife, or by or in the name of a trustee for the wife or for the husband, the share shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to have been held by and registered in the name of the husband.

138. An order for winding up a company shall operate in favour of all the creditors and of all the contributories of the company as if made on the joint petition of a creditor and of a contributory.

139. A winding up of a company by the Court shall be deemed to commence at the time of the presentation of the petition for the winding up.

140. At any time after the presentation of a petition for winding up, and before a winding-up order has been made, the company, or any creditor or contributory, may—

(a) where any action or proceeding against the company is pending in the High Court or Court of Appeal in England or Ireland, apply to the Court in which the action or proceeding is pending for a stay of proceedings therein; and

(b) where any other action or proceeding is pending against the company, apply to the Court having jurisdiction to wind up the company to restrain further proceedings in the action or proceeding;

and the Court to which application is so made may, as the case may be, stay or restrain the proceedings accordingly on such terms as it thinks fit.

141.—(1.) On hearing the petition, the Court may dismiss it with or without costs, or adjourn the hearing conditionally or unconditionally, or make any interim order, or any other order that it deems just, but the Court shall not refuse to make a winding-up order on the ground only that the assets of the company have been mortgaged to an amount equal to or in excess of those assets, or that the company has no assets.

(2.) Where the petition is presented on the ground of default in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting, the Court may order the costs to be paid by any persons who, in the opinion of the Court, are responsible for the default.

142. When a winding-up order has been made, no action or proceeding shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company except by leave of the Court, and subject to such terms as the Court may impose.

143. On the making of a winding-up order, a copy of the order must forthwith be forwarded by the company to the registrar of companies, who shall make a minute thereof in his books relating to the company.

144. The Court may at any time after an order for winding up, on the application of any creditor or contributory, and on proof to the satisfaction of the Court that all proceedings in relation to the winding-up ought to be stayed, make an order staying the proceedings, either altogether or for a limited time, on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks fit.

145. The Court may, as to all matters relating to a winding-up, have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories as proved to it by any sufficient evidence.

Official Receiver.

146.—(1.) For the purposes of this Act so far as it relates to the winding up of companies by the Court in England, the term "official receiver" shall mean the official receiver, if any, attached to the Court for bankruptcy purposes, or, if there is more than one such official receiver, then such one of them as the Board of Trade may appoint, or, if there is no such official receiver, then an officer appointed for the purpose by the Board of Trade.

(2.) Any such officer shall for the purpose of his duties under this Act be styled the official receiver.

147.—(1.) Where the Court in England has made a winding-up order, there shall be made out and submitted to the official receiver a statement as to the affairs of the company in the prescribed form, verified by affidavit, and showing the particulars of its assets, debts, and liabilities, the names, residences, and occupations of its creditors, the securities held by them respectively, the dates when the securities were respectively given, and such further or other information as may be prescribed or as the official receiver may require.

(2.) The statement shall be submitted and verified by one or more of the persons who are at the time of the winding-up order the directors and by the person who is at that time the secretary or other chief officer of the company, or by such of the persons being or having been directors or officers of the company, or having taken part in the formation of the company at any time within one year before the winding-up order, as the official receiver, subject to the direction of the Court, may require to submit and verify the same.

(3.) The statement shall be submitted within fourteen days from the date of the order, or within such extended time as the official receiver or the Court may for special reasons appoint.

(4.) Any person making or concurring in making the statement and affidavit required by this section shall be allowed, and shall be paid by the official receiver, out of the assets of the company, such costs and expenses incurred in and about the preparation and making of the statement and affidavit as the official receiver may consider reasonable, subject to an appeal to the Court.

(5.) If any person, without reasonable excuse, makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pounds for every day during which the default continues.

(6.) Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor or contributory of the company shall be entitled by himself or by his agent at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee, to inspect the statement submitted in pursuance of this section, and to a copy thereof or extract therefrom. But any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor or contributory shall be guilty of a contempt of Court and shall be punishable accordingly on the application of the liquidator or of the official receiver.

- (a) as to the amount of capital issued, subscribed, and paid up, and the estimated amount of assets and liabilities; and Liquidators.

S. 92 of 1862.
Appointment, remuneration, and title of liquidators.

149.—(1.) For the purpose of conducting the proceedings in winding up a company and performing such duties in reference thereto as the Court may impose, the Court may appoint a liquidator or liquidators.

(2.) The Court may make such an appointment provisionally at any time after the presentation of a petition and before (where the proceedings are in England) the making of an order for winding up, or (where the proceedings are in Scotland or Ireland) the first appointment of liquidators.

(3.) Where the proceedings are in England—

(a) If a provisional liquidator is appointed before the making of a winding-up order, the official receiver or any other fit person may be appointed:

(b) On a winding-up order being made the official receiver shall by virtue of his office become the provisional liquidator and shall continue to act as such until he or another person becomes liquidator and is capable of acting as such:

(c) When a person other than the official receiver is appointed liquidator he shall not be capable of acting as liquidator until he has notified his appointment to the registrar of companies and given security in the prescribed manner to the satisfaction of the Board of Trade.

(4.) If more than one liquidator is appointed by the Court, the Court shall declare whether any act by this Act required or authorized to be done by the liquidator is to be done by all or any one or more of the persons appointed.

(5.) In a winding-up in Scotland or Ireland the Court may determine whether any and what security is to be given by a liquidator on his appointment.

(6.) A liquidator appointed by the Court may resign or, on cause shown, be removed by the Court.

(7.) A vacancy in the office of a liquidator appointed by the Court shall be filled by the Court.

In a winding-up in England the official receiver shall by virtue of his office be the liquidator during the vacancy.

(8.) Where a person other than the official receiver is appointed liquidator, he shall receive such salary or remuneration by way of percentage or otherwise as the Court may direct; and, if more such persons than one are appointed liquidators, their remuneration shall be distributed among them in such proportions as the Court directs.

(9.) A liquidator shall be described as follows (that is to say):—

(a) in a winding-up in England, where a person other than the official receiver is liquidator, by the style of the liquidator, and, where the official receiver is liquidator, by the style of the official receiver and liquidator, and

(b) in a winding-up in Scotland or Ireland, by the style of the official liquidator, of the particular company in respect of which he is appointed, and not by his individual name.

(10.) The acts of a liquidator shall be valid notwithstanding any defects that may afterwards be discovered in his appointment or qualification.

S. 92 of 1862.
Custody of company's property.

150.—(1.) In a winding-up by the Court the liquidator shall take into his custody, or under his control, all the property and things in action to which the company is or appears to be entitled.

(2.) In a winding-up by the Court in Scotland or Ireland, if and so long as there is no liquidator, all the property of the company shall be deemed to be in the custody of the Court.

151.—(1.) The liquidator in a winding-up by the Court shall have power, in the case of a winding-up in England with the sanction either of the Court or of the committee of inspection, and in the case of a winding-up in Scotland or Ireland with the sanction of the Court—

S. 95 of 1862
Powers of liquidator

- (a) to bring or defend any action or other legal proceeding in the name and on behalf of the company;
 - (b) to carry on the business of the company, so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding-up thereof;
 - (c) in the case of a winding-up in England, to employ a solicitor or other agent to take any proceedings or do any business which the liquidator is unable to take or do himself; but the sanction in this case must be obtained before the employment, except in cases of urgency, and in those cases it must be shown that no undue delay took place in obtaining the sanction;
 - (d) in the case of a winding-up in Scotland or Ireland, to appoint a solicitor or law agent to assist him in the performance of his duties.
- (2.) The liquidator in a winding-up by the Court shall have power, but (subject to the provisions of this section) in the case of a winding-up in Scotland or Ireland only with the sanction of the Court—

- (a) To sell the real and personal property, and things in action of the company by public auction or private contract, with power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or company, or to sell the same in parcels;
- (b) To do all acts and to execute, in the name and on behalf of the company, all deeds, receipts, and other documents, and for that purpose to use, when necessary, the company's seal;
- (c) To prove, rank, and claim in the bankruptcy, insolvency, or sequestration of any contributory, for any balance against his estate, and to receive dividends in the bankruptcy, insolvency, or sequestration in respect of that balance, as a separate debt due from the bankrupt or insolvent, and rateably with the other separate creditors;
- (d) To draw, accept, make, and indorse any bill of exchange or promissory note in the name and on behalf of the company, with the same effect with respect to the liability of the company as if the bill or note had been drawn, accepted, made, or indorsed by or on behalf of the company in the course of its business;
- (e) To raise on the security of the assets of the company any money requisite;
- (f) To take out in his official name, letters of administration to any deceased contributory, and to do in his official name any other act necessary for obtaining payment of any money due from a contributory or his estate which cannot be conveniently done in the name of the company; and in all such cases the money due shall, for the purpose of enabling the liquidator to take out the letters of administration or recover the money, be deemed to be due to the liquidator himself;
- (g) To do all such other things as may be necessary for winding up the affairs of the company and distributing its assets.

(3.) The exercise by the liquidator in a winding-up by the Court in England of the powers conferred by this section shall be subject to the control of the Court, and any creditor or contributory may apply to the Court with respect to any exercise or proposed exercise of any of those powers.

(4.) In the case of a winding-up in Scotland or Ireland the Court may provide by any order that the liquidator may exercise any of the above powers, except the power to appoint a solicitor or law agent, without the sanction or intervention of the Court.

(5.) Where a liquidator is provisionally appointed by the Court, the Court may limit and restrict his powers by the order appointing him.

(6.) In a winding-up by the Court in Scotland the liquidator shall, subject to rules made under this Act, have the same powers as a trustee on a bankrupt estate.

152.—(1.) When a winding-up order has been made by the Court in England, the official receiver shall summon separate meetings of the creditors and contributories of the company for the purpose of—

(b) determining whether or not an application is to be made to the Court for the appointment of a committee of inspection to act with the liquidator, and who are to be the members of the committee if appointed.

(2.) The Court may make any appointment and order required to give effect to any such determination, and, if there is a difference between the determinations of the meetings of the creditors and contributories in respect of any of the matters mentioned in the foregoing provisions of this section, the Court shall decide the difference and make such order thereon as the Court may think fit.

(3.) In case a liquidator is not appointed by the Court the official receiver shall be the liquidator of the company.

Liquidator to give information to official receiver.

153. Where in the winding-up of a company by the Court in England a person other than the official receiver is appointed liquidator he shall give the official receiver such information and such access to and facilities for inspecting the books and documents of the company, and generally such aid as may be requisite for enabling that officer to perform his duties under this Act.

S. 11 of 1890.
Payments of liquidator in English winding-up into bank.

154.—(1.) Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court in England shall, in such manner and at such times as the Board of Trade, with the concurrence of the Treasury, direct, pay the money received by him to the Companies Liquidation Account at the Bank of England, and the Board shall furnish him with a certificate of receipt of the money so paid:

Provided that, if the committee of inspection satisfy the Board of Trade that for the purpose of carrying on the business of the company or of obtaining advances, or for any other reason, it is for the advantage of the creditors or contributories that the liquidator should have an account with any other bank, the Board shall, on the application of the committee of inspection, authorize the liquidator to make his payments into and out of such other bank as the committee may select, and thereupon those payments shall be made in the prescribed manner.

(2.) If any such liquidator at any time retains for more than ten days a sum exceeding fifty pounds, or such other amount as the Board of Trade in any particular case authorize him to retain, then, unless he explains the retention to the satisfaction of the Board, he shall pay interest on the amount so retained in excess at the rate of twenty per cent. per annum, and shall be liable to disallowance of all or such part of his remuneration as the Board may think just, and to be removed from his office by the Board, and shall be liable to pay any expenses occasioned by reason of his default.

(3.) A liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court in England shall not pay any sums received by him as liquidator into his private banking account.

Audit of liquidator's accounts in English winding-up.

155.—(1.) Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court in England shall, at such times as may be prescribed but not less than twice in each year during his tenure of office, send to the Board of Trade, or as they direct, an account of his receipts and payments as liquidator.

(2.) The account shall be in a prescribed form, shall be made in duplicate, and shall be verified by a statutory declaration in the prescribed form.

(3.) The Board shall cause the account to be audited and for the purpose of the audit the liquidator shall furnish the Board with such vouchers and information as the Board may require, and the Board may at any time require the production of and inspect any books or accounts kept by the liquidator.

(4.) When the account has been audited, one copy thereof shall be filed and kept by the Board, and the other copy shall be filed with the Court, and each copy shall be open to the inspection of any creditor, or of any person interested.

(5.) The Board shall cause the account when audited or a summary thereof to be printed, and shall send a printed copy of the account or summary by post to every creditor and contributory.

Books to be kept by liquidator in English winding-up.

156. Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court in England shall keep, in manner prescribed, proper books in which he shall cause to be made entries or minutes of proceedings at meetings, and of such other matters as may be prescribed, and any creditor or contributory may, subject to the control of the Court, personally or by his agent inspect any such books.

S. 22 of 1890.
Release of liquidators in England.

157.—(1.) When the liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court in England has realised all the property of the company, or so much thereof as can, in his opinion, be realised without needlessly protracting the liquidation, and has distributed a final dividend, if any, to the creditors, and adjusted the rights of the contributories among themselves, and made a final return, if any, to the contributories, or has resigned, or has been removed from his office, the Board of Trade shall, on his application, cause a report on his accounts to be prepared, and, on his complying with all the requirements of the Board, shall take into consideration the report, and any objection which may be urged by any creditor, or contributory, or person interested against the release of the liquidator, and shall either grant or withhold the release accordingly, subject nevertheless to an appeal to the High Court.

(2.) Where the release of a liquidator is withheld the Court may, on the application of any creditor, or contributory, or person interested, make such order as it thinks just, charging the liquidator with the consequences of any act or default which he may have done or made contrary to his duty.

(3.) An order of the Board of Trade releasing the liquidator shall discharge him from all liability in respect of any act done or default made by him in the administration of the affairs of the company, or otherwise in relation to his conduct as liquidator, but any such order may be revoked on proof that it was obtained by fraud or by suppression or concealment of any material fact.

(4.) Where the liquidator has not previously resigned or been removed, his release shall operate as a removal of him from his office.

158.—(1.) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court in England shall, in the administration of the assets of the company and in the distribution thereof among its creditors, have regard to any directions that may be given by resolution of the creditors or contributories at any general meeting, or by the committee of inspection, and any directions given by the creditors or contributories at any general meeting shall in case of conflict be deemed to override any directions given by the committee of inspection.

(2.) The liquidator may summon general meetings of the creditors or contributories for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and it shall be his duty to summon meetings at such times as the creditors or contributories, by resolution, either at the meeting appointing the liquidator or otherwise, may direct, or whenever requested in writing to do so by one tenth in value of the creditors or contributories as the case may be.

(3.) The liquidator may apply to the Court in manner prescribed for directions in relation to any particular matter arising under the winding-up.

(4.) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the liquidator shall use his own discretion in the management of the estate and its distribution among the creditors.

(5.) If any person is aggrieved by any act or decision of the liquidator, that person may apply to the Court, and the Court may confirm, reverse, or modify the act or decision complained of, and make such order in the premises as it thinks just.

159.—(1.) The Board of Trade shall take cognizance of the conduct of liquidators of companies which are being wound up by the Court in England, and, if a liquidator does not faithfully perform his duties and duly observe all the requirements imposed on him by statute, rules, or otherwise with respect to the performance of his duties, or if any complaint is made to the Board by any creditor or contributory in regard thereto, the Board shall inquire into the matter, and take such action thereon as they may think expedient.

(2.) The Board may at any time require any liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court in England to answer any inquiry in relation to any winding-up in which he is engaged, and may, if the Board think fit, apply to the Court to examine him or any other person on oath concerning the winding-up.

(3.) The Board may also direct a local investigation to be made of the books and vouchers of the liquidator.

Committee of Inspection, Special Manager, Receiver.

160.—(1.) A committee of inspection appointed in pursuance of this Act shall consist of creditors and contributories of the company or persons holding general powers of attorney from creditors or contributories in such proportions as may be agreed on by the meetings of creditors and contributories, or as, in case of difference, may be determined by the Court.

(2.) The committee shall meet at such times as they from time to time appoint, and, failing such appointment, at least once a month; and the liquidator or any member of the committee may also call a meeting of the committee as and when he thinks necessary.

(4.) Any member of the committee may resign by notice in writing signed by him and delivered to the liquidator.

(5.) If a member of the committee becomes bankrupt, or compounds or arranges with his creditors, or is absent from five consecutive meetings of the committee without the leave of those members who together with himself represent the creditors or contributories, as the case may be, his office shall thereupon become vacant.

(6.) Any member of the committee may be removed by an ordinary resolution at a meeting of creditors (if he represents creditors), or of contributories (if he represents contributories) of which seven days' notice has been given, stating the object of the meeting.

(7.) On a vacancy occurring in the committee the liquidator shall forthwith summon a meeting of creditors or of contributories, as the case may require, to fill the vacancy, and the meeting may, by resolution, re-appoint the same or appoint another creditor or contributory to fill the vacancy.

(8.) The continuing members of the committee, if not less than two, may act notwithstanding any vacancy in the committee.

(9.) If there is no committee of inspection, any act or thing or any direction or permission by this Act authorized or required to be done or given by the committee may be done or given by the Board of Trade on the application of the liquidator.

163.—(1.) As soon as may be after making a winding-up order, the Court shall settle a list of contributories, with power to rectify the register of members in all cases where rectification is required in pursuance of this Act, and shall cause the assets of the company to be collected, and applied in discharge of its liabilities.

Power to re-
of property.

164. The Court may, at any time after making a winding-up order, require any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories, and any trustee, receiver, banker, agent, or officer of the company to pay, deliver, convey, surrender, or transfer forthwith, or within such time as the Court directs, to the liquidator any money, property, or books and papers in his hands to which the company is primâ facie entitled.

S. 101 of 1862.

Power to order payment of debts by contributory.

165.—(1.) The Court may, at any time after making a winding-up order, make an order on any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories to pay, in manner directed by the order, any money due from him or from the estate of the person whom he represents to the company, exclusive of any money payable by him or the estate by virtue of any call in pursuance of this Act.

(2.) The Court in making such an order may, in the case of an unlimited company, allow to the contributory by way of set-off any money due to him or to the estate which he represents from the company on any independent dealing or contract with the company, but not any money due to him as a member of the company in respect of any dividend or profit; and may, in the case of a limited company, make to any director or manager whose liability is unlimited or to his estate the like allowance.

(3.) But in the case of any company, whether limited or unlimited, when all the creditors are paid in full, any money due on any account whatever to a contributory from the company may be allowed to him by way of set-off against any subsequent call.

166.—(1.) The Court may, at any time after making a winding-up order, and either before or after it has ascertained the sufficiency of the assets of the company, make calls on and order payment thereof by all or any of the contributories for the time being settled on the list of the contributories to the extent of their liability, for payment of any money which the Court considers necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of winding up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves.

(2.) In making a call the Court may take into consideration the probability that some of the contributories may partly or wholly fail to pay the call.

167.—(1.) The Court may order any contributory, purchaser or other person from whom money is due to the company to pay the same into the Bank of England or any branch thereof to the account of the liquidator instead of to the liquidator, and any such order may be enforced in the same manner as if it had directed payment to the liquidator.

(2.) All monies so paid or delivered into the Bank of England or any branch thereof in pursuance of a winding-up by the Court shall be subject in all respects to the order of the Court.

168.—(1.) An order made by the Court on a contributory shall (subject to any right of appeal) be conclusive evidence that the money, if any, thereby appearing to be due or ordered to be paid is due.

(2.) All other pertinent matters stated in the order shall be taken to be truly stated as against all persons, and in all proceedings, except proceedings against the real estate of a deceased contributory, in which case the order shall be only prima facie evidence for the purpose of charging his real estate, unless his heirs or devisees were on the list of contributories at the time of the order being made.

169.—The Court may fix a time or times within which creditors are to prove their debts or claims, or to be excluded from the benefit of any distribution made before those debts are proved.

170. The Court shall adjust the rights of the contributories among themselves, and distribute any surplus among the persons entitled thereto.

171. The Court may, in the event of the assets being insufficient to satisfy the liabilities, make an order as to the payment out of the assets of the costs, charges, and expenses incurred in the winding-up in such order of priority as the Court thinks just.

172.—(1.) When the affairs of a company have been completely wound up, the Court shall make an order that the company be dissolved from the date of the order, and the company shall be dissolved accordingly.

(2.) The order shall be reported by the liquidator to the registrar of companies who shall make in his books a minute of the dissolution of the company.

(3.) If the liquidator makes default in complying with the requirements of this section he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds for every day during which he is in default.

173. General rules may be made for enabling or requiring all or any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed on the Court in England by this Act, in respect of the matters following, to be exercised or performed by the liquidator as an officer of the Court, and subject to the control of the Court; that is to say, the powers and duties of the Court in respect of—

- (a) holding and conducting meetings to ascertain the wishes of creditors and contributories;
- (b) settling lists of contributories and rectifying the register of members where required, and collecting and applying the assets;

S. 8 of 1890.
Power in England to order public examination of promoters, directors, &c.

175.—(1.) When an order has been made in England for winding up a company by the Court, and the official receiver has made a further report under this Act stating that in his opinion a fraud has been committed by any person in the promotion or formation of the company, or by any director or other officer of the company in relation to the company since its formation, the Court may, after consideration of the report, direct that any person who has taken any part in the promotion or formation of the company, or has been a director, or officer of the company, shall attend before the Court on a day appointed by the Court for that purpose, and be publicly examined as to the promotion or formation or the conduct of the business of the company, or as to his conduct and dealings as director or officer thereof.

(2.) The official receiver shall take part in the examination, and for that purpose may, if specially authorized by the Board of Trade in that behalf, employ a solicitor with or without counsel.

(3.) The liquidator, where the official receiver is not the liquidator, and any creditor or contributory, may also take part in the examination either personally or by solicitor or counsel.

(4.) The Court may put such questions to the person examined as the Court thinks fit.

(5.) The person examined shall be examined on oath, and shall answer all such questions as the Court may put or allow to be put to him.

(6.) A person ordered to be examined under this section shall at his own cost, before his examination, be furnished with a copy of the official receiver's report, and may at his own cost employ a solicitor with or without counsel, who shall be at liberty to put to him such questions as the Court may deem just for the purpose of enabling him to explain or qualify any answers given by him: Provided that if he is, in the opinion of the Court, exculpated from any charges made or suggested against him, the Court may allow him such costs as in its discretion it may think fit.

(7.) Notes of the examination shall be taken down in writing, and shall be read over to or by, and signed by, the person examined, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him, and shall be open to the inspection of any creditor or contributory at all reasonable times.

(8.) The Court may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the examination from time to time.

(9.) An examination under this section may, if the Court so directs, and subject to general rules, be held before any judge of County Courts, or before any officer of the Supreme Court, being an official referee, master, or registrar in bankruptcy, or before any district registrar of the High Court named for the purpose by the Lord Chancellor, or, in the case of companies being wound up by a palatine court, before a registrar of that Court, and the powers of the Court under this section as to the conduct of the examination, but not as to costs, may be exercised by the person before whom the examination is held.

176. The Court, at any time either before or after making a winding-up order, on proof of probable cause for believing that a contributory is about to quit the United Kingdom, or otherwise to abscond, or to remove or conceal any of his property for the purpose of evading payment of calls, or of avoiding examination respecting the affairs of the company, may cause the contributory to be arrested, and his books and papers and moveable personal property to be seized, and him and them to be safely kept until such time as the Court may order. S. 118 of 1862. Power to arrest absconding contributory.

177. Any powers by this Act conferred on the Court shall be in addition to and not in restriction of any existing powers of instituting proceedings against any contributory or debtor of the company, or the estate of any contributory or debtor, for the recovery of any call or other sums. S. 119 of 1862. Powers of Court cumulative.

Enforcement of and Appeal from Orders.

178.—(1.) Orders made by the High Court in England or Ireland under this Act may be enforced in the same manner as orders made in any action pending therein. S. 120 of 1862. Power to enforce orders.

(2.) For the purposes of this Part of this Act the Court exercising the stannaries jurisdiction shall, in addition to its ordinary powers, have the same power of enforcing any orders made by it as the High Court in England has in relation to matters within its jurisdiction; and, for the last-mentioned purposes, the jurisdiction of the judge of the Court exercising the stannaries jurisdiction shall be deemed to be co-extensive in local limits with the jurisdiction of the High Court in England.

179. Where an order, interlocutor, or decree has been made in Scotland for winding-up a company by the Court, it shall be competent to the Court, on production by the liquidators of a list certified by them of the names of the contributories liable in payment of any calls, and of the amount due by each contributory, and of the date when the same became due, to pronounce forthwith a decree against those contributories for payment of the sums so certified to be due, with interest from the said date till payment, at the rate of five per cent. per annum in the same way and to the same effect as if they had severally consented to registration for execution, on a charge of six days, of a legal obligation to pay those calls and interest; and the decree may be extracted immediately, and no suspensio thereof shall be competent, except on caution or consignation, unless with special leave of the Court. S. 121 of 1862. Order for calls on contributories in Scotland.

180.—(1.) Any order made by the Court in England for or in the course of winding-up a company shall be enforced in Scotland and Ireland in the Courts that would respectively have jurisdiction in respect of that company if registered in Scotland or Ireland, and in the same manner in all respects as if the order had been made by those Courts. S. 122 of 1862. Enforcement of orders throughout United Kingdom.

(2.) In like manner orders, interlocutors, and decrees made by the Court in Scotland for or in the course of winding-up a company shall be enforced in England and Ireland, and orders made by the Court in Ireland for or in the course of winding-up a company shall be enforced in England and Scotland, by the Courts which would respectively have jurisdiction in respect of that company if registered in that part of the United Kingdom where the order is required to be enforced, and in the same manner in all respects as if the order had been made by those Courts.

(3.) Where any order, interlocutor, or decree made by one Court is required to be enforced by another Court, an office copy of the order, interlocutor, or decree shall be produced to the proper officer of the Court required to enforce the same, and the production of an office copy shall be sufficient evidence of the order, interlocutor, or decree, and thereupon the last-mentioned Court shall take the requisite steps in the matter for enforcing the order, interlocutor, or decree, in the same manner as if it had been made by that Court.

181.—(1.) Subject to rules of Court, an appeal from any order or decision made or given in the winding-up of a company by the Court under this Act shall lie in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as an appeal from any order or decision of the Court in cases within its ordinary jurisdiction. S. 124 of 1862. Appeals from order.

(2.) Provided, in regard to orders or judgments pronounced in Scotland by the Lord Ordinary on the Bills in vacation, that—

- (i) No order or judgment under the provisions of this Act specified in the First Part of the Fourth Schedule to this Act shall be subject to review, reduction, suspension, or stay of execution; and
- (ii) Every other order or judgment (except as hereinafter mentioned) shall be subject to review only by reclaiming note, in common form, presented within fourteen days from the date of the order or judgment:

Provided that orders or judgments under the provisions of this Act specified in the Second Part of the Fourth Schedule to this Act shall, from the dates of those orders or judgments, and notwithstanding any reclaiming note against them, be carried out and receive effect until the reclaiming note is dismissed by the Court.

(3.) Provided also, in regard to orders or judgments pronounced in Scotland by a permanent Lord Ordinary to whom a winding-up has been remitted, that any such order or judgment shall be subject to review only by reclaiming note in common form, presented within fourteen days from the date of the order or judgment, but, should a reclaiming note not be presented and moved during session, the provisions of this section in regard to orders or judgments pronounced by the Lord Ordinary on the Bills in vacation shall apply to the order or judgment.

(4.) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of this Act in reference to decrees in Scotland for payment of calls in the winding-up of companies, whether voluntarily or by or subject to the supervision of the Court.

Provided that the corporate state and corporate powers of the company shall, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in its articles, continue until it is dissolved.

185. When a company has resolved by special or extraordinary resolution to wind up voluntarily, it shall give notice of the resolution by advertisement in the Gazette.

186. The following consequences shall ensue on the voluntary winding-up of a company:—

- (vii) When several liquidators are appointed, every power hereby given may be exercised by such one or more of them as may be determined at the time of their appointment, or in default of such determination by any number not less than two :
- (viii) If from any cause whatever there is no liquidator acting, the Court may, on the application of a contributory, appoint a liquidator :
- (ix) The Court may, on cause shown, remove a liquidator, and appoint another liquidator.

S. 27 of 1907.
Rights of creditors in a voluntary winding-up

(2.) At the meeting to be held in pursuance of the foregoing provisions of this section the creditors shall determine whether an application shall be made to the Court for the appointment of any person as liquidator in the place of or jointly with the liquidator appointed by the company, or for the appointment of a committee of inspection, and, if the creditors so resolve, an application may be made accordingly to the Court at any time, not later than fourteen days after the date of the meeting, by any creditor appointed for the purpose at the meeting.

(3.) On any such application the Court may make an order either for the removal of the liquidator appointed by the company and for the appointment of some other person as liquidator or for the appointment of some other person to act as liquidator jointly with the liquidator appointed by the company, or for the appointment of a committee of inspection either together with or without any such appointment of a liquidator or such other order as, having regard to the interests of the creditors and contributories of the company, may seem just.

(4.) No appeal shall lie from any order of the Court upon an application under this section.

(5.) The Court shall make such order as to the costs of the application as it may think fit, and if it is of opinion that, having regard to the interests of the creditors in the liquidation, there were reasonable grounds for the application, may order the costs of the application to be paid out of the assets of the company, notwithstanding that the application is dismissed or otherwise disposed of adversely to the applicant.

189.—(1.) If a vacancy occurs by death, resignation, or otherwise in the office of liquidator appointed by the company in a voluntary winding up, the company in general meeting may, subject to any arrangement with its creditors, fill the vacancy. S. 140 of 1862.

(2.) Any creditor or contributory may, within three weeks from the completion of the arrangement, appeal to the Court against it, and the Court may thereupon, as it thinks just, amend, vary, or confirm the arrangement.

accept shares,

for sale of property of
company.

192.—(1.) Where a company is proposed to be, or is in course of being, wound up altogether voluntarily, and the whole or part of its business or property is proposed to be transferred or sold to another company (in this section called the transferee company), the liquidator of the first-mentioned company (in this section called the transferor company) may, with the sanction of a special resolution of that company, conferring either a general authority on the liquidator or an authority in respect of any particular arrangement, receive in compensation or part compensation for the transfer or sale, shares, policies, or other like interests in the transferee company, for distribution among the members of the transferor company, or may enter into any other arrangement whereby the members of the transferor company may, in lieu of receiving cash, shares, policies, or other like interests, or in addition thereto, participate in the profits of or receive any other benefit from the transferee company.

(2.) Any sale or arrangement in pursuance of this section shall be binding on the members of the transferor company.

(3.) If any member of the transferor company who did not vote in favour of the special resolution at either of the meetings held for passing and confirming the same expresses his dissent therefrom in writing addressed to the liquidator, and left at the registered office of the company within seven days after the confirmation of the resolution, he may require the liquidator either to abstain from carrying the resolution into effect, or to purchase his interest at a price to be determined by agreement or by arbitration in manner provided by this section.

(4.) If the liquidator elects to purchase the member's interest the purchase money must be paid before the company is dissolved, and be raised by the liquidator in such manner as may be determined by special resolution.

(5.) A special resolution shall not be invalid for the purposes of this section by reason that it is passed before or concurrently with a resolution for winding up the company, or for appointing liquidators; but, if an order is made within a year for winding up the company by or subject to the supervision of the Court, the special resolution shall not be valid unless sanctioned by the Court.

(6.) For the purposes of an arbitration under this section the provisions of the Companies Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, or, in the case of a winding-up in Scotland, the Companies Clauses Consolidation (Scotland) Act, 1845, with respect to the settlement of disputes by arbitration, shall be incorporated with this Act; and in the construction of those provisions this Act shall be deemed to be the special Act, and "the company" shall mean the transferor company, and any appointment by the said incorporated provisions directed to be made under the hand of the secretary, or any two of the directors, may be made under the hand of the liquidator, or, if there is more than one liquidator, then of any two or more of the liquidators.

S. 138 of 1862.
Power to apply to Court.

193.—(1.) Where a company is being wound up voluntarily the liquidator or any contributory or creditor may apply to the Court to determine any question arising in the winding-up, or to exercise, as respects the enforcing of calls, or any other matter, all or any of the powers which the Court might exercise if the company were being wound up by the Court.

(2.) The Court, if satisfied that the determination of the question or the required exercise of power will be just and beneficial, may accede wholly or partially to the application on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks fit, or may make such other order on the application as the Court thinks just.

S. 139 of 1862.
Power of liquidator to call general meeting.

194.—(1.) Where a company is being wound up voluntarily, the liquidator may summon general meetings of the company for the purpose of obtaining the sanction of the company by special or extraordinary resolution, or for any other purposes he may think fit.

(2.) In the event of the winding-up continuing for more than one year, the liquidator shall summon a general meeting of the company at the end of the first year from the commencement of the winding-up, and of each succeeding year, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, and shall lay before the meeting an account of his acts and dealings and of the conduct of the winding-up during the preceding year.

195.—(1.) In the case of every voluntary winding-up, as soon as the affairs of the company are fully wound up, the liquidator shall make up an account of the winding-up, showing how the winding-up has been conducted and the property of the company has been disposed of; and thereupon shall call a general meeting of the company for the purpose of laying before it the account, and giving any explanation thereof.

(2.) The meeting shall be called by advertisement in the Gazette, specifying the time, place, and object thereof, and published one month at least before the meeting.

(3.) Within one week after the meeting, the liquidator shall make a return to the registrar of companies of the holding of the meeting, and of its date, and in default of so doing shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds for every day during which the default continues.

(4.) The registrar, on receiving the return, shall forthwith register it, and on the expiration of three months from the registration of the return the company shall be deemed to be dissolved:

Provided that the Court may, on the application of the liquidator or of any other person who appears to the Court to be interested, make an order deferring the date at which the dissolution of the company is to take effect for such time as the Court thinks fit.

(5.) It shall be the duty of the person on whose application an order of the Court under this section is made, within seven days after the making of the order, to file with the registrar an office copy of the order, and if that person fails so to do, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds for every day during which the default continues.

196. All costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred in the voluntary winding-up of a company, including the remuneration of the liquidator, shall be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other claims.

197. The voluntary winding-up of a company shall not bar the right of any creditor or contributory to have it wound up by the Court, if the Court is of opinion, in the case of an application by a creditor, that the rights of the creditor or, in the case of an application by a contributory, that the rights of the contributories will be prejudiced by a voluntary winding-up.

198. Where a company is being wound up voluntarily, and an order is made for winding-up by the Court, the Court may, if it thinks fit, by the same or any subsequent order, provide for the adoption of all or any of the proceedings in the voluntary winding-up.

Winding Up subject to Supervision of Court.

199. When a company has by special or extraordinary resolution resolved to wind up voluntarily, the Court may make an order that the voluntary winding-up shall continue, but subject to such supervision of the Court, and with such liberty for creditors, contributories, or others to apply to the Court, and generally on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks just.

200. A petition for the continuance of a voluntary winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court shall, for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the Court over actions, be deemed to be a petition for winding-up by the Court.

201. The Court may, in deciding between a winding-up by the Court and a winding-up subject to supervision, in the appointment of liquidators, and in all other matters relating to the winding-up subject to supervision, have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories as proved to it by any sufficient evidence.

202.—(1.) Where an order is made for a winding-up subject to supervision, the Court may by the same or any subsequent order appoint any additional liquidator.

(2.) A liquidator appointed by the Court under this section shall have the same powers, be subject to the same obligations, and in all respects stand in the same position as if he had been appointed by the company.

(3.) The Court may remove any liquidator so appointed by the Court, or any liquidator continued under the supervision order, and fill any vacancy occasioned by the removal, or by death or resignation.

203.—(1.) Where an order is made for a winding-up subject to supervision, the liquidator may, subject to any restrictions imposed by the Court, exercise all his

In the case of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, every disposition of the property (including things in action) of the company, and every transfer of shares, or alteration in the status of its members, made after the commencement of the winding-up, shall, unless the Court otherwise orders, be void.

Debts of all descriptions to be proved.

206. In every winding-up (subject in the case of insolvent companies to the application in accordance with the provisions of this Act of the law of bankruptcy) all debts payable on a contingency, and all claims against the company, present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages, shall be admissible to proof against the company, a just estimate being made, so far as possible, of the value of such debts or claims as may be subject to any contingency or sound only in damages, or for some other reason do not bear a certain value.

Vict. c. 62.

Preferential payments.

209.—(1.) In a winding-up there shall be paid in priority to all other debts—

(a) All parochial or other local rates due from the company at the date hereinafter mentioned, and having become due and payable within twelve months next before that date, and all assessed taxes, land tax, property or income tax assessed on the company up to the fifth day of April next before that date, and not exceeding in the whole one year's assessment;

- (b) All wages or salary of any clerk or servant in respect of services rendered to the company during four months before the said date, not exceeding fifty pounds; and
- (c) All wages of any workman or labourer not exceeding twenty-five pounds, whether payable for time or for piece work, in respect of services rendered to the company during two months before the said date: Provided that where any labourer in husbandry has entered into a contract for the payment of a portion of his wages in a lump sum at the end of the year of hiring, he shall have priority in respect of the whole of such sum, or a part thereof, as the Court may decide to be due under the contract, proportionate to the time of service up to the said date; and
- (d) Unless the company is being wound up voluntarily merely for the purposes of reconstruction or of amalgamation with another company, all amounts (not exceeding in any individual case one hundred pounds) due in respect of compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, the liability whereof accrued before the said date, subject nevertheless to the provisions of section five of that Act.
- (2.) The foregoing debts shall—
- (a) Rank equally among themselves and be paid in full, unless the assets are insufficient to meet them, in which case they shall abate in equal proportions; and
- (b) In the case of a company registered in England or Ireland, so far as the assets of the company available for payment of general creditors are insufficient to meet them, have priority over the claims of holders of debentures under any floating charge created by the company, and be paid accordingly out of any property comprised in or subject to that charge.
- (3.) Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the costs and expenses of the winding-up, the foregoing debts shall be discharged forthwith so far as the assets are sufficient to meet them.
- (4.) In the event of a landlord or other person distraining or having distrained on any goods or effects of the company within three months next before the date of a winding-up order, the debts to which priority is given by this section shall be a first charge on the goods or effects so distrained on, or the proceeds of the sale thereof:
- Provided that in respect of any money paid under any such charge the landlord or other person shall have the same rights of priority as the person to whom the payment is made.
- (5.) The date hereinbefore in this section referred to is—
- (a) in the case of a company ordered to be wound up compulsorily which had not previously commenced to be wound up voluntarily, the date of the winding-up order; and
- (b) in any other case, the date of the commencement of the winding-up.

210.—(1.) Any conveyance, mortgage, delivery of goods, payment, execution, or other act relating to property which would, if made or done by or against an individual, be deemed in his bankruptcy a fraudulent preference, shall, if made or done by or against a company, be deemed, in the event of its being wound up, a fraudulent preference of its creditors, and be invalid accordingly.

(2.) For the purposes of this section the presentation of a petition for winding-up in the case of a winding-up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, and a resolution for winding-up in the case of a voluntary winding-up, shall be deemed to correspond with the act of bankruptcy in the case of an individual.

(3.) Any conveyance or assignment by a company of all its property to trustees for the benefit of all its creditors shall be void to all intents.

211. Where any company (being a company registered in England or Ireland) is being wound up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, any attachment, sequestration, distress, or execution put in force against the estate or effects of the company after the commencement of the winding-up shall be void to all intents.

212. Where a company is being wound up, a floating charge on the undertaking or property of the company created within three months of the commencement of the winding-up shall, unless it is proved that the company immediately after the creation of the charge was solvent, be invalid, except to the amount of any cash paid to the company at the time of or subsequently to the creation of, and in consideration for, the charge, together with interest on that amount at the rate of five per cent. per annum.

213. In the winding-up, by or subject to the supervision of the Court, of a company registered in Scotland, the following provisions shall have effect:—

- (1.) The winding-up shall, in the case of a winding-up by the Court as at its commencement, and in the case of a winding-up subject to supervision as at the date of the presentation of the petition on which the supervision order is pronounced, be equivalent to an arrestment in execution and decree of forthcoming, and to an executed or completed poinding; and no arrestment or poinding of the funds or effects of the company, executed on or after the sixtieth day prior to the commencement of the winding-up by the Court, or to the presentation of the petition on which a supervision order is made, as the case may be, shall be effectual; and those funds or effects, or the proceeds of those effects, if sold, shall be made forthcoming to the liquidator: Provided that any arrester or pointer before the date of the winding-up, or of the petition, as the case may be, who is thus deprived of the benefit of his diligence, shall have preference out of those funds or effects for the expense bond fide incurred by him in such diligence;
- (2.) The winding-up shall, as at the respective dates aforesaid, be equivalent to a decree of adjudication of the heritable estates of the company for payment of the whole debts of the company, principal and interest, accumulated at the said dates respectively, subject to such preferable heritable rights and securities as existed at the said dates and are valid and unchallengeable, and the right to poind the ground hereinafter provided;
- (3.) The provisions of sections one hundred and twelve to one hundred and seventeen, and of section one hundred and twenty, of the Bankruptcy (Scotland) Act, 1856, shall, so far as is consistent with this Act, apply to the realization of heritable estates affected by such heritable rights and securities as aforesaid; and for the purposes of this Act the words "sequestration" and "trustee" occurring in those sections shall mean respectively "winding up" and "liquidator"; and the expression "the Lord Ordinary or the Court" shall mean "the Court" as defined by this Act with respect to Scotland;
- (4.) No poinding of the ground which has not been carried into execution by sale of the effects sixty days before the respective dates aforesaid shall, except to the extent hereinafter provided, be available in any question with the liquidator: Provided that no creditor who holds a security over the heritable estate preferable to the right of the liquidator shall be prevented from executing a poinding of the ground after the respective dates aforesaid, but that poinding shall in competition with the liquidator be available only for the interest on the debt for the current half-yearly term, and for the arrears of interest for one year immediately before the commencement of that term.

214.—(1.) The liquidator may, with the sanction following (that is to say)—

- (a) in the case of a winding-up by the Court in England with the sanction either of the Court or of the committee of inspection;
 - (b) in the case of a winding-up by the Court in Scotland or Ireland, and in the case of any winding-up subject to supervision, with the sanction of the Court; and
 - (c) in the case of a voluntary winding-up, with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company,
- do the following things or any of them:—
- (i) Pay any classes of creditors in full;
 - (ii) Make any compromise or arrangement with creditors or persons claiming to be creditors, or having or alleging themselves to have any claim, present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages against the company, or whereby the company may be rendered liable;
 - (iii) Compromise all calls and liabilities to calls, debts, and liabilities capable of resulting in debts, and all claims, present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages, subsisting or supposed to subsist between the company and a contributory, or alleged contributory, or other debtor or person apprehending liability to the company, and all questions in any way relating to or affecting the assets or the winding-up of the company, on such terms as may be agreed, and take any security for the discharge of any such call, debt, liability or claim, and give a complete discharge in respect thereof.

2.) In the case of a winding-up by the Court in England the exercise by the liquidator of the powers of this section shall be subject to the control of the Court, and any creditor or contributory may apply to the Court with respect to any exercise or proposed exercise of any of those powers.

215.—(1.) Where in the course of winding up a company it appears that any person who has taken part in the formation or promotion of the company, or any past or present director, manager, or liquidator, or any officer of the company, has misapplied or retained or become liable or accountable for any money or property of the company, or been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company, the Court may, on the application of the official receiver, or of the liquidator, or of any creditor or contributory, examine into the conduct of the promoter, director, manager, liquidator, or officer, and compel him to repay or restore the money or property or any part thereof respectively with interest at such rate as the Court thinks just, or to contribute such sum to the assets of the company by way of compensation in respect of the misapplication, retainer, misfeasance, or breach of trust as the Court thinks just.

(2.) This section shall apply notwithstanding that the offence is one for which the offender may be criminally responsible.

3.) Where in the case of a winding-up in England an order for payment of money is made under this section, the order shall be deemed to be a final judgment within the meaning of paragraph (g) of sub-section (1) of section four of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883.

(4.) So much of this section as refers to promoters, and to property of a company other than money, shall not apply to a winding-up in Scotland or Ireland.

216. If any director, officer, or contributory of any company being wound up destroys, mutilates, alters, or falsifies any books, papers, or securities, or makes or is privy to the making of any false or fraudulent entry in any register, book of account, or document belonging to the company with intent to defraud or deceive any person, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and be liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour.

217.—(1.) If it appears to the Court in the course of a winding-up by or subject to the supervision of the Court that any past or present director, manager, officer, or member of the company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally responsible, the Court may on the application of any person interested in the winding-up, or of its own motion, direct the liquidator to prosecute for the offence, and may order the costs and expenses to be paid out of the assets of the company.

(2.) If it appears to the liquidator in the course of a voluntary winding-up that any past or present director, manager, officer, or member of the company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally responsible, the liquidator, with the previous sanction of the Court, may prosecute the offender, and all expenses properly incurred by him in the prosecution shall be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other liabilities.

218. If any person, on examination on oath authorized under this Act, or in any affidavit or deposition in or about the winding up of any company or otherwise in or about any matter arising under this Act, wilfully and corruptly gives false evidence, he shall be liable to the penalties for wilful perjury.

219.—(1.) Where by this Act the Court is authorized, in relation to winding-up, to have regard to the wishes of creditors or contributories, as proved to it by any sufficient evidence, the Court may, if it thinks fit, for the purpose of ascertaining those wishes, direct meetings of the creditors or contributories to be called, held, and conducted in such manner as the Court directs, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting and to report the result thereof to the Court.

(2.) In the case of creditors, regard shall be had to the value of each creditor's debt.

(3.) In the case of contributories, regard shall be had to the number of votes conferred on each contributory by the articles.

220. Where any company is being wound up, all books and papers of the company and of the liquidators shall, as between the contributories of the company, be prima facie evidence of the truth of all matters purporting to be therein recorded.

221. After an order for a winding-up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, the Court may make such order for inspection by creditors and contributories of the company of its books and papers as the Court thinks just, and any books in England.

224.—(1.) Where a company is being wound up in England, if the winding-up is not concluded within one year after its commencement, the liquidator shall, at such intervals as may be prescribed, until the winding-up is concluded, send to the registrar of companies a statement in the prescribed form and containing the prescribed particulars with respect to the proceedings in and position of the liquidation.

(2.) Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor or contributory of the company shall be entitled, by himself or by his agent, at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee, to inspect the statement, and to receive a copy thereof or extract therefrom; but any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor or contributory shall be guilty of a contempt of Court, and shall be punishable accordingly on the application of the liquidator or of the official receiver.

(3.) If a liquidator fails to comply with the requirements of this section he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds for each day during which the default continues.

(4.) If it appears from any such statement or otherwise that a liquidator has in his hands or under his control any money representing unclaimed or undistributed assets of the company which have remained unclaimed or undistributed for six months after the date of their receipt, the liquidator shall forthwith pay the same to the Companies Liquidation Account at the Bank of England, and shall be entitled to the prescribed certificate of receipt for the money so paid, and that certificate shall be an effectual discharge to him in respect thereof.

(5.) For the purpose of ascertaining and getting in any money payable into the Bank of England in pursuance of this section, the like powers may be exercised, and by the like authority, as are exercisable under section one hundred and sixty-two of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, for the purpose of ascertaining and getting in the sums, funds, and dividends referred to in that section.

(6.) Any person claiming to be entitled to any money paid into the Bank of England in pursuance of this section may apply to the Board of Trade for payment of the same, and the Board may, on a certificate by the liquidator that the person claiming is entitled, make an order for the payment to that person of the sum due.

(7.) Any person dissatisfied with the decision of the Board of Trade in respect of any claim made in pursuance of this section may appeal to the High Court.

Judicial notice of signature of officers.

225. In all proceedings under this Part of this Act, all Courts, judges, and persons judicially acting, and all officers, judicial or ministerial, of any Court, or employed in enforcing the process of any Court, shall take judicial notice of the signature of any officer of the High Court in England or Ireland, or of the Court of Session in Scotland, or of the registrar of the Court exercising the stamp duties jurisdiction, and also of the official seal or stamp of the several offices of the High Court in England or Ireland, Court of Session, or Court exercising the stamp duties jurisdiction, appended to or impressed on any document made, issued or signed under the provisions of this Part of this Act, or any official copy thereof.

226.—(1.) The judges of the County Courts in England who sit at places more than twenty miles from the General Post Office, and the judge exercising the bankruptcy jurisdiction of the High Court in Ireland and the assistant barristers and recorders in Ireland, and the sheriffs of counties in Scotland, shall be commissioners for the purpose of taking evidence under this Act, where a company is wound up in any part of the United Kingdom, and the Court may refer the whole or any part of the examination of any witnesses under this Act to any person hereby appointed commissioner, although he is out of the jurisdiction of the Court that made the winding-up order.

(2.) Every commissioner shall, in addition to any powers which he might lawfully exercise as a judge of a county court, judge of the High Court, assistant barrister or recorder, or sheriff, have in the matter so referred to him all the same powers of summoning and examining witnesses, of requiring the production or delivery of documents, of punishing defaults by witnesses, and of allowing costs and expenses to witnesses, as the Court which made the winding-up order.

(3.) The examination so taken shall be returned or reported to the Court which made the order in such manner as that Court directs.

227.—(1.) The Court may direct the examination in Scotland of any person for the time being in Scotland, whether a contributory of the company or not, in regard to the trade, dealings, affairs, or property of any company in course of being wound up, or of any person being a contributory of the company, so far as the company may be interested therein by reason of his being a contributory; and the order or commission to take the examination shall be directed to the sheriff of the county in which the person to be examined is residing or happens to be for the time; and the sheriff shall summon that person to appear before him at a time and place to be specified in the summons for examination on oath as a witness or as a haver, and to produce any books or papers called for which are in his possession or power.

(2.) The sheriff may take the examination either orally or on written interrogatories, and shall report the same in writing in the usual form to the Court; and shall transmit with the report the books and papers produced, if the originals thereof are required and specified by the order or commission, or otherwise copies thereof or extracts therefrom authenticated by the sheriff.

(3.) If any person so summoned fails to appear at the time and place specified, or refuses to be examined or to make the production required, the sheriff shall proceed against him as a witness or haver duly cited and failing to appear or refusing to give evidence or make production may be proceeded against by the law of Scotland.

(4.) The sheriff shall be entitled to such and the like fees, and the witness shall be entitled to such and the like allowances, as sheriffs when acting as commissioners under appointment from the Court of Session and as witnesses and havers are entitled to in the like cases according to the law and practice of Scotland.

(5.) If any objection is stated to the sheriff by the witness, either on the ground of his incompetency as a witness, or as to the production required, or on any other ground, the sheriff may, if he thinks fit, report the objection to the Court, and suspend the examination of the witness until it has been disposed of by the Court.

228.—(1.) Any affidavit required to be sworn under the provisions or for the purposes of this Part of this Act may be sworn in Great Britain or Ireland or elsewhere within the dominions of His Majesty, before any Court, judge, or person lawfully authorized to take and receive affidavits or before any of His Majesty's consuls or vice-consuls in any place outside His Majesty's dominions.

(2.) Provisions as to mine
club funds.

241.—(1.) On the winding-up of a company within the stannaries, contributions of the miners, artisans, or labourers for the purpose of a mine club, or accident, or sick, or benefit fund shall not be deemed to be, or be applied as, part of the assets of the company in liquidation of the debts of the company or otherwise, but shall be accounted for by the purser or any other person in possession of the fund to the liquidator, and shall be recoverable by him, and be applied in accordance with the rules of the club.

2. Where the company is being wound up voluntarily, the liquidator or any person claiming to be entitled to any such contributions or fund may apply to the Court for directions, or to determine any question arising in the matter in the same manner as if the company were being wound up by the Court.

Removal of Defunct Companies from Register.

242.—(1.) Where the registrar of companies has reasonable cause to believe that a company is not carrying on business or in operation, he shall send to the company by post a letter inquiring whether the company is carrying on business or in operation.

(2.) If the registrar does not within one month of sending the letter receive any answer thereto, he shall within fourteen days after the expiration of the month send to the company by post a registered letter referring to the first letter, and stating that no answer thereto has been received, and that if an answer is not received to the second letter within one month from the date thereof, a notice will be published in the Gazette with a view to striking the name of the company off the register.

(3.) If the registrar either receives an answer from the company to the effect that it is not carrying on business or in operation, or does not within one month after sending the second letter receive any answer, he may publish in the Gazette, and send to the company by post, a notice that at the expiration of three months from the date of that notice the name of the company mentioned therein will, unless cause is shown to the contrary, be struck off the register and the company will be dissolved.

(4.) If, in any case where a company is being wound up, the registrar has reasonable cause to believe either that no liquidator is acting, or that the affairs of the company are fully wound up, and the returns required to be made by the liquidator have not been made for a period of six consecutive months after notice by the registrar demanding the returns has been sent by post to the company, or to the liquidator at his last known place of business, the registrar may publish in the Gazette and send to the company a like notice as is provided in the last preceding sub-section.

(5.) At the expiration of the time mentioned in the notice the registrar may, unless cause to the contrary is previously shown by the company, strike its name off the register, and shall publish notice thereof in the Gazette, and on the publication in the Gazette of this notice the company shall be dissolved: Provided that the liability (if any) of every director, managing officer, and member of the company shall continue and may be enforced as if the company had not been dissolved.

(6.) If a company or any member or creditor thereof feels aggrieved by the company having been struck off the register, the Court on the application of the company or member or creditor may, if satisfied that the company was at the time of the striking off carrying on business or in operation, or otherwise that it is just that the company be restored to the register, order the name of the company to be restored to the register, and thereupon the company shall be deemed to have continued in existence as if its name had not been struck off; and the Court may by the order give such directions and make such provisions as seem just for placing the company and all other persons in the same position as nearly as may be as if the name of the company had not been struck off.

(7.) A letter or notice under this section may be addressed to the company at its registered office, or, if no office has been registered, to the care of some director or officer of the company, or, if there is no director or officer of the company whose name and address are known to the registrar of companies, may be sent to each of the persons who subscribed the memorandum, addressed to him at the address mentioned in the memorandum.

Short title.	295. This Act may be cited as the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

TABLE A.

REGULATIONS FOR MANAGEMENT OF A COMPANY LIMITED BY SHARES.

Preliminary.

1. In these regulations, unless the context otherwise requires, expressions defined in the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, or any statutory modification thereof in force at the date at which these regulations become binding on the company, shall have the meanings so defined; and words importing the singular shall include the plural, and vice versa, and words importing the masculine gender shall include females, and words importing persons shall include bodies corporate.

Business.

2. The directors shall have regard to the restrictions on the commencement of business imposed by section eighty-seven of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, if, and so far as, those restrictions are binding upon the company.

Shares.

3. Subject to the provisions, if any, in that behalf of the memorandum of association of the company, and without prejudice to any special rights previously conferred on the holders of existing shares in the company, any share in the company may be issued with such preferred, deferred, or other special rights, or such restrictions, whether in regard to dividend, voting, return of share capital, or otherwise, as the company may from time to time by special resolution determine.

4. If at any time the share capital is divided into different classes of shares, the rights attached to any class (unless otherwise provided by the terms of issue of the shares of that class) may be varied with the consent in writing of the holders of three-fourths of the issued shares of that class, or with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution passed at a separate general meeting of the holders of the shares of the class. To every such separate general meeting the provisions of these regulations relating to general meetings shall mutatis mutandis apply, but so that the necessary quorum shall be two persons at least holding or representing by proxy one-third of the issued shares of the class.

5. No share shall be offered to the public for subscription except upon the terms that the amount payable on application shall be at least five per cent. of the nominal amount of the share; and the directors shall, as regards any allotment of shares, duly comply with such of the provisions of sections eighty-five and eighty-eight of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, as may be applicable thereto.

6. Every person whose name is entered as a member in the register of members shall, without payment, be entitled to a certificate under the common seal of the company specifying the share or shares held by him and the amount paid up thereon, provided that in respect of a share or shares held jointly by several persons the company shall not be bound to issue more than one certificate, and delivery of a certificate for a share to one of several joint holders shall be sufficient delivery to all.

See sections
10, 11, 67, 263, 285, and
p. 789

7. If a share certificate is defaced, lost, or destroyed, it may be renewed on payment of such fee, if any, not exceeding one shilling, and on such terms, if any, as to evidence and indemnity as the directors think fit.

8. No part of the funds of the company shall be employed in the purchase of, or in loans upon the security of, the company's shares.

Lien.

9. The company shall have a lien on every share not being a fully-paid share for all moneys (whether presently payable or not) called or payable at a fixed time in respect of that share, and the company shall also have a lien on all shares (other than fully-paid shares) standing registered in the name of a single person, for all moneys presently payable by him or his estate to the company; but the directors may at any time declare any share to be wholly or in part exempt from the provisions of this clause. The company's lien, if any, on a share shall extend to all dividends payable thereon.

10. The company may sell, in such manner as the directors think fit, any shares on which the company has a lien, but no sale shall be made unless some sum in respect of which the lien exists, is presently payable, nor until the expiration of fourteen days after a notice in writing, stating and demanding payment of such part of the amount in respect of which the lien exists as is presently payable, has been given to the registered holder for the time being of the share, or the person entitled by reason of his death or bankruptcy to the share.

11. The proceeds of the sale shall be applied in payment of such part of the amount in respect of which the lien exists as is presently payable, and the residue shall (subject to a like lien for sums not presently payable as existed upon the shares) prior to the sale, be paid to the person entitled to the shares at the date of the sale. The purchaser shall be registered as the holder of the shares, and he shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase money, nor shall his title to the shares be affected by any irregularity or invalidity in the proceedings in reference to the sale.

Calls on Shares.

12. The directors may from time to time make calls upon the members in respect of any moneys unpaid on their shares, provided that no call shall exceed one-fourth of the nominal amount of the share, or be payable at less than one month from the last call; and each member shall (subject to receiving at least fourteen days' notice specifying the time or times of payment) pay to the company at the time or times so specified the amount called on his shares.

13. The joint holders of a share shall be jointly and severally liable to pay all calls in respect thereof.

14. If a sum called in respect of a share is not paid before or on the day appointed for payment thereof, the person from whom the sum is due shall pay interest upon the sum at the rate of five pounds per cent. per annum from the day appointed for the payment thereof to the time of the actual payment, but the directors shall be at liberty to waive payment of that interest wholly or in part.

15. The provisions of these regulations as to payment of interest shall apply in the case of nonpayment of any sum which, by the terms of issue of a share, becomes payable at a fixed time, whether on account of the amount of the share, or by way of premium, as if the sum had become payable by virtue of a call duly made and notified.

16. The directors may make arrangements on the issue of shares for a difference between the holders in the amount of calls to be paid and in the times of payment.

17. The directors may, if they think fit, receive from any member willing to advance the same all or any part of the moneys uncalled and unpaid upon any shares held by him; and upon all or any of the moneys so advanced may (until the same would, but for such advance, become presently payable) pay interest at such rate (not exceeding, without the sanction of the company in general meeting, six per cent.) as may be agreed upon between the member paying the sum in advance and the directors.

Transfer and Transmission of Shares.

18. The instrument of transfer of any share in the company shall be executed both by the transferor and transferee, and the transferor shall be deemed to remain a holder of the share until the name of the transferee is entered in the register of members in respect thereof.

19. Shares in the company shall be transferred in the following form, or in any usual or common form which the directors shall approve:

I, A. B., of _____, in consideration of the sum of £ _____ paid to me by C. D. of _____ hereinafter called "the said transferee" do hereby transfer to the said transferee the share [or shares] numbered _____ in the undertaking called the _____ Company Limited, to hold unto the said transferee, his executors, administrators, and assigns, subject to the several conditions on which I held the same at the time of the execution hereof; and I, the said transferee, do hereby agree to take the said share [or shares] subject to the conditions aforesaid. As witness our hands, the _____ day of _____ Witness to the signatures of, &c.

20. The directors may decline to register any transfer of shares, not being fully-paid shares, to a person of whom they do not approve, and may also decline to register any transfer of shares on which the company has a lien. The directors may also suspend the registration of transfers during the fourteen days immediately preceding the ordinary general meeting in each year. The directors may decline to recognize any instrument of transfer unless a a fee not exceeding two shillings and sixpence is paid to the company in respect thereof, and b the instrument of transfer is accompanied by the certificate of the shares to which it relates, and such other evidence as the directors may reasonably require to show the right of the transferor to make the transfer.

21. The executors or administrators of a deceased sole holder of a share shall be the only persons recognized by the company as having any title to his share. In the case of a share registered in the names of two or more holders, the survivors or survivor, or the executors or administrators of the deceased survivor, shall be the only persons recognized by the company as having any title to the share.

22. Any person becoming entitled to a share in consequence of the death or bankruptcy of a member shall, upon such evidence being produced as may from time to time be required by the directors, have the right, either to be registered as a member in respect of the share, or, instead of being registered himself, to make such transfer of the share as the deceased or bankrupt person could have made; but the directors shall, in either case, have the same right to decline or suspend registration as they would have had in the case of a transfer of the share by the deceased or bankrupt person before the death or bankruptcy.

23. A person becoming entitled to a share by reason of the death or bankruptcy of the holder shall be entitled to the same dividends and other advantages to which he would be entitled if he were the registered holder of the share, except that he shall not, before being registered as a member in respect of the share, be entitled in respect of it to exercise any right conferred by membership in relation to meetings of the company.

Forfeiture of Shares.

24. If a member fails to pay any call or instalment of a call on the day appointed for payment thereof, the directors may, at any time thereafter during such time as any part of such call or instalment remains unpaid, serve a notice on him requiring payment of so much of the call or instalment as is unpaid, together with any interest which may have accrued.

25. The notice shall name a further day (not earlier than the expiration of fourteen days from the date of the notice) on or before which the payment required by the notice is to be made, and shall state that in the event of non-payment at or before the time appointed the shares in respect of which the call was made will be liable to be forfeited.

If the requirements of any such notice as aforesaid are not complied with, then in respect of which the notice has been given may at any time thereafter, if the payment required by the notice has been made, be forfeited by a resolution of the directors to that effect.

27. A forfeited share may be sold or otherwise disposed of on such terms and in such manner as the directors think fit, and at any time before a sale or disposition the forfeiture may be cancelled on such terms as the directors think fit.

28. A person whose shares have been forfeited shall cease to be a member in respect of the forfeited shares, but shall, notwithstanding, remain liable to pay to the company all moneys which, at the date of forfeiture, were presently payable by him to the company in respect of the shares, but his liability shall cease if and when the company receive payment in full of the nominal amount of the shares.

29. A statutory declaration in writing, that the declarant is a director of the company, and that a share in the company has been duly forfeited on a date stated in the declaration, shall be conclusive evidence of the facts therein stated as against all persons claiming to be entitled to the share, and that declaration, and the receipt of the company for the consideration, if any, given for the share on the sale or disposition thereof shall constitute a good title to the share, and the person to whom the share is sold or disposed of shall be registered as the holder of the share and shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase money, if any, nor shall his title to the share be affected by any irregularity or invalidity in the proceedings in reference to the forfeiture, sale or disposal of the share.

30. The provisions of these regulations as to forfeiture shall apply in the case of non-payment of any sum which, by the terms of issue of a share, becomes payable at a fixed time, whether on account of the amount of the share, or by way of premium, as if the same had been payable by virtue of a call duly made and notified.

Conversion of Shares into Stock.

31. The directors may, with the sanction of the company previously given in general meeting, convert any paid-up shares into stock, and may with the like sanction reconvert any stock into paid-up shares of any denomination.

32. The holders of stock may transfer the same, or any part thereof, in the same manner, and subject to the same regulations, as, and subject to which, the shares from which the stock arose might previously to conversion have been transferred, or as near thereto as circumstances admit: but the directors may from time to time fix the minimum amount of stock transferable, and restrict or forbid the transfer of fractions of that minimum, but the minimum shall not exceed the nominal amount of the shares from which the stock arose.

33. The holders of stock shall, according to the amount of the stock held by them, have the same rights, privileges, and advantages as regards dividends, voting at meetings of the company, and other matters as if they held the shares from which the stock arose, but no such privilege or advantage except participation in the dividends and profits of the company shall be conferred by any such aliquot part of stock as would not, if existing in shares, have conferred that privilege or advantage.

34. Such of the regulations of the company (other than those relating to share warrants) as are applicable to paid-up shares shall apply to stock, and the words "share" and "shareholder" therein shall include "stock" and "stock-holder."

Share Warrants.

35. The company may issue share warrants, and accordingly the directors may in their discretion, with respect to any share which is fully paid up, on application in writing signed by the person registered as holder of the share, and authenticated by such evidence, if any, as the directors may from time to time require as to the identity of the person signing the request, and on receiving the certificate, if any, of the share, and the amount of the stamp duty on the warrant and such fee as the directors may from time to time require, issue under the company's seal a warrant, duly stamped, stating that the bearer of the warrant is entitled to the shares therein specified, and may provide by coupons, or otherwise for the payment of dividends, or other moneys, on the shares included in the warrant.

36. A share warrant shall entitle the bearer to the shares included in it, and the shares shall be transferred by the delivery of the share warrant, and the provisions of the regulations of the company with respect to transfer and transmission of shares shall not apply thereto.

37. The bearer of a share warrant shall, on surrender of the warrant to the company for cancellation, and on payment of such sum as the directors may from time to time prescribe, be entitled to have his name entered as a member in the register of members in respect of the shares included in the warrant.

38. The bearer of a share warrant may at any time deposit the warrant at the office of the company, and so long as the warrant remains so deposited the depositor shall have the same right of signing a requisition for calling a meeting of the company, and of attending and voting and exercising the other privileges of a member at any meeting held after the expiration of two clear days from the time of deposit, as if his name were inserted in the register of members as the holder of the shares included in the deposited warrant. Not more than one person shall be recognized as depositor of the share warrant. The company shall, on two days' written notice, return the deposited share warrant to the depositor.

39. Subject as herein otherwise expressly provided, no person shall, as bearer of a share warrant, sign a requisition for calling a meeting of the company, or attend, or vote, or exercise any other privilege of a member at a meeting of the company, or be entitled to receive any notices from the company; but the bearer of a share warrant shall be entitled in all other respects to the same privileges and advantages as if he were named in the register of members as the holder of the shares included in the warrant, and he shall be a member of the company.

40. The directors may from time to time make rules as to the terms on which, if they shall think fit, a new share warrant or coupon may be issued by way of renewal in case of detachment, loss, or destruction.

Alteration of Capital.

41. The directors may, with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company, increase the share capital by such sum, to be divided into shares of such amount, as the resolution shall prescribe.

42. Subject to any direction to the contrary that may be given by the resolution sanctioning the increase of share capital, all new shares shall, before issue, be offered to such persons as at the date of the offer are entitled to receive notices from the company of general meetings in proportion, as nearly as the circumstances admit, to the amount of the existing shares to which they are entitled. The offer shall be made by notice specifying the number of shares offered, and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted, will be deemed to be declined, and, after the expiration of that time, or on the receipt of an intimation from the person to whom the offer is made that he declines to accept the shares offered, the directors may dispose of the same in such manner as they think most beneficial to the company. The directors may likewise so dispose of any new shares which (by reason of the ratio which the new shares bear to shares held by persons entitled to an offer of new shares) cannot, in the opinion of the directors, be conveniently offered under this article.

43. The new shares shall be subject to the same provisions with reference to the payment of calls, lien, transfer, transmission, forfeiture, and otherwise as the shares in the original share capital.

44. The company may, by special resolution—

- a) Consolidate and divide its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares;
- b) By subdivision of its existing shares, or any of them, divide the whole, or any part, of its share capital into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by the memorandum of association, subject, nevertheless, to the provisions of paragraph (d), of sub-section (1) of section forty-one of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908;
- c) Cancel any shares which, at the date of the passing of the resolution, have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person;
- d) Reduce its share capital in any manner and with, and subject to, any incident authorized, and consent required, by law.

General Meetings.

45. The statutory general meeting of the company shall be held within the period required by section sixty-five of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

46. A general meeting shall be held once in every year at such time (not being more than fifteen months after the holding of the last preceding general meeting) and place as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, or, in default, at such time in the month following that in which the anniversary of the company's incorporation occurs, and at such place, as the directors shall appoint. In default of a general meeting being so held, a general meeting shall be held in the month next following, and may be convened by any two members in the same manner as nearly as possible as that in which meetings are to be convened by the directors.

47. The above-mentioned general meetings shall be called ordinary meetings; all other general meetings shall be called extraordinary.

48. The directors may, whenever they think fit, convene an extraordinary general meeting, and extraordinary general meetings shall also be convened on such requisition, or, in default, may be convened by such requisitionists, as provided by section sixty-six of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908. If at any time there are not within the United Kingdom sufficient directors capable of acting to form a quorum, any director or any two members of the company may convene an extraordinary general meeting in the same manner as nearly as possible as that in which meetings may be convened by the directors.

Proceedings at General Meeting.

49. Seven days' notice at the least (exclusive of the day on which the notice is served or deemed to be served, but inclusive of the day for which notice is given, specifying the place, the day, and the hour of meeting and, in case of special business, the general nature of that business shall be given in manner hereinafter mentioned, or in such other manner, if any, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, to such persons as are, under the regulations of the company, entitled to receive such notices from the company; but the non-receipt of the notice by any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any general meeting.

50. All business shall be deemed special that is transacted at an extraordinary meeting, and all that is transacted at an ordinary meeting, with the exception of sanctioning a dividend, the consideration of the accounts, balance sheets, and the ordinary report of the directors and auditors, the election of directors and other officers in the place of those retiring by rotation, and the fixing of the remuneration of the auditors.

51. No business shall be transacted at any general meeting unless a quorum of members is present at the time when the meeting proceeds to business; save as herein otherwise provided, three members personally present shall be a quorum.

52. If within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum is not present, the meeting, if convened upon the requisition of members, shall be dissolved; in any other case it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week, at the same time and place, and, if at the adjourned meeting a quorum is not present within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting the members present shall be a quorum.

53. The chairman, if any, of the board of directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the company.

54. If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present within fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding the meeting or is unwilling to act as chairman, the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman.

55. The chairman may, with the consent of any meeting at which a quorum is present (and shall if so directed by the meeting), adjourn the meeting from time to time and from place to place, but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place. When a meeting is adjourned for ten days or more, notice of the adjourned meeting shall be given as in the case of an original meeting. Save as aforesaid it shall not be necessary to give any notice of an adjournment or of the business to be transacted at an adjourned meeting.

56. At any general meeting a resolution put to the vote of the meeting shall be decided on a show of hands, unless a poll is demanded before or on the declaration of the result of the show of hands demanded by at least three members, and, unless a poll is so demanded, a declaration by the chairman that a resolution has, on a show of hands, been carried, or carried unanimously, or by a particular majority, or lost, and an entry to that effect in the book of the proceedings of the company, shall be conclusive evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of, or against, that resolution.

57. If a poll is duly demanded it shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs, and the result of the poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the meeting at which the poll was demanded.

58. In the case of an equality of votes, whether on a show of hands or on a poll, the chairman of the meeting at which the show of hands takes place or at which the poll is demanded, shall be entitled to a second or casting vote.

59. A poll demanded on the election of a chairman, or on a question of adjournment, shall be taken forthwith. A poll demanded on any other question shall be taken at such time as the chairman of the meeting directs.

Votes of Members.

60. On a show of hands every member present in person shall have one vote. On a poll every member shall have one vote for each share of which he is the holder.

61. In the case of joint holders the vote of the senior who tenders a vote, whether in person or by proxy, shall be accepted to the exclusion of the votes of the other joint holders; and for this purpose seniority shall be determined by the order in which the names stand in the register of members.

62. A member of unsound mind, or in respect of whom an order has been made by any Court having jurisdiction in lunacy, may vote, whether on a show of hands or on a poll, by his committee, curator bonis, or other person in the nature of a committee or curator bonis appointed by that Court, and any such committee, curator bonis, or other person may, on a poll, vote by proxy.

63. No member shall be entitled to vote at any general meeting unless all calls or other sums presently payable by him in respect of shares in the company have been paid.

64. On a poll votes may be given either personally or by proxy.

65. The instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing under the hand of the appointor or of his attorney duly authorized in writing, or, if the appointor is a corporation, either under the common seal, or under the hand of an officer or attorney so authorized. No person shall act as a proxy unless either he is entitled on his own behalf to be present and vote at the meeting at which he acts as proxy, or he has been appointed to act at that meeting as proxy for a corporation.

66. The instrument appointing a proxy and the power of attorney or other authority, if any, under which it is signed or a notarially certified copy of that power or authority shall be deposited at the registered office of the company not less than forty-eight hours before the time for holding the meeting at which the person named in the instrument proposes to vote, and in default the instrument of proxy shall not be treated as valid.

67. An instrument appointing a proxy may be in the following form, or in any other form which the directors shall approve:—

“ — Company, Limited.

“ I, —, of —, in the county of —, being a member of the — Company, Limited, hereby appoint —, of —, as my proxy, to vote for me and on my behalf at the [ordinary or extraordinary, as the case may be] general meeting of the company to be held on the — day of —, and at any adjournment thereof.

“ Signed this — day of —.”

Directors.

68. The number of the directors and the names of the first directors shall be determined in writing by a majority of the subscribers of the memorandum of association.

69. The remuneration of the directors shall from time to time be determined by the company in general meeting.

70. The qualification of a director shall be the holding of at least one share in the company, and it shall be his duty to comply with the provisions of section seventy-three of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

Powers and Duties of Directors.

71. The business of the company shall be managed by the directors, who may pay all expenses incurred in getting up and registering the company, and may exercise all such powers of the company as are not, by the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, reserved to the company in general meeting.

tion) Act, 1908, or any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force, or by these articles, required to be exercised by the company in general meeting, subject nevertheless to any regulation of these articles, to the provisions of the said Act, and to such regulations, being not inconsistent with the aforesaid regulations or provisions, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting; but no regulation made by the company in general meeting shall invalidate any prior act of the directors which would have been valid if that regulation had not been made.

72. The directors may from time to time appoint one or more of their body to the office of managing director or manager for such term, and at such remuneration (whether by way of salary, or commission, or participation in profits, or partly in one way and partly in another), as they may think fit, and a director so appointed shall not, while holding that office, be subject to retirement by rotation, or taken into account in determining the rotation of retirement of directors; but his appointment shall be subject to determination ipso facto if he ceases from any cause to be a director, or if the company in general meeting resolve that his tenure of the office of managing director or manager be determined.

73. The amount of the time being remaining undischarged of moneys borrowed or raised by the directors for the purposes of the company otherwise than by the issue of share capital) shall not at any time exceed the issued share capital of the company without the sanction of the company in general meeting.

74. The directors shall duly comply with the provisions of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, or any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force, and in particular with the provisions relating to the registration of the particulars of mortgages and charges affecting the property of the company, or created by it, and to keeping a register of the directors, and to sending to the registrar of companies an annual list of members, and a summary of particulars relating thereto, and notice of any consolidation or increase of share capital, or conversion of shares into stock, and copies of special resolutions, and a copy of the register of directors and notifications of any changes therein.

75. The directors shall cause minutes to be made in books provided for the purpose—

- (a) of all appointments of officers made by the directors;
 - (b) of the names of the directors present at each meeting of the directors and of any committee of the directors;
 - (c) of all resolutions and proceedings at all meetings of the company, and of the directors, and of committees of directors;
- and every director present at any meeting of directors or committee of directors shall sign his name in a book to be kept for that purpose.

The Seal.

76. The seal of the company shall not be affixed to any instrument except by the authority of a resolution of the board of directors, and in the presence of at least two directors and of the secretary or such other person as the directors may appoint for the purpose; and those two directors and secretary or other person as aforesaid shall sign every instrument to which the seal of the company is so affixed in their presence.

Disqualifications of Directors.

77. The office of director shall be vacated, if the director—

- (a) ceases to be a director by virtue of section seventy-three of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908; or
- (b) holds any other office of profit under the company except that of managing director or manager; or
- (c) becomes bankrupt; or
- (d) is found lunatic or becomes of unsound mind; or
- (e) is concerned or participates in the profits of any contract with the company;

Provided, however, that no director shall vacate his office by reason of his being a member of any company which has entered into contracts with or done any work for the company of which he is director; but a director shall not vote in respect of any such contract or work, and if he does so vote his vote shall not be counted.

Rotation of Directors.

78. At the first ordinary meeting of the company the whole of the directors shall retire from office, and at the ordinary meeting in every subsequent year one-third of the directors for the time being, or, if their number is not three or a multiple of three, then the number nearest to one-third, shall retire from office.

79. The directors to retire in every year shall be those who have been longest in office since their last election, but as between persons who became directors on the same day those to retire shall (unless they otherwise agree among themselves) be determined by lot.

80. A retiring director shall be eligible for re-election.

81. The company at the general meeting at which a director retires in manner aforesaid may fill up the vacated office by electing a person thereto.

82. If at any meeting at which an election of directors ought to take place the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the meeting shall stand adjourned till the same day in the next week at the same time and place, and, if at the adjourned meeting the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the vacating directors, or such of them as have not had their places filled up, shall be deemed to have been re-elected at the adjourned meeting.

83. The company may from time to time in general meeting increase or reduce the number of directors, and may also determine in what rotation the increased or reduced number is to go out of office.

84. Any casual vacancy occurring in the board of directors may be filled up by the directors, but the person so chosen shall be subject to retirement at the same time as if he had become a director on the day on which the director in whose place he is appointed was last elected a director.

85. The directors shall have power at any time, and from time to time, to appoint a person as an additional director who shall retire from office at the next following ordinary general meeting, but shall be eligible for election by the company at that meeting as an additional director.

86. The company may by extraordinary resolution remove any director before the expiration of his period of office, and may by an ordinary resolution appoint another person in his stead; the person so appointed shall be subject to retirement at the same time as if he had become a director on the day on which the director in whose place he is appointed was last elected a director.

Proceedings of Directors.

87. The directors may meet together for the despatch of business, adjourn, and otherwise regulate their meetings, as they think fit. Questions arising at any meeting shall be decided by a majority of votes. In case of an equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote. A director may, and the secretary on the requisition of a director shall, at any time summon a meeting of the directors.

88. The quorum necessary for the transaction of the business of the directors may be fixed by the directors, and unless so fixed shall when the number of directors exceeds three be three.

89. The continuing directors may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body, but, if and so long as their number is reduced below the number fixed by or pursuant to the regulations of the company as the necessary quorum of directors, the continuing directors may act for the purpose of increasing the number of directors to that number, or of summoning a general meeting of the company, but for no other purpose.

90. The directors may elect a chairman of their meetings and determine the period for which he is to hold office; but, if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present within five minutes after the time appointed for holding the same, the directors present may choose one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

91. The directors may delegate any of their powers to committees consisting of such member or members of their body as they think fit; any committee so formed shall in the exercise of the powers so delegated conform to any regulations that may be imposed on them by the directors.

92. A committee may elect a chairman of their meetings, if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present within five minutes after the time appointed for holding the same, the members present may choose one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

93. A committee may meet and adjourn as they think proper. Questions arising at any meeting shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present, and in case of an equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

94. All acts done by any meeting of the directors or of a committee of directors, or by any person acting as a director, shall, notwithstanding that it be afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of any such directors or persons acting as aforesaid, or that they or any of them were disqualified, be as valid as if every such person had been duly appointed and was qualified to be a director.

Dividends and Reserve.

95. The company in general meeting may declare dividends, but no dividend shall exceed the amount recommended by the directors.

96. The directors may from time to time pay to the members such interim dividends as appear to the directors to be justified by the profits of the company.

97. No dividend shall be paid otherwise than out of profits.

98. Subject to the rights of persons, if any, entitled to shares with special rights as to dividends, all dividends shall be declared and paid according to the amounts paid on the shares, but if and so long as nothing is paid up on any of the shares in the company dividends may be declared and paid according to the amounts of the shares. No amount paid on a share in advance of calls shall, while carrying interest, be treated for the purposes of this article as paid on the share.

99. The directors may, before recommending any dividend, set aside out of the profits of the company such sums as they think proper as a reserve or reserves which shall, at the discretion of the directors, be applicable for meeting contingencies, or for equalizing dividends, or for any other purpose to which the profits of the company may be properly applied, and pending such application may, at the like discretion, either be employed in the business of the company or be invested in such investments (other than shares of the company) as the directors may from time to time think fit.

100. If several persons are registered as joint holders of any share any one of them may give effectual receipts for any dividend payable on the share.

101. Notice of any dividend that may have been declared shall be given in manner hereinafter mentioned to the persons entitled to share therein.

102. No dividend shall bear interest against the company.

104. The books of account shall be kept at the registered office of the company, or at such other place or places as the directors think fit, and shall always be open to the inspection of the directors.

105. The directors shall from time to time determine whether and to what extent and at what times and places and under what conditions or regulations the accounts and books of the company or any of them shall be open to the inspection of members not being directors, and no member (not being a director) shall have any right of inspecting any account or book or document of the company except as conferred by statute or authorized by the directors or by the company in general meeting.

106. Once at least in every year the directors shall lay before the company in general meeting a profit and loss account for the period since the preceding account or (in the case of the first account) since the incorporation of the company, made up to a date not more than six months before such meeting.

107. A balance-sheet shall be made out in every year and laid before the company in general meeting made up to a date not more than six months before such meeting. The balance-sheet shall be accompanied by a report of the directors as to the state of the company's affairs, and the amount which they recommend to be paid by way of dividend, and the amount, if any, which they propose to carry to a reserve fund.

108. A copy of the balance-sheet and report shall, seven days previously to the meeting, be sent to the persons entitled to receive notices of general meetings in the manner in which notices are to be given hereinafter.

Audit.

109. Auditors shall be appointed and their duties regulated in accordance with sections one hundred and twelve and one hundred and thirteen of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, or any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force.

Notices.

110. A notice may be given by the company to any member either personally or by sending it by post to him to his registered address, or (if he has no registered address in the United Kingdom) to the address, if any, within the United Kingdom supplied by him to the company for the giving of notices to him.

Where a notice is sent by post, service of the notice shall be deemed to be effected by properly addressing, prepaying, and posting a letter containing the notice, and unless the contrary is proved to have been effected at the time at which the letter would be delivered in the ordinary course of post.

111. If a member has no registered address in the United Kingdom and has not supplied to the company an address within the United Kingdom for the giving of notices to him, a notice addressed to him and advertised in a newspaper circulating in the neighbourhood of the registered office of the company, shall be deemed to be duly given to him on the day on which the advertisement appears.

112. A notice may be given by the company to the joint holders of a share by giving the notice to the joint holder named first in the register in respect of the share.

113. A notice may be given by the company to the persons entitled to a share in consequence of the death or bankruptcy of a member by sending it through the post in a prepaid letter addressed to them by name, or by the title of representatives of the deceased, or trustee of the bankrupt, or by any like description, at the address, if any, in the United Kingdom supplied for the purpose by the persons claiming to be so entitled, or (until such an address has been so supplied) by giving the notice in any manner in which the same might have been given if the death or bankruptcy had not occurred.

114. Notice of every general meeting shall be given in some manner hereinbefore authorized to (a) every member of the company (including bearers of share warrants) except those members who (having no registered address within the United Kingdom) have not supplied to the company an address within the United Kingdom for the giving of notices to them, and also to (b) every person entitled to a share in consequence of the death or bankruptcy of a member, who, but for his death or bankruptcy, would be entitled to receive notice of the meeting. 2. The directors hereinafter mentioned may, whenever the business of the association requires it, register an increase of members.

Definition of Members.

3. Every person shall be deemed to have agreed to become a member of the company who insures any ship or share in a ship in pursuance of the regulations hereinafter contained.

General Meetings.

4. The first general meeting shall be held at such time, not being less than one month nor more than three months after the incorporation of the company, and at such place, as the directors may determine.

5. A general meeting shall be held once in every year at such time (not being more than fifteen months after the holding of the last preceding general meeting) and place as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, or, in default, at such time in the month following that in which the anniversary of the company's incorporation occurs, and at such place, as the directors shall appoint. In default of a general meeting being so held, a general meeting shall be held in the month next following, and may be convened by any two members in the same manner as nearly as possible as that in which meetings are to be convened by the directors.

6. The above-mentioned general meetings shall be called ordinary meetings: all other general meetings shall be called extraordinary.

7. The directors may, whenever they think fit, and shall, on a requisition made in writing by any five or more members, convene an extraordinary general meeting.

8. Any requisition made by the members must state the object of the meeting proposed to be called, and must be signed by the requisitionists and deposited at the registered office of the company.

9. On receipt of the requisition the directors shall forthwith proceed to convene a general meeting: if they do not proceed to cause a meeting to be held within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition being so deposited, the requisitionists or any other five members, may themselves convene a meeting.

Proceedings at General Meetings.

Section 286. AN ACT TO REGULATE JOINT STOCK BANKS IN ENGLAND (7 & 8 VICT. c. 113), s. 47.

Existing companies to have the powers of suing and being sued.

Every company of more than six persons established on the sixth day of May one thousand eight hundred and forty-four, for the purpose of carrying on the trade or business of bankers within the distance of sixty-five miles from London, and not within the provisions of the Act passed in the session of the seventh and eighth years of Queen Victoria, chapter one hundred and thirteen, intituled "An Act to regulate Joint Stock Banks in England," shall have the same powers and privileges of suing and being sued in the name of any one of the public officers of such co-partnership as the nominal plaintiff, petitioner, or defendant on behalf of such co-partnership; and all judgments, decrees, and orders made and obtained in any such suit may be enforced in like manner as is provided with respect to such companies carrying on the said trade or business at any place in England exceeding the distance of sixty-five miles from London under the provisions of the Country Bankers Act, 1826, provided that such first-mentioned company shall make out and deliver from time to time to the Commissioners of Inland Revenue the several accounts or returns required by the last-mentioned Act, and all the provisions of the last-recited Act as to such accounts or returns shall be taken to apply to the accounts or returns so made out and delivered by such first-mentioned companies as if they had been originally included in the provisions of the last-recited Act.

THE JOINT STOCK BANKING COMPANIES ACT, 1857.

PART OF S. 12.

Notwithstanding anything contained in any Act, passed in the Session holden in the seventh and eighth years of Queen Victoria, chapter one hundred and thirteen, and intitled "An Act to regulate Joint Stock Banks in England," or in any other Act, it shall be lawful for any number of persons, not exceeding ten, to carry on in partnership the business of banking, in the same manner and upon the same conditions in all respects as any company of not more than six persons could before the passing of the Joint Stock Banking Companies Act, 1857, have carried on such business.

Power to form banking partnerships of ten persons.

NOTE ON CAPITAL DUTY.

By sect. 112 of the Stamp Act, 1891, a statement of the amount which is to form the nominal share capital of any company to be registered with limited liability shall be delivered to the registrar of joint stock companies in England, Scotland, or Ireland, and a statement of the amount of any increase of registered capital of any company now registered or to be registered with limited liability shall be delivered to the said registrar, and every such statement shall be charged with an ad valorem stamp duty of 2s. for every 100*l.*, and any fraction of 100*l.* over any multiple of 100*l.* of the amount of such capital or increase of capital as the case may be.

By the Finance Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 9), s. 7, 5*s.* is substituted for 2*s.* as the ad valorem stamp duty by sects. 112 and 113 of the Stamp Act, 1891.

Sect. 12 of the Finance Act, 1896 (59 & 60 Vict. c. 28), extends the provisions of sect. 113 of the Stamp Act, 1891, to certain other corporations and companies.

The Revenue Act, 1903 (3 Edw. 7. c. 46), s. 5, provides that the statement of the amount of any increase of registered capital of any company registered under the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1900, which is required by sect. 112 of the Stamp Act, 1891, to be delivered to the registrar of joint stock companies, shall be delivered, duly stamped with the duty charged thereon, within fourteen days after the passing of the resolution by which the registered capital is increased.

In Att.-Gen. v. Anglo-Argentine Tramways Co., Ltd., [1909, 1 K. B. 677, the company had passed a special resolution authorizing the directors to increase the capital by a sum not exceeding 5,000,000*l.* by the creation and issue from time to time of new ordinary shares of 5*l.* each, and it was held that the whole of such 5,000,000*l.* was chargeable with ad valorem duty as an increase of registered capital, though in fact the directors had, pursuant to the resolution, only created and issued capital to the amount of 2,000,000*l.* The grounds on which the learned judge (Channell, J.) arrived at this conclusion appear to be based on a complete misapprehension of the scheme of operation of the Companies Act, 1862, in regard to a company's capital. The learned judge appears to have thought that the capital of a company was not a mass of shares created and existing, but merely a figure denoting the maximum beyond which the company might not go. It is submitted that this is not the correct view, and that a company's capital is not increased until it is brought into actual existence, and that a mere authority to increase does not operate as an increase until that authority is exercised. See Campbell's Case, 9 Ch. 1.

THE ASSURANCE COMPANIES ACT, 1909.

9 EDW. 7, c. 49.

An Act to consolidate and amend and extend to other Companies carrying on Assurance or Insurance business the Law relating to Life Assurance Companies and for other purposes connected therewith.

BE it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

Companies to which Act applies.

S. 2 of Assurance
Act, 1870.
Companies to which Act applies.

1. This Act shall apply to all persons or bodies of persons, whether corporate or unincorporate, not being registered under the Acts relating to friendly societies or to trade unions (which persons and bodies of persons are hereinafter referred to as assurance companies), whether established before or after the commencement of this Act and whether established within or without the United Kingdom, who carry on within the United Kingdom assurance business of all or any of the following classes:—

- (a) Life assurance business; that is to say, the issue of, or the undertaking of liability under, policies of assurance upon human life, or the granting of annuities upon human life;
- (b) Fire insurance business; that is to say, the issue of, or the undertaking of liability under, policies of insurance against loss by or incidental to fire;
- (c) Accident insurance business; that is to say, the issue of, or the undertaking of liability under, policies of insurance upon the happening of personal accidents, whether fatal or not, disease, or sickness, or any class of personal accidents, disease, or sickness;
- (d) Employers' liability insurance business; that is to say, the issue of, or the undertaking of liability under, policies insuring employers against liability to pay compensation or damages to workmen in their employment;
- (e) Bond investment business; that is to say, the business of issuing bonds or endowment certificates by which the company, in return for subscriptions payable at periodical intervals of two months or less, contract to pay the bondholder a sum at a future date and not being life assurance business as hereinbefore defined;

subject as respects any class of assurance business to the special provisions of this Act relating to business of that class:

A company registered under the Companies Acts which transacts assurance business of any such class as aforesaid in any part of the world shall for the purposes of this provision be deemed to be a company transacting such business within the United Kingdom.

General.

S. 2 of 1870.
Deposit.

2.—(1) Every assurance company shall deposit and keep deposited with the Paymaster-General for and on behalf of the Supreme Court the sum of twenty thousand pounds.

(2) The sum so deposited shall be invested by the Paymaster-General in such of the securities usually accepted by the Court for the investment of funds placed under its administration as the company may select, and the interest accruing due on any such securities shall be paid to the company.

(3) The deposit may be made by the subscribers of the memorandum of association of the company, or any of them, in the name of the proposed company, and, upon the incorporation of the company, shall be deemed to have been made by, and to be part of the assets of, the company, and the registrar shall not issue a certificate of incorporation of the company until the deposit has been made.

(4) Where a company carries on, or intends to carry on, assurance business of more than one class, a separate sum of twenty thousand pounds shall be deposited and kept deposited under this section as respects each class of business, and the deposit made in respect of any class of business in respect of which a separate assurance fund is required to be kept shall be deemed to form part of that fund, and all interest accruing due on any such deposit or the securities in which it is for the time being invested shall be carried by the company to that fund.

(5) The Paymaster-General shall not accept a deposit except on a warrant of the Board of Trade.

(6) The Board of Trade may make rules with respect to applications for warrants, the payment of deposits, and the investment thereof or dealing therewith, the deposit of stocks or other securities in lieu of money, the payment of the interest or dividends from time to time accruing due on any securities in which deposits are for the time being invested, and the withdrawal and transfer of deposits, and the rules so made shall have effect as if they were enacted in this Act, and shall be laid before Parliament as soon as may be after they are made.

(7) This section shall apply to an assurance company registered or having its head office in Ireland, subject to the following modifications:

References to the Supreme Court shall be construed as references to the Supreme Court of Judicature in Ireland, and references to the Paymaster-General shall be construed as references to the Accountant-General of the last-mentioned Court.

3.—(1) In the case of an assurance company transacting other business besides that of assurance or transacting more than one class of assurance business, a separate account shall be kept of all receipts in respect of the assurance business or of each class of assurance business, and the receipts in respect of the assurance business, or, in the case of a company carrying on more than one class of assurance business, of each class of business, shall be carried to and form a separate assurance fund with an appropriate name:

Provided that nothing in this section shall require the investments of any such fund to be kept separate from the investments of any other fund.

(2) A fund of any particular class shall be as absolutely the security of the policy holders of that class as though it belonged to a company carrying on no other business than assurance business of that class, and shall not be liable for any contracts of the company for which it would not have been liable had the business of the company been only that of assurance of that class, and shall not be applied, directly or indirectly, for any purposes other than those of the class of business to which the fund is applicable.

4. Every assurance company shall, at the expiration of each financial year of the company, prepare—

- A revenue account for the year in the form or forms set forth in the First Schedule to this Act and applicable to the class or classes of assurance business carried on by the company;
- A profit and loss account in the form set forth in the Second Schedule to this Act, except where the company carries on assurance business of one class only and no other business;
- A balance sheet in the form set forth in the Third Schedule to this Act.

5.—(1) Every assurance company shall, once in every five years, or at such shorter intervals as may be prescribed by the instrument constituting the company, or by its regulations or by-laws, cause an investigation to be made into its financial condition, including a valuation of its liabilities, by an actuary, and shall cause an abstract of the report of such actuary to be made in the form or forms set forth in the Fourth Schedule to this Act and applicable to the class or classes of assurance business carried on by the company.

(2) The foregoing provisions of this section shall also apply whenever at any other time an investigation into the financial condition of an assurance company is made with a view to the distribution of profits, or the results of which are made public.

6. Every assurance company shall prepare a statement of its assurance business at the date to which the accounts of the company are made up for the purposes of any such investigation as aforesaid in the form or forms set forth in the Fifth Schedule to this Act and applicable to the class or classes of assurance business carried on by the company: Provided that, if the investigation is made annually by any company, the company may prepare such a statement at any time, so that it be made at least once in every five years.

(2) The Board of Trade shall consider the accounts, balance sheets, abstracts, and statements so deposited, and, if any such account, balance sheet, abstract, or statement appears to the Board to be inaccurate or incomplete in any respect, the Board shall communicate with the company with a view to the correction of any such inaccuracies and the supply of deficiencies.

PREVENTION OF CORRUPTION ACT, 1906.

6 EDW. 7, c. 34.

An Act for the better Prevention of Corruption.

[4th August, 1906.]

BE it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

- 1.—(1) If any agent corruptly accepts or obtains, or agrees to accept or attempts to obtain, from any person, for himself or for any other person, any gift or consideration as an inducement or reward for doing or forbearing to do, or for having after the passing of this Act done or forborne to do, any act in relation to his principal's affairs or business, or for showing or forbearing to show favour or disfavour to any person in relation to his principal's affairs or business: or Punishment of corrupt transactions with agents.

If any person corruptly gives or agrees to give or offers any gift or consideration to any agent as an inducement or reward for doing or forbearing to do, or for having after the passing of this Act done or forborne to do, any act in relation to his principal's affairs or business, or for showing or forbearing to show favour or disfavour to any person in relation to his principal's affairs or business; or

If any person knowingly gives to any agent, or if any agent knowingly uses with intent to deceive his principal, any receipt, account, or other document in respect of which the principal is interested, and which contains any statement which is false or erroneous or defective in any material particular, and which to his knowledge is intended to mislead the principal:

he shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and shall be liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding two years, or to a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds, or to both such imprisonment and such fine, or on summary conviction to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding four months, or to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds, or to both such imprisonment and such fine.

(2) For the purposes of this Act the expression "consideration" includes valuable consideration of any kind: the expression "agent" includes any person employed by or acting for another; and the expression "principal" includes an employer.

(3) A person serving under the Crown or under any corporation or any municipal borough, county, or district council, or any board of guardians, is an agent within the meaning of this Act.

2.—(1) A prosecution for an offence under this Act shall not be instituted without the consent, in England of the Attorney-General or Solicitor-General, and in Ireland of the Attorney-General or Solicitor-General for Ireland.

Prosecution of offences.

(2) The Vexatious Indictments Act, 1859, as amended by any subsequent enactment, shall apply to offences under this Act as if they were included among the offences mentioned in section one of that Act.

22 & 23 Vict. c. 17.

(3) Every information for any offence under this Act shall be upon oath.

(4) The expenses of any prosecution on indictment under this Act shall be defrayed as in cases of indictment for felony.

(5) A court of quarter sessions shall not have jurisdiction to inquire of, hear, and determine prosecutions on indictments for offences under this Act.

(6) Any person aggrieved by a summary conviction under this Act may appeal to a court of quarter sessions.

Application to Scotland.

3. This Act shall extend to Scotland, subject to the following modifications :—

(1) Section two shall not extend to Scotland :

(2) In Scotland all offences which are punishable under this Act on summary conviction shall be prosecuted before the sheriff in manner provided by the Summary Jurisdiction (Scotland) Acts.

Short title and commencement.

4.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1906.

(2) This Act shall come into operation on the first day of January nineteen hundred and seven.

[“A person serving under . . . any corporation . . . is an agent within the meaning of this Act.” Sect. 1 (3). Accordingly, directors, managers, superintendents, travellers, and other employes of companies should bear the Act in mind. The Act is far-reaching in its operation. It makes the payment or acceptance of a bribe a misdemeanour, that is, a criminal offence, punishable by imprisonment or fine. Both the person who gives and the person who accepts a bribe is punishable, and it matters not how carefully the transaction is veiled, or how roundabout is the procedure adopted ; and although, under sect. 2, “A prosecution for an offence under the Act is not to be instituted without the consent in England of the Attorney-General or the Solicitor-General . . .” and some people who pay or accept bribes regard this as a fetter and safeguard, it must not be forgotten that without any such consent, several persons implicated may be prosecuted for conspiracy to commit the statutory offence. Re v. Porter, (1910) 1 K. B. 369.]

THE ENGLISH REPORTS, 1378 to 1865.

FULL VERBATIM REPRINT, ANNOTATED.

CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE :

[Great Britain :
The Right Hon. THE EARL OF HALSBURY, lately Lord High Chancellor of The Right Hon. LORD ALVERSTONE, G.C.M.G., Lord Chief Justice of England ;

FOLLOWING on the complete re-issue of the House of Lords, Privy Council, Chancery, Rolls Court, Vice-Chancellors and King's Bench Reports, the COMMON PLEAS SERIES is now in course of publication, and may be subscribed for separately.

A complete set of the original Reports from 1378 down to 1865, with all the collateral reporters, extends to very many volumes of all sizes and styles of printing, which are very costly, and would almost require a separate room for their accommodation. Subscribers will have the privilege of possessing a complete annotated reprint of all of these invaluable Reports in about 160 uniform volumes in a modern and much more legible type, at a cost of 30s. per volume.

The Reports will be reprinted in chronological order, and as the original pagination and machinery of reference will be maintained, references from text-books and digests will be found even more easily than in the originals.

THE LAW JOURNAL REPORTS.

Edited by JOHN MEWS, Barrister-at-Law.

"All reports made by gentlemen of the Bar, and published on their responsibility, are equally regular. There is no superiority in the reports of the Council of Law Reporting. Counsel are as much entitled to cite the one as the other."

THE MASTER OF THE ROLLS. Times L. R., May 21, 1887.

Extract from Preface to "BENJAMIN ON SALE," 5th Edition.

"The Editors wish to bear testimony to the sustained excellence of the Law Journal Reports, which they have consulted in all cases of difficulty, and upon which alone in some instances the statement of a case has been based. These Reports have been especially valuable in disclosing the distinction between similar cases, or the particular ground on which a decision was rested—matters which have been much facilitated by the practice of setting out the pleadings at length. Reference to these Reports has not unfrequently been the means of clearing up obscurities which the other Reports had failed to dispel."
